PREFACE

TO THE FIRST EDITION.

THE Yearly Meeting having been apprehensive that, in some quarterly and monthly meetings, due care hath not been taken to preserve, and enter regularly in the books kept for that purpose, those minutes and advices which from its first institution have occasionally been communicated to them, for establishing and conducting the discipline of the church, hath seen meet to direct that those minutes and advices should be carefully extracted and properly arranged under suitable heads, and be comprised in one volume, for the general service of the society. This important work having been committed to the care of the meeting for sufferings, it was with much labour and great attention performed, and was laid before the yearly meeting in 1781; when a considerable number of judicious friends then present were appointed to come up to London in the Tenth month ensuing, to join the meeting for sufferings in examining the same: most of whom, in conjunction with that meeting, met accordingly, and having given their attendance with unremitting assiduity, in much concord and to mutual satisfaction, were favoured after many sittings to go through the work, comparing every part with the original records; and the whole, as contained in the following pages, was agreed to by the yearly meeting in 1782, and directed to be printed: in order that,

First. Every quarterly and monthly meeting may be furnished with a complete and correct collection of the several minutes and advices issued by the yearly meeting for regulating the affairs of the society.

Secondly. That these minutes and advices, being more generally made known, may be more uniformly observed and put in practice; that order, unity, peace, and harmony may be preserved throughout the churches.

Thirdly. That, in an especial manner, the youth of the present and succeeding generations may be early and fully instructed in our religious principles, and in the nature and design of our Christian discipline; and, through divine assistance, be enabled to adorn our holy profession by a consistent conduct and circumspect conversation, in all godliness and honesty; thereby avoiding the reproach which many, through a defection in principle, or a degeneracy in practice, have brought upon themselves and the body of which they profess to be members.

Fourthly. That the unfaithful, the immoral, and the libertine professors, may be scasonably reminded of their danger and of their duty; as well as of the great labour which, in much Gospel love, hath been, from time to time, bestowed for their help and recovery; and that such as continue to despise and reject the convictions of truth, and the counsel of their brethren, and refuse to be reclaimed, may be made sensible that they themselves are the sole cause of their separation from our religious fellowship and communion. For when any by their inconsistent and disorderly conduct, or by imbibing and adopting principles and practices contrary to the doctrine which we have received, have first openly manifested their disunity with the society, it is but just and requisite that, after endeavouring and waiting to restore them without effect, the body should testify its disunity with such erring and refractory members; at the same time earnestly desiring that they may be convinced of the error of their ways, and that through unfeigned repentance, and a consistent, orderly conduct in future, they may be re-united to the body. This being the utmost extent of our discipline respecting offenders, it is very evident, that from the right exercise thereof no degree of persecution or imposition can be justly inferred; for the imposition rests entirely on the part of those who insist on being retained as members, whilst at open variance with the body either in principle or practice.

We are not, however, without a clear sense that this publication will prove insufficient to produce the desired effect, unless we are very careful to move and act under the immediate influence of the Spirit of Christ in the pure love of the Gospel; a close adherence to which would render a multiplicity of rules unnecessary.

And whilst we are earnestly recommending this work to the notice and regard of friends, we cannot omit to press upon them a diligent reading of the Holy Scriptures, as superior to all other writings for instruction; and it must yield great satisfaction to observe how consonant these advices are to the doctrine and precepts of Christ and his apostles.

Although this collection is printed solely for the use of our own society, yet should it get abroad and meet the public eye, it is not doubted but every serious and candid reader will observe, throughout the whole, the constant and earnest endeavours of the yearly meeting for the promotion of virtue and religion. And notwithstanding it be too obvious to be denied, that there are amongst us many sorrowful instances of a grievous departure from the godly zeal, purity, probity, simplicity, and self-denial, so conspicuous in our worthy predecessors; yet, by comparing the later advices with those of a more ancient date, and observing the continued care and concern of the yearly meeting to guard and testify against every appearance of evil, and every mark of declension, it must be allowed that, as a religious body, we are the same people our forefathers were, in faith, in doctrine, in worship, in ministry, and in discipline.

And although it be our lot to live in an age of great dissipation, luxury, and profaneness, when the genuine fruits of the spirit of Christianity are so rarely seen, that every thing sacred and serious seems threatened to be overwhelmed by the torrent of vice and irreligion; yet we are bowed in thankfulness to the Author of all good, in that we have abundant cause to believe there are still many, of various ranks and ages, mercifully preserved both among ourselves, and in other Christian communities, who, through faithfulness to the measure of grace which is given to every one to profit with, have been strengthened to retain their integrity, and to hold fast the profession of their faith without wavering. Many of them, doubtless, are at times secretly mourning over the great desolations which infidelity and immorality have made in the Christian world; nevertheless they are comforted at seasons in the hope of better times, and helped to look forward with an eye of faith, and with unshaken confidence, to the gradual increase of that day, when darkness shall no longer cover the earth, nor gross darkness the hearts of the people; when the spiritual kingdom of Christ shall be exalted over all, and that glorious ancient prophecy fulfilled, when he shall have the heathen for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possesion; when nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more; and when the saving knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth, as the waters cover the sea.

MEETING FOR SUFFERINGS, 24th of the First Month, 1783.

TO THE SECOND EDITION.

Since the printing of the 'Extracts from the Minutes and Advices of the Yearly Meeting of Friends held in London,' or The Book of Extracts, as it is usually termed, about nineteen years have elapsed. During this period so many new regulations have taken place, as to render that book an imperfect collection of the rules of the society. This inconvenience has been in part obviated by a subsequent collection, made by a committee of the yearly meeting in conjunction with the meeting for sufferings; which collection was submitted to the yearly meeting in 1792, and printed by its order, together with some minutes of the same year, under the title of an Appendix. But the Book of Extracts itself being out of print, and the Appendix becoming, by means of successive additions to the rules and advices, a deficient supplement, the yearly meeting in 1800 recommended the quarterly meetings to send deputies to London in the Eleventh Month ensuing, to join the meeting for sufferings in revising the whole, and preparing a new and complete edition.

The joint meeting accordingly entered on the business, the 7th of the Eleventh Month, 1800, and pursued it diligently to the 29th of that month inclusive. In the course of its deliberations, it was found expedient to omit several advices which stand in the first edition; chiefly, because there were others under the same head of equal or superior pertinency, or because, in a few instances, it seemed eligible to exchange them for others, issued since the printing of the Book of Extracts: and there has been a considerable abridgement of some of those which remain.

In proceeding with the revision of the rules, the expediency also of some alterations in them engaged the attention of the meeting; and, as friends from various quarters of the kingdom were present, there was an opportunity for full and free conference respecting the general operation of existing regulations, and the probable effect of new ones. The additional minutes thus produced, were submitted to the last yearly meeting; and will be recognised in the following pages with the date subjoined, of 1801. But this date will also be observed at the end of minutes and advices, wherein no new matter has been inserted. In this case it will generally be found that the import of the original minute or advice has been somewhat confined, extended, or otherwise altered by the change or omission of words. Where omissions are merely for the sake of conciseness, and do not make an alteration in the sense of the sentence, the date of 1801 is not added.

The minutes and advices do not in all cases stand in the same order as before. In those heads where there is any deviation from the order of dates, besides the general plan of letting the advices stand together before the rules, attention has been given to the two following circumstances: first, where the head seemed naturally to admit of distinct subdivisions, to place together what related to each; and secondly, to endeavour that the series of advice or of direction should proceed, under each head, in the manner which seemed most likely to bring the subject into the clearest point of view.

The variety and excellency of the matter contained in the Book of Extracts, entitle the collection to attentive and repeated perusal; there is instruction for the inexperienced, and confirmation for the more advanced Christian; and while it teaches the letter of our discipline, it bears abundant testimony to the spirit in which it should be conducted—the spirit, temper, and habitude of mind, which ought to be the continual clothing of such as undertake, in any way, to be the advocates of the Lord's cause.

MEETING FOR SUFFERINGS, 5th of the Second Month, 1802.

 A portion of the preface to the second edition, which relates to a part of the arrangement not adopted in the present edition, has been omitted.

PREFACE

TO THE THIRD EDITION.

The second edition of this work which was published in the year 1802, being exhausted, the Yearly Meeting of 1832 concluded that a new and revised edition should be prepared. The quarterly meetings were therefore instructed to appoint a few of their members to unite with the meeting for sufferings in the service, as had been done on former occasions. The friends thus appointed met on the 29th of the Tenth month, 1832, and were fully occupied with the business assigned to them until the 13th of the Eleventh month following.

A careful examination of the second edition of the work, including the supplement, printed in the year 1822, by direction of the yearly meeting, the embodying or substituting of rules and advices, which had been issued since that period, and the deliberation on some further changes in our discipline, engaged the close attention of the friends so appointed. It was also thought desirable to insert some of the pertinent advice and counsel, which had been issued by the yearly meeting, since the last edition of the work.

The friends who thus met were favoured to proceed, and to conclude their labours, in much condescension and harmony. The present volume as now published under the direction of the last yearly meeting, for the use and government of our religious society, contains also those variations in rule and practice which were then adopted. The mode of arranging the work pointed out in the extracts from the preface to the second edition, has been, in great measure, observed in the present. Some pains have been taken to render this arrangement additionally perspicuous, and the reference to subjects more easy, especially by the addition of marginal readings, and by a more copious index.

In the belief that they may prove acceptable to friends generally, some extracts are appended to this preface, from approved documents of the Society, issued at different periods, and declaratory of its views, in reference to some of the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith. Although the original and immediate ground of the religious fellowship of our predecessors, was union of sentiment in regard to Christ's inward teaching—a doctrine which they believed to have been too much neglected by others, yet, as is evident from these extracts, they were firm believers in all that is revealed in Holy Scripture respecting our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; nor would they have allowed that any one held the truth, who denied his coming in the flesh, or the benefit derived to fallen man by his propitiatory sacrifice.

Our early friends not only recognized the Bible as the standard of their religious doctrines, but were particularly careful to adhere to Scripture language in the statement of them. They adopted no creed or confession of faith to be subscribed by their members, yet when charged with false opinions, they did not hesitate to make a full declaration of their views on any or all of the points of the Christian faith. Thus, when George Fox was at Barbadoes, in the year 1671, the society being accused of denying the outward coming of Christ, he, with some other friends, drew up a paper in reply to the charge, "To go forth in the name of the people called Quakers." Again, in the year 1693, on the occasion of a secession in America, a more enlarged statement of the doctrines of our society was drawn up and published in London; and other documents have been issued by the yearly meeting, of a similar tenor, so recently as the years 1829 and 1830.

The subjoined extracts are taken from these declarations; and their harmony cannot fail to be grateful to the members of our religious society. A brief notice of the origin and establishment of our Christian discipline, of its objects, and of the principal meetings instituted for its maintenance, is now inserted in the form of an Introduction.

In conclusion, we would, in Christian love, invite our young friends to the serious and attentive perusal of this work. May the evidence which it exhibits of the concern of the society, from time to time, to maintain the profession of the truth in its primitive purity, and to observe the precepts and practices taught and exemplified by the Lord Jesus Christ and his apostles, commend themselves to the consciences and willing acceptance of all our members. It is the warm desire of this meeting that we may all be established in the faith of the Gospel; and, when those who may have endeavoured, though feebly in their own apprehension, to uphold the truth, shall have passed from time to eternity, may there be a succeeding generation who shall maintain those Christian testimonies which were dear to our predecessors in the truth, and which are still dear to us; and who shall, by life and conversation, adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

MEETING FOR SUFFERINGS, 11th of the Second Month, 1834.

EXTRACTS FROM THE DOCUMENTS ABOVE REFERRED TO.

Extract from George Fox's epistle to the Governor of Barbadoes, 1671.

We own and believe in God, the only wise, omnipotent, and everlasting God, the Creator of all things in heaven and earth, and the Preserver of all that he hath made; who is God over all, blessed for ever; to whom be all honour, glory, dominion, praise and thanksgiving, both now and for evermore! And we own and believe in Jesus Christ, his beloved and only begotten Son, in whom he is well pleased; who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, and born of the virgin Mary; in whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins; who is the express image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature, by whom were all things created that are in heaven and in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, dominions, principalities, or powers; all things were created by him. And we own and believe that he was made a sacrifice for sin, who knew no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth; that he was crucified for us in the flesh, without the gates of Jerusalem; and that he was buried, and rose again the third day by the power of his Father, for our justification; and that he ascended up into heaven, and now sitteth at the right hand of God. This Jesus, who was the foundation of the holy prophets and apostles, is our foundation; and we believe there is no other foundation to be laid but that which is laid, even Christ Jesus; who tasted death for every man, shed his blood for all men, is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world: according as John the Baptist testified of him, when he said, "Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sins of "the world," John, i. 29. We believe that he alone is our Redeemer and Saviour, the captain of our salvation, who saves us from sin, as well as from hell and the wrath to come, and destroys the devil and his works; he is the Seed of the woman that bruises the serpent's head, to wit, Christ Jesus, the Alpha and Omega, the First and the Last. He is (as the Scriptures of truth say of him) our wisdom, righteousness, justification, and redemption; neither is there salvation in any other, for there is no other name under heaven given among men, whereby we may be saved. He alone is the Shepherd and Bishop of our souls: he is our Prophet, whom Moses long since testified of, saying, "A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; "him shall ye hear in all things, whatsoever he shall say unto you: and it shall come to " pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the "people." Acts, ii. 22, 23. He is now come in Spirit, "and hath given us an under-"standing, that we may know him that is true." He rules in our hearts by his law of love and life, and makes us free from the law of sin and death. We have no life, but by him; for he is the quickening Spirit, the second Adam, the Lord from heaven, by whose blood we are cleansed, and our consciences sprinkled from dead works, to serve the living God. He is our Mediator, who makes peace and reconciliation between God offended and us offending; he being the Oath of God, the new covenant of light, life, grace, and peace; the author and finisher of our faith. This Lord Jesus Christ, the heavenly man, the Emanuel, God with us, we all own and believe in; he whom the high-priest raged against and said, he had spoken blasphemy; whom the priests and elders of the Jews took counsel together against, and put to death; the same whom Judas betrayed for thirty pieces of silver, which the priests gave him as a reward for his treason; who also gave large money to the soldiers to broach a horrible lie, namely, "That his disciples "came and stole him away by night whilst they slept." After he was risen from the dead, the history of the acts of the apostles sets forth how the chief priests and elders persecuted the disciples of this Jesus, for preaching Christ and his resurrection. This, we say, is that Lord Jesus Christ, whom we own to be our life and salvation.

Concerning the Holy Scriptures, we believe they were given forth by the Holy Spirit of God, through the holy men of God, who (as the Scripture itself declares, 2 Pet. i. 21,) spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. We believe they are to be read, believed, and fulfilled (he that fulfils them is Christ;) and they are "profitable for doc-"trine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God "may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works," 2 Tim. iii. 16, 17; and are able to make wise unto salvation, "through faith in Christ Jesus."

Extracts from a statement of Christian doctrine, issued on behalf of the society, in the year 1693.

We sincerely profess faith in God by his only begotten Son Jesus Christ, as being our light and life, our only way to the Father, and also our only Mediator and Advocate with the Father.

That God created all things, he made the worlds, by his Son Jesus Christ, he being that powerful and living Word of God, by whom all things were made; and that the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit are one, in divine being inseparable; one true, living, and eternal God, blessed for ever.

PREFACE.

Yet that this Word, or Son of God, in the fulness of time, took flesh, became perfect man according to the flesh, descended and came of the seed of Abraham and David; but was miraculously conceived by the Holy Ghost, and born of the virgin Mary: and also farther, declared powerfully to be the Son of God, according to the spirit of sanctification, by the resurrection from the dead.

That in the Word (or Son of God) was life, and the same life was the light of men; and that he was that true light which enlightens every man coming into the world; and therefore that men are to believe in the light, that they may become the children of the light; hereby we believe in Christ the Son of God, as he is the light and life within us; and wherein we must needs have sincere respect and honour to (and belief in) Christ, as in his own unapproachable and incomprehensible glory and fulness; as he is the fountain of life and light, and giver thereof unto us; Christ, as in himself, and as in us, being not divided. And that as man, Christ died for our sins, rose again, and was received up into glory, in the heavens. He having, in his dying for all, been that one great universal offering and sacrifice for peace, atonement and reconciliation between God and man; and he is the propitiation not for our sins only, but for the sins of the whole world. We were reconciled by his death, but saved by his life.

That Jesus Christ, who sitteth at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, yet is he our King, High Priest, and Prophet; in his church, a Minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle which the Lord pitched, and not man. He is Intercessor and Advocate with the Father in heaven, and there appearing in the presence of God for us, being touched with the feeling of our infirmities, sufferings, and sorrows. And also by his spirit in our hearts, he maketh intercession according to the will of God, crying Abba, Father.

That the Gospel of the grace of God should be preached in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, being one in power, wisdom, and goodness, and indivisible, (or not to be divided,) in the great work of man's salvation.

We sincerely confess (and believe in) Jesus Christ, both as he is true God, and perfect man, and that he is the author of our living faith in the power and goodness of God, as manifested in his Son Jesus Christ, and by his own blessed Spirit (or divine unction) revealed in us, whereby we inwardly feel and taste of his goodness, life, and virtue; so as our souls live and prosper by and in him: and the inward sense of this divine power of Christ, and faith in the same, and the inward experience, are absolutely necessary to make a true, sincere, and perfect christian in spirit and life.

That divine honour and worship is due to the Son of God; and that he is, in true faith to be prayed unto, and the name of the Lord Jesus Christ called upon (as the primitive christians did,) because of the glorious union or oneness of the Father and the Son, and that we cannot acceptably offer up prayers and praises to God, nor receive a gracious answer or blessing from God, but in and through his dear Son Christ.

That Christ's body that was crucified was not the Godhead, yet by the power of God was raised from the dead; and that the same Christ that was therein crucified, ascended into heaven and glory, is not questioned by us. His flesh saw no corruption, it did not corrupt, but yet doubtless his body was changed into a more glorious and heavenly condition than it was in when subject to divers sufferings on earth; but how and what manner of change it met withal after it was raised from the dead, so as to become such a glorious body, (as it is declared to be,) is too wonderful for mortals to conceive, apprehend, or pry into (and more meet for angels to see;) the Scripture is silent therein, as to the manner thereof, and we are not curious to enquire or dispute it; nor do we esteem it necessary to make ourselves wise above what is written, as to the manner or condition of Christ's glorious body, as in heaven; no more than to enquire how Christ appeared in divers manners or forms; or how he came in among his disciples, the doors being shut; or how he vanished out of their sight, after he was risen. However, we have cause to believe his body, as in heaven, is changed into a most glorious condition, far transcending what it was in on earth, otherwise how should our low body be changed, so as to be made like unto his glorious body; for when he was on earth, and attended with sufferings, he was said to be like unto us in all things, sin only excepted; which may not be so said of him as now in a state of glory, as he prayed for; otherwise where would be the change both in him and in us.

Concerning the resurrection of the dead, and the great day of judgment yet to come, beyond the grave, or after death, and Christ's coming without us, to judge the quick and the dead: (as divers questions are put in such terms,) what the Holy Scriptures plainly declare and testify in these matters, we have been always ready to embrace.

1. For the doctrine of the resurrection; if, in this life only, we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable, 1 Cor. xv. 19. We sincerely believe not only a resurrection in Christ from the fallen sinful state here, but a rising and ascending into glory with him hereafter; that when he at last appears, we may appear with him in glory. Col. iii. 4; 1 John iii. 2.

But that all the wicked who live in rebellion against the light of grace, and die finally impenitent, shall come forth to the resurrection of condemnation.

And that the soul or spirit of every man and woman shall be reserved in its own distinct and proper being, and every seed (yea every soul) shall have its proper body, as God is pleased to give it, 1 Cor. xv. A natural body is sown, a spiritual body is raised; that being first which is natural, and afterward that which is spiritual. And though it is said, this corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortal shall put on immortality; the change shall be such as flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption, 1 Cor. xv. We shall be raised out of all corruption and corruptibility, out of all mortality; and the children of God and of the resurrection, shall be equal to the angels of God in heaven. And as the celestial bodies do far excel terrestrial, so we expect our spiritual bodies in the resurrection shall far excel what our bodies now are. Howbeit we esteem it very unnecessary to dispute or question how the dead are raised, or with what body they come: but rather submit that to the wisdom and pleasure of Almighty God.

2. For the doctrine of eternal judgment; God hath committed all judgment unto his Son Jesus Christ; and he is Judge both of quick and dead, and of the states and ends of all mankind, John, v. 22, 27; Acts. x. 42; 2 Tim. iv. 1; 1 Pet. iv. 5.

That there shall be hereafter a great harvest, which is the end of the world, a great day of judgment, and the judgment of that great day, the Holy Scripture is clear. Matt. xiii. 39, 40, 41; ch. x. 15, and xi. 24; Jude, vi. "When the Son of Man cometh in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, and before him shall be gathered all nations,"&c. Mat. xxv. 31, 32, to the end, compared with ch. xxii. 31; Mark, viii. 38; Luke, ix. 26, and 1 Cor. xv. 52; 2 Thes. i. 7, 8, to the end, and 1 Thes. iv. 16: Rev. xx. 12, 13, 14, 15.

Extract from the minutes of the Yearly Meeting, 1829.

We feel ourselves called upon, at this time, to avow our belief in the inspiration and divine authority of the Old and New Testament.

We further believe, that the promise made after the transgression of our first parents, in the consequence of whose fall all the posterity of Adam are involved, that the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent; and the declaration unto Abraham, "In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed," had a direct reference to the coming in the flesh of the Lord Jesus Christ. To Him, also, did the prophet Isaiah bear testimony, when he declared, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: "and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, "Counsellor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace: of the increase "of his government and peace there shall be no end." And again, the same prophet spoke of him when he said, "Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: "yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God and afflicted; but he was wounded for "our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was "upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." The same blessed Redeemer is emphatically denominated by the prophet Jeremiah, "The Lord our Righteousness."

At that period, and in that miraculous manner, which God in his perfect wisdom saw fit, the promised Messiah appeared personally upon earth, when "He took not on him "the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham." He "was in all "points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." Having finished the work which was given him to do, he gave himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God. He tasted death for every man. "He is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but "also for the sins of the whole world." "We have redemption through his blood, even "the forgiveness of sins." He passed into the heavens; and being the brightness of the glory of God, "and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the "word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand "of the Majesty on high;" and ever liveth to make intercession for us.

It is by the Lord Jesus Christ that the world will be judged in righteousness. He is the mediator of the new covenant; "the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature: for by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: "all things were created by him, and for him: and he is before all things, and by him all things consist." "In him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily:" and to him did the Evangelist bear testimony when he said, "In the beginning was the "Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the be"ginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing "made that was made. In him was life; and the life was the light of men." He "was
"the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

Our blessed Lord himself spoke of his perpetual dominion and power in his church, when he said, "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and "I give unto them eternal life:" and, when describing the spiritual food which he bestoweth on the true believers, he declared, "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me "shall never hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." He spoke also of his saving grace, bestowed on those who come in faith unto him, when he said, "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but "the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water, springing up into ever-"lasting life."

Our religious society, from its earliest establishment to the present day, has received these most important doctrines of Holy Scripture in their plain and obvious acceptation; and it is the earnest desire of this meeting, that all who profess our name, may so live, and so walk before God, as that they may know these sacred truths to be blessed to them individually. We desire that, as the mere profession of sound Christian doctrine will not avail to the salvation of the soul, all may attain to a living efficacious faith, which, through the power of the Holy Ghost, bringeth forth fruit unto holiness; the end where-of is everlasting life through Jesus Christ our Lord. "Blessing, and honour, and glory, "and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever "and ever."

Extract from the epistle of the Yearly Meeting, 1830.

Dear friends, we are again made sensible that we cannot meditate on a subject more fraught with instruction and comfort, than the coming of the Son of God in the flesh, and the many blessings which through him have been conferred on the human race,the coming of Him, who, being born of a virgin, "was made in the likeness of men:" "who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God; but made "himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant." He "was "delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification." He ascended on high, he led captivity captive, he received gifts for men, yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them. He "sitteth on the right hand of "God," making intercession for us. He "is made unto us of God, wisdom and righteous-"ness, and sanctification, and redemption;" and unto him we must look as our mediator and advocate with the Father. He emphatically describes himself as "the good Shep-"herd." He is our Lawgiver; and solemn indeed is the declaration, that we must all appear before his judgment seat, to receive our reward, according to the deeds done in the body, whether they be good or bad.

We feel that it is not a light matter thus to advert again to the various offices of the Son and sent of the Father; and we beseech all whom we are addressing, to contemplate these solemn truths with due reverence; yet frequently to meditate thereon, seeking for the assistance of the grace of God to direct their understandings aright. As this is done with humble and believing hearts, the conviction will increase, and ultimately become settled, that it is a great mercy to know individually that we have not a High Priest who cannot be touched with a feeling of our infirmities, but who was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.

But, blessed be God, he has not only provided the means of reconciliation unto himself, through the sacrifice of Christ; he hath also, through the same compassionate Saviour, granted unto us the gift of the Holy Spirit. By this, the patriarchs, and the holy men of old who lived under the law, walked acceptably before God. Its more plenteous effusion, and its powerful and life-giving effects, were distinctly foretold by the ancient prophets. Christ himself declared, that it was expedient that he should go away, that he might send the Comforter, the Spirit of Truth, who should guide into all truth; in allusion to whose coming he also said, "I will not leave you "comfortless, I will come to you." To be guided by his Spirit is the practical application of the Christian religion. It is the light of Christ which enlightens the darkness of the heart of man; and, by following this light, we are enabled to enjoy and maintain communion with him. The children of God are led by the Spirit of God; and this is the appointed means of bringing us into that state of "holiness, without "which no man shall see the Lord." It is not a doctrine of mysticism, but one of practical piety. The great office of the Holy Spirit, we firmly believe to be, to convince of sin, to bring the soul to a state of deep and sincere repentance, and to effect the work of sanctification. A holy and constant watchfulness is required, to preserve the mind alive to the guidance of this divine Teacher; who, if diligently sought after and waited for, will be found to be a swift witness for God in the soul, producing that tenderness of spirit, and that quickness of understanding in the fear of the Lord, which are essential to our growth in grace.

It is through Him whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation, through faith in his blood, that we obtain pardon for sin; and it is through the power of his Spirit working mightily in us, that we come eventually to experience freedom from sin.

INTRODUCTION.

On the Origin and Establishment of our Christian Discipline.

It is presumed that this revised and enlarged edition of Rules and Advices for the government of our religious society, will have an extensive circulation amongst its members, and it has been thought, that, at least to many of the younger class, a brief view of the rise and progress of our discipline, and of the meetings established with reference to it, might be useful and not uninteresting.

By the term discipline, we understand all those arrangements and regulations which are instituted for the civil and religious benefit of a Christian church: the meetings of discipline are, of course, for the purpose of carrying those objects into effect. Their design was said, by George Fox, to be—the promotion of charity and piety.

It cannot be said that any system of discipline formed a part of the original compact of the society. There was not indeed, to human appearance, any thing systematic in its formation. It was an association of persons who were earnestly seeking, yea panting after the saving knowledge of Divine Truth. They were men of prayer, and diligent searchers of the Holy Scriptures: unable to find true rest in the various opinions and systems, which in that day divided the Christian world, they believed that they found the Truth in a more full reception of Christ, not only as the living and ever present Head of the church in its aggregate capacity, but also as the light and life,—the spiritual ruler, teacher, and friend of every individual member.

These views did not lead them to the abandonment of those doctrines which they had heretofore held in regard to the manhood of Christ, his propitiatory sacrifice, mediation, and intercession. They did lead them, however, to a less dependence upon man, and to much inward retirement and waiting upon God, that they might know his will, and become quick of understanding in the fear of the Lord; yet were they very frequent in their meetings together for mutual edification and instruction, for the purpose of united worship in spirit and in truth, and for the exercise of their several gifts, as ability might be afforded by Him who has promised to be with the two or three disciples who are gathered together in his name.

From these meetings, in which the love of God was often largely shed abroad in the hearts of those who attended them, even when held in silence, most of those ministers went forth, who, in the earliest periods of the society, proclaimed to others the truth as they had found it, and called them from dependence on man to that individual knowledge of Christ and of his teachings, which the Holy Scriptures so clearly and abundantly declare to be the privilege of the Gospel times. As these views struck at the very root of that great corruption in the Christian church, by which one man's performances on behalf of others had been made essential to public worship, and on which hung all the load of ecclesiastical domination and the trade in holy things, so it necessarily separated those who had, as they believed, found the liberty of the Gospel, from those who still adhered with pious regard, or a mere ignorant and selfish attachment to that system which was upheld by the existing churches of the land.

Being thus separated from others, and many being every day added to the church, there arose of course peculiar duties of the associated persons towards each other. Christianity has ever been a powerful, active, and beneficent principle. Those who truly receive it, no more "live unto themselves," and this feature and fruit of genuine Christianity was strikingly exhibited in the conduct of the early Friends. No sooner were a few persons connected together in the new bond of religious fellowship, than they were engaged to admonish, encourage, and in spiritual as well as temporal matters, to watch over and help one another in love.

The members who lived near to each other, and who met together for religious worship, immediately formed, from the very law of their union, a Christian family or little church. Each member was at liberty to exercise the gift bestowed upon him, in that beautiful harmony and subjection which belongs to the several parts of a living body, from the analogy of which the apostle Paul draws so striking a description of the true church; "Ye are the body of Christ and members in particular."

Of this right exercise of spiritual gifts, and thereby of an efficient discipline, many examples are afforded in the history of the earliest period of the society; we shall select one which we believe may be considered as fairly illustrating the practice of early times. Stephen Crisp in his memoirs, speaking of his own state soon after his convincement, which was in 1655, and within a few years of the establishment of a meeting at Colchester, the place of his residence, thus expresses himself: "The more I came to feel and perceive the love of God and his goodness to me, the more was I humbled and bowed in my mind to serve him, and to serve the least of his people among whom I walked; and as the word of wisdom began to spring in me, and the knowledge of God grew, so hecame a counsellor of those that were tempted in like manner as I had been; yet was kept so low, that I waited to receive counsel daily from God, and from those that were over me in the Lord, and were in Christ before me, against whom I never rebelled nor was stubborn; but the more I was kept in subjection myself, the more I was enabled

"to help the weak and feeble ones. And as the church of God, in those days, increased, and my care daily increased, and the weight of things relating both to the outward and inward condition of poor friends came upon me, and being called of God and his people to take the care of the poor, and to relieve their necessities as I did see occasion, I did it faithfully for divers years, with diligence and much tenderness, exhorting and reproving any that were slothful, and encouraging them that were diligent, putting a difference according to the wisdom given me of God, and still minding my own state and condition, and seeking the honour that cometh from God only."—Memoirs.

Thus, then, we believe it may be safely asserted, that there never was a period in the society when those who agreed in religious principles were wholly independent of each other, or in which that order and subjection which may be said to constitute discipline, did not exist. But as the number of members increased, those mutual helps and guards which had been, in great measure, spontaneously afforded, were found to require some regular arrangements for the preservation of order in the church.

The history of these proceedings affords no small evidence, that the spirit of a sound mind influenced the body in its earliest periods: contending, as they did, for so large a measure of individual spiritual liberty, and placing the authority of man, in religious matters, in a position so subordinate to that of the one Great Head of the church, they nevertheless recognized the importance and necessity of arrangements and of human instrumentality, under the direction of the Spirit of Christ; and they were led to establish a system of order at once so simple and efficient, that notwithstanding the varying circumstances of the society, and the power of every annual meeting to alter it, it has been found, in its main particulars, adapted to those changes, and it remains to this day essentially the same as it was within forty years of the rise of the society. Previously, however, to the establishment of that regular system of discipline, and of that mode of representation in the meetings for conducting it, which now exist, there had been many general meetings held in different parts of the nation, for the purpose of providing for the various exigencies of the society. How these meetings were constituted it is not easy precisely to ascertain. The "labourers in the Gospel," by whose instrumentality the church had been gathered, appear to have taken the most prominent part in the proceedings of these meetings. George Fox mentions in his journal, that some meetings for discipline were settled in the north of England so early as 1653; the first general meeting of which we are aware that any records are extant, was held at Balby, near Doncaster, in Yorkshire, in the year 1656, and from this meeting a number of directions and advices were issued, addressed "To the Brethren in the North." This document refers to most of the points which now form the chief subjects of our discipline. It contains instructions as to the Gospel order of proceeding with delinquents, and advices to husbands and wives, parents and children, masters and servants, as to the discharge of their relative duties, and also in regard to strict justice in trade, and a cheerful and faithful performance of civil offices in the commonwealth. George Fox mentions attending a general meeting in Bedfordshire, in 1658, which lasted three days; at which, he says, "there were friends "present from most parts of the nation, and many thousands of persons were at it." He also mentions attending a meeting at Skipton, in 1660, "for the affairs of the church, both "in this nation and beyond the seas:" and he says, that he had recommended the establishment of this meeting several years before, when he was in the north, "for many friends "suffered in divers parts of the nation; their goods were taken from them contrary to "law, and they understood not how to help themselves, or where to seek redress." "This "meeting," he adds, "had stood several years, and divers justices and captains had come to break it up; but when they understood the business friends met about, and saw friends" books, and accounts of collections for the use of the poor; how we took care one county "to help another, and to help our friends beyond sea, and to provide for our poor, so that "none should be chargeable to their parishes, the justices and officers confessed we did "their work, and would pass away peaceably and lovingly."

Next to general meetings we must notice the establishment of quarterly meetings, which were constituted of friends deputed by the several meetings within a county. These meetings, in several of the counties at least, had existed prior to the establishment of monthly meetings, and they appear to have had much the same office in the body as the monthly meetings now have amongst us. George Fox, in an epistle of an early date, writes thus respecting them: "In all the meetings of the county two or three may be appointed " from them to go to the quarterly meetings, to give notice if there be any that walk not in "the truth, or have been convinced and gone from the truth, and so have dishonoured "God; and likewise to see if any that profess the truth follow pleasures, drunkenness, "gaming, or are not faithful in their callings and dealings, nor honest; but run into debt " and so bring a scandal upon the truth. Friends may give notice to the quarterly meet-"ings (if there be any such,) and some may be ordered to go and exhort them, and bring "in their answers to the next quarterly meeting. And to admonish all them that be care-" less and slothful, to diligence in the truth and service for God, and to bring forth heaven-"ly fruits to God, and that they may mind the good works of God, and do them in believ-"ing on his Son, and showing it forth in their conversation, and to deny the devil and his " bad works, and not to do them; and to seek them that be driven away from the truth into "the devil's wilderness by his dark power. Seek them again by the truth, and by the truth " and power of God bring them to God again."

It appears, by the preceding account of the meeting at Skipton, to have been with our society as it had been with the primitive church, that the care and provision for its poor members was amongst the earliest occasions of disciplinary arrangements. The occasion for this provision was much increased by the cruel persecutions and robberies to which, on their first rise, the friends were almost every where exposed. It was no rare occurrence, at that period, for the father of a family to be thrown into a dungeon, and for the house to be spoiled of the very children's beds and all their provisions. Nor was it uncommon to seek their entire proscription and ruin, by refusing to deal with them. Well may we say, with reverent thankfulness, in reference to those times, "If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us, then they had swallowed us up quick when their wrath was kindled against us."

The members of the persecuted society were far from opulent; but they proved themselves rich in charity as well as in faith and hope: and the illustration of these virtues, by the sacrifices which they made for the relief of their more afflicted associates, and their unbroken constancy in the sufferings which they endured for the testimony of a good conscience, were doubtless amongst the practical arguments which at length extorted the commendation even of their enemies.

A second and perhaps contemporaneous object of the meetings for the discipline of the society, was the obtaining of redress for those illegally prosecuted or imprisoned, as also appears from the extract relative to the meeting at Skipton. Though so patient in suffering they deemed it their duty to apprise magistrates, judges, and the government of illegal proceedings, and to use every legal and Christian effort to obtain redress. Several friends in London devoted a large portion of time to this object, and regular statements of the most flagrant cases were sent to them, and were frequently laid by them before the king and government. Their constancy in suffering was hardly exceeded by their unwearied efforts to obtain relief for their suffering brethren, and for the alteration of the persecuting laws, and through these means the cause of religious liberty was essentially promoted.

A third object, which at a very early period of the society pressed upon its attention, was the proper registration of births and deaths, and the provision for due proceedings relative to marriage. Their principles led them at once to reject all priestly intervention on these occasions, and hence the necessity for their having distinct arrangements in regard to them. In some of the meetings of earliest establishment regular registers are preserved from the year 1650 to the present time. Great care was taken in regard to proceedings in marriage; investigation as to the clearness of the parties from other marriage engagements, full publicity of their intentions, and the consent of parents, appear to have been recommended in early times as preliminaries to the ratification of the agreement between the parties; and this act took place publicly in the religious meetings of the society. Marriage has always been regarded, by friends, as a religious, not a mere civil compact.

The right education of youth, the provision of suitable situations for them as apprentices or otherwise, and the settlement of differences without going to law one with another, were also among the early objects of the society's care.

The last object of the discipline in early times, which we shall enumerate, was the exercise of spiritual care over the members. As the society advanced it was soon reminded of our Lord's declaration: "It must needs be that offences come." United as they were, in the main, in true Christian fellowship, differences did arise. Evidencing, as the society did, to a large extent, the fruits of the Spirit, there were those who fell away from their Christian profession, and walked disorderly—and sound as was the body of friends in Christian doctrine, there were members who were betrayed into false doctrines and vain imaginations; and pure, and spiritual, and consistent with true order and Christian subjection, as were the principles of religious liberty advocated by the society, there were those who appear to have assumed them under the false expectation of an entire independence.

To all these cases, the discipline was applied in very early times, yet the spirit of tenderness, which breathes through the writings of George Fox, in regard to the treatment of delinquents, and which there is good reason to believe was practically illustrated to a large extent in the conduct of the friends of those days, is worthy of especial notice. In one of his epistles he thus writes: "Now concerning Gospel order, though the doctrine of Jesus "Christ requireth his people to admonish a brother or sister twice, before they tell the "church, yet that limiteth none, so as that they shall use no longer forbearance. And it is " desired of all, before they publicly complain, that they wait in the power of God, to feel if "there is no more required of them to their brother or sister, before they expose him or her "to the church. Let this be weightily considered, and all such as behold their brother or "sister in a transgression, go not in a rough, light, or upbraiding spirit, to reprove or ad-"monish him or her; but in the power of the Lord and spirit of the Lamb, and in the wis-"dom and love of the truth, which suffers thereby, to admonish such an offender. So may "the soul of such a brother or sister be seasonably and effectually reached unto and over-" come, and they may have cause to bless the name of the Lord on their behalf, and so a " blessing may be rewarded into the bosom of that faithful and tender brother or sister who " so admonished them. And so keep the church order of the Gospel, according as the "Lord Jesus Christ hath commanded; that is, 'If thy brother offend thee, speak to him "betwixt thee and him alone; and if he will not hear, take two or three, and if he will not "hear two or three, then tell it to the church.' And if any one do miscarry, admonish "them gently in the wisdom of God, so that you may preserve him and bring him to con-"demnation, and preserve him from further evils, which it is well if such do not run "into, and it will be well for all to use the gentle wisdom of God towards them in their "temptations, and condemnable actions; and, with using gentleness, to bring them to con-"demn their evil, and to let their condemnation go as far as their bad action has gone "and no farther, to defile the minds of friends or others; and so to clear God's truth and people, and to convert the soul to God, and preserve them out of further evils.—
"So be wise in the wisdom of God."

We now proceed to notice the more regular and systematic establishment of monthly, and quarterly meetings, and of the yearly meeting. Though the history of those times bears ample testimony to the useful part which was taken in this important work by many faithful friends, yet it is clear that George Fox was the chief instrument in the arrangement and establishment of these meetings. There was doubtless much reference to his individual judgment, but it is worthy of notice how carefully he sought to keep the body from an improper dependence upon him. As in his preaching he directed his hearers to Christ for themselves, as alike their and his teacher, so in the discipline of the society he laboured diligently that the body might be strengthened to help itself.

Under the date of 1666, George Fox says in his journal, "Then was I moved of the Lord "to recommend the setting up of five monthly meetings of men and women friends in the "city (London,) besides the women's meeting and the quarterly meetings, to take care of "God's glory, and to admonish and exhort such as walked disorderly or carelessly, and "not according to truth. For whereas friends had had only quarterly meetings, now "truth was spread and friends were grown more numerous, I was moved to recommend "the setting up of monthly meetings throughout the nation." In 1667 he laboured most diligently in this service, under much bodily weakness from his long confinements in cold and damp prisons. In 1668 he thus writes, concerning this service; "The men's "monthly meetings were settled through the nation. The quarterly meetings were gene-"rally settled before. I wrote also into Ireland, Scotland, Holland, Barbadoes, and seve-" ral parts of America, advising friends to settle their men's monthly meetings in those " countries, for they had their quarterly meetings before." These monthly meetings so instituted, took a large share of that care which had heretofore devolved on the quarterly meetings, and were no doubt the means of bringing many more of the members into a larger sphere of usefulness and the exercise of their respective gifts in the church, the free course for which he was so anxious to promote. With reference to this subject he observes, in one of his epistles: "The least member in the church is serviceable, " and all the members have need one of another."

The quarterly meetings from this time received reports of the state of the society from the monthly meetings, and gave such advice and decisions as they thought right; but there was not, until some years after this period, a general yearly meeting, in which all the quarterly meetings were represented. Of the establishment of that meeting we come now to speak.

There appears to have been held in London, in 1668, a general meeting of friends from all parts of the nation, from which an epistle was issued to the society, and the several quarterly meetings were requested to make a collection for the service of truth beyond the seas, and for the distribution of books. There is some reason to believe that this was a general meeting of ministers. In the year 1672 a general meeting of ministers was held at Devonshire House, London; amongst its proceedings we find the following minute, in which we trace the origin of the yearly meeting, constituted as it now is, of representatives from various parts of the kingdom. "It is concluded, "agreed, and assented unto, by friends then present, that for the better ordering, "managing, and regulating of the public affairs of friends relating to the truth and ser-"vice thereof, that there be a general meeting of friends held at London once a year, "in the week called Whitsun-week, to consist of six friends for the city of London, "three for the city of Bristol, two for the town of Colchester, and one or two from each of the counties of England and Wales respectively."

This representative yearly meeting met at the time proposed in 1673, and came to the conclusion, that the general meeting, constituted as it then was, "be discontinued till friends, "in God's wisdom, shall see a further occasion;" and it was further agreed, that the general meeting of friends who labour in the work of the ministry, do continue as formerly appointed. This meeting of friends in the ministry, which had now been so formally constituted and authorized, appears to have been regularly held annually from this time to the year 1677 inclusive. This meeting of ministers in London appears at that time to have had the general care of the church.

In 1675 a series of important advices and instructions were agreed upon, and sent forth to the several meetings: they are contained in an epistle, and are thus introduced: "At a "solemn general meeting of many faithful friends and brethren concerned in the public "labour of the Gospel and service of the church of Christ, from the most parts of the nation." This document is signed by eighty one friends, most of whom are well known as conspicuous in the early history of the society, and the spirit of fervent piety and charity which it breathes is well worthy of their character. In 1677 the general meeting agreed again to convene the meeting of representatives in the ensuing year, and then to advise respecting its continuance. Accordingly in 1678 the representative yearly meeting assembled in London, and after agreeing upon several matters, the substance of which was conveyed to the various meetings of friends, in the form of an epistle with much Christian counsel, concluded to meet again the next year after the same manner; and these meetings have continued to assemble once a year in London, with unbroken regularity, to the present time.

When the general meeting of ministers transferred much of its duties to the representative yearly meeting, of which they formed a part, there were some portions of the service of these meetings which more particularly belonged to the ministers.

Although the power to approve or disapprove of ministers, rested with the members of the church to which they respectively belonged, in the capacity of a monthly meeting, yet it was deemed fitting that the ministers should have an especial oversight of each other, and that they should meet together for mutual consultation and advice in regard to those of their own station.

George Fox, in 1674, writes thus: "Let your general assemblies of the ministers, [in "London,] or elsewhere, examine, as it was at the first, whether all the ministers that "go forth into the counties, do walk as becomes the Gospel, for that you know was one end of that meeting, to prevent and take away scandal, and to examine whether all "who preach Christ Jesus do keep in his government and in the order of the Gospel, and to exhort them that do not." Meetings for these purposes, in which friends in the station of elder are now united, continue to be regularly held.

All the meetings which have been hitherto described were conducted by men; but it was one of the earliest features of our religious economy to elevate the character of the female sex, by recognizing them as helpers in spiritual as well as in temporal things; holding in the former, as well as in the latter, a distinct place, and having duties which more peculiarly devolved on them. For this purpose meetings were established among them, with a special regard to the care and edification of their own sex. A meeting of women friends is mentioned at Bristol as early as 1668, and it appears from a passage already quoted from George Fox, that they had been held in London at a still Their general establishment does not, however, appear to have taken place until after the settlement of the men's meetings; after speaking of these he says, "Truth still spreading further over the nation, and friends increasing in number, I was "moved by the same eternal power to recommend the setting up of women's meetings "also." His views in regard to the establishment of these meetings are conveyed in the following passages: "That faithful women, called to a belief of the truth, and made "partakers of the same precious faith, and heirs of the same everlasting Gospel of " life and salvation, as the men are, might in the like manner come into the profession "and practice of the Gospel order, and therein be meethelps to the men in the resto-"ration, in the service of truth, and the affairs of the church, as they are outwardly in "civil and temporal things; that so all the family of God, women as well as men, might "know, possess, and perform their offices and services in the house of God: whereby "the poor might be better taken care of, the younger sort instructed, informed, and "taught in the way of God; the loose and disorderly reproved and admonished in the "fear of the Lord; the clearness of persons proposing marriage more closely and strictly " enquired into in the wisdom of God, and all the members of the spiritual body, the "church, might watch over and be helpful to each other in love."

Again, speaking of the important duties of women in the church, he says: "The "elder women in the truth were not only called elders, but mothers—now a mother in the church of Christ and a mother in Israel is one who nourishes, and feeds, and

- "washes, and rules, and is a teacher in the church, an admonisher, an instructor, an ex-
- " horter. So the elder women and mothers are to be teachers of good things, teachers of
- "the younger, and to be trainers of them up in virtue, holiness, righteousness, in wis-
- "dom, and in the fear of the Lord in the church of Christ."

The persevering efforts of George Fox to establish a regular discipline, a work in which he was assisted by nearly all those who had been instrumental in gathering the society, proved a great trial of spirits: to a large proportion of the members the arrangements appear to have been quite satisfactory: there was, however, a considerable number of objectors—the self-willed and lawless opposed it with vehemence, and it must be admitted that not a few of a very different class were drawn aside by specious arguments, to oppose what was represented as an encroachment upon individual spiritual liberty. Certain it is, that a schism to some extent took place on this occasion; which, however, there is reason to believe, left the society in a more healthy state than it found it. The general meeting of 1677 issued a strong declaration on the subject. Robert Barclay wrote, upon this occasion, his "Anarchy of the Ranters;" William Penn his "Liberty Spiritual;" and Stephen Crisp an excellent tract, all of them endeavouring to prove the necessity of established order and discipline in the church of Christ. This very conflict, and the close examination to which it led of the true limits of church authority, tended, there is reason to believe, under Divine direction, to establish the discipline at once more firmly and safely throughout the society than might otherwise have been the case.

Thus was a system of order and government, in conformity with the spirit of Christianity and the practice of the primitive churches, established amongst us in early times; and thus a field was opened for the exercise of the various gifts by which the church, the body of Christ, is edified. It is very observable in the history of our society, that the declension or revival of religious zeal has ever been accompanied by a corresponding relaxation or increase of care, in the exercise of the discipline. May the publication of the present volume tend to strengthen our love and zeal in the support of our Christian testimonies and institutions, in the bonds of that holy brotherhood which is the fellowship of the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

ADVICES.

Advices to be read, at least once in the year, in the Quarterly, Monthly, and Preparative Meetings of men and women friends: they are to be read in the men's and women's meetings separately.

TAKE heed, dear friends, we intreat you, to the convictions of the Holy Spirit, who leads, through unfeigned repentance and living faith in the Son of God, to reconciliation with our Heavenly Father, and to the blessed hope of eternal life, purchased for us by the one offering of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Be earnestly concerned in religious meetings reverently to present yourselves before the Lord, and seek, by the help of the Holy Spirit, to worship God through Jesus Christ.

Be in the frequent practice of waiting upon God in private retirement, with prayer and supplication, honestly examining yourselves as to your growth in grace, and your preparation for the life to come.

Be careful to make a profitable and religious use of those portions of time on the first day of the week, which are not occupied by our meetings for worship.

Live in love as Christian brethren, ready to be helpful one to another, and to sympathize with each other in the trials and afflictions of life.

Follow peace with all men, desiring the true happiness of all; and be liberal to the poor, endeavouring to promote their temporal, moral, and religious well-being.

With a tender conscience, and in accordance with the precepts of the Gospel, take heed to the limitations of the Spirit of Truth, in the pursuit of the things of this life.

Maintain strict integrity in all your transactions in trade, and in your other outward concerns, remembering that you will have to account for the mode of acquiring, and the manner of using, your possessions.

Watch, with Christian tenderness, over the opening minds of your offspring; enure them to habits of self-restraint and filial obedience; carefully instruct them in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, and seek for ability to imbue their minds with the love of their Heavenly Father, their Redeemer, and their Sanctifier.

Observe simplicity and moderation in the furniture of your houses, and in the supply of your tables, as well as in your personal attire, and that of your families.

Be diligent in the private and daily family reading of the Holy Scriptures; and guard carefully against the introduction of improper books into your families.

Be careful to place out children, of all degrees, with those friends whose care and example will be most likely to conduce to their preservation from evil; prefer such assistants, servants, and apprentices, as are members of our religious society; not demanding exorbitant apprentice fees, lest you frustrate the care of friends in these respects.

Encourage your apprentices and servants of all descriptions to attend public worship, making way for them herein: and exercise a watchful care for their moral and religious improvement.

Be careful to make your wills and settle your outward affairs in time of health; and, when you accept the office of guardian, executor, or trustee, be faithful and diligent in the fulfilment of your trust.

Finally, dear friends, let your conversation be such as becometh the Gospel. Exercise yourselves to have always a conscience void of offence towards God and towards man. Watch over one another for good; and when occasions of uneasiness first appear in any, let them be treated with in privacy and tenderness, before the matter be communicated to another: and friends, every where, are advised to maintain "the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace." 1791.—1801.—1833.

APPEALS.

Dear friends, in the spirit of the Gospel, which is peace on earth, and good-will to all men, labour to maintain the discipline of the church, wherein you will be favoured with wisdom, prudently to determine the affairs that may come before you, and be instrumental to prevent appeals from coming to this meeting, which tend to prolong it, and give uneasiness to friends. 1736. Rules for hearing and judging of Appeals.

Appeals to Quarterly Meetings.

I. If any person shall, after a final decision in his case by any monthly meeting, (which final decision where disownment takes place is the issuing of a minute or testimony against him,) think himself (a) injured or aggrieved by its proceedings in the case, he may appeal to the quarterly meeting of which such monthly meeting forms a part. Notice of such intended appeal is to be given, in writing, to the monthly meeting within three months after such decision is communicated by, or on behalf of, such meeting, to the party concerned; or, if, because the party could not be found, or by reason of his having left the kingdom, the decision has not been so communicated, then within two years, at the furthest, after the issuing of it.

II. The appeal is to be brought to the first or second quarterly meeting which occurs after the monthly meeting immediately succeeding that at which the notice, above mentioned, has been given.

2 To Quarterly Meetings.

To Quarterly In the notice, the appellant shall specify to which of the two he means to present his appeal. If he has made choice of the first, and circumstances should arise to prevent him from pursuing his intention, he shall be at liberty to bring the appeal to the second quarterly meeting, provided that previously thereto he renew his notice to the monthly meeting. The monthly meeting receiving notice of appeal as first mentioned, shall appoint respondents to act on its behalf, and shall inform the appellant that an appointment has been made. If, in the judgment of the monthly meeting, such notice of appeal be given before a final decision in the case, the monthly meeting instead of appointing respondents shall send forward to the quarterly meeting a minute, stating that a final decision has not been given in the case, and that consequently the appellant has no right of appeal, which minute the quarterly meeting shall, without entering into the case, record as its judgment. But, after the final decision of the case, the monthly meeting shall not be at liberty to omit or delay the appointment of respondents, either because it does not deem the case one that admits of appeal, or on any other ground.

> III. The following regulations are to be observed in the conducting of appeals to quarterly meetings:—

1. The appeal, in writing, and sealed up, shall be delivered to the clerk for the time being, soon after the representatives are called over, with an endorsement simply specifying the appellant, his assistant, or assistants, (if any are intended,) the meeting appealed against, and that appealed to. The indorsement shall be read, and also the minute of the monthly meeting appointing respondents to act on its behalf. But, if no respondents have been appointed, nor any minute produced from the monthly meeting, informing the quarterly meeting that a final decision has not been given in the case, the quarterly meeting without appointing any committee or otherwise entering into the case, shall direct the monthly meeting to make the necessary appointment in order to the appeal being heard at the ensuing quarterly meeting. If, at the ensuing quarterly meeting, no appointment of respondents is reported, the quarterly meeting without entering To Quarterly into the case, shall at once record a reversal of the decision appealed against.

Meetings.

- 2. Unless an appeal relate to matter of faith and doctrine, and unless the quarterly meeting is satisfied thereof, and also inclines that without any previous reference, it should be heard in the meeting itself, such meeting shall, when any appeal is so brought as above, proceed to nominate a committee of twelve disinterested friends, to hear the same and judge thereof, the appellant, and the assistant or assistants of an appellant, and the respondents having withdrawn previously to such nomination. No member of a monthly meeting appealed against, is to be at liberty to take any part in nominating the committee of the quarterly meeting.
- 3. After the nomination has taken place, the appellant and respondents shall be called in, the names of the proposed committee shall be read in their presence, and each party shall be allowed, (after having had the opportunity, if desired, of withdrawing a short time for consultation,) to object to any of the committee, not exceeding three. In objecting, no cause shall be assigned. The places of the friends who have been thus objected to, shall be supplied by a fresh nomination; which nomination shall be final.
- 4. The appointment of the committee being completed, a time and place shall be fixed for their meeting, of which due notice shall be given to the parties concerned. On the principle of the importance of promoting the speedy settlement of differences, the time shall be as early an one as can with convenience be chosen.
- 5. The committee, not less than ten of whom are to be a quorum, shall, when met, proceed upon the business referred to them, by opening and reading the appeal in the presence of the appellant and respondents. In case an appeal, referred to a committee, shall be found by them to relate to faith and doctrine, the committee shall,

To Quarterly Meetings. without proceeding further, report accordingly to the quarterly meeting, that the said meeting may decide whether the appeal shall be heard in the meeting itself, or be again referred to the committee.

- 6. In all appeals heard by a committee of a quarterly meeting, the appellant shall, after the appeal has been read, be heard in support thereof, and afterwards the respondents in reply, in the presence of each other, until both parties have been fully and fairly heard; after which the parties shall withdraw previously to the committee's deliberation on the case.
- 7. When, in the committee, the whole or the greater part of the members present (such members present not being less than the quorum) have agreed in a judgment on the case, a report in writing shall be prepared, which is to be signed, as the report of the committee, by those so uniting in judgment.

If the members so present as above are equally divided in judgment, the report shall be in favour of the appealing party.

The committee shall not be expected to assign any reasons for the judgment expressed in their report; and it is recommended, that the purport of it be simply the confirming or annulling of the decision of the monthly meeting.

- 8. The committee shall give notice in writing to both parties, of the time when it is intended to deliver in the report; which is to be at an adjournment of the quarterly meeting, or at the next quarterly meeting in course.
- 9. The report of the committee shall be read in the quarterly meeting, in the presence of both parties, if they incline to attend; and, except when the circumstance occurs which forms the subject of the next succeeding section (Sect. 10), and with the exception also of such appeals relating to faith and doctrine, as may come to be opened in the quarterly meeting itself, according to the liberty hereafter given (Sect. 11), the judgment expressed in any such report, shall be recorded as the decision of the quarterly meeting in the case.

- 10. If, in the case of an appeal not relating to faith and doc- To Quarterly Meetings. trine, brought by an individual in consequence of his disownment, the report of the committee, confirmatory of the judgment of the monthly meeting, be signed by less than eight of its number, such judgment is to be reversed.
- 11. The report of any committee expressing a judgment on the merits of an appeal relating to faith and doctrine, may be objected to by the party against whom it is given, and such party may require the case to be heard by the meeting itself.
- 12. Whenever an appeal relating to faith and doctrine, comes to be heard in the quarterly meeting itself, the following regulations are to be observed:-

First—The appeal shall be read in the presence of both parties, and the appellant shall then be heard in support of the same, and afterwards the respondents in reply, in the presence of each other, until both parties have been fully and fairly heard.

Second—In stating and replying, no persons are to be permitted to speak on the case, but those who, as or for the appellant and as respondents, are immediately concerned in the appeal; except that any friend, (not being a member of a monthly meeting concerned in the appeal, or of a committee that may have heard it, and reported a judgment on the merits thereof,) who may apprehend it proper for a question to be put to either party, shall have the liberty of requesting that it may be done through the clerk.

Third—The parties immediately concerned in the appeal shall withdraw, previously to the meeting's deliberation on the case; and, after they have so withdrawn, or during their absence in consequence of any prior withdrawing, no member of a meeting concerned in the appeal, or of a committee that may have heard it and reported a judgment on the merits thereof, is to be allowed to speak on the subject before the meeting.

To Quarterly Meetings.

- Fourth—When the meeting has come to a conclusion in the case, its decision shall be entered on minute, and then the parties shall be at liberty to come in again and hear it read.
- 13. In all cases, a copy of the minute of the quarterly meeting, recording its decision in the case, shall be sent to each party.
- 14. Should any quarterly meeting be unable to appoint, on an appeal, a committee of disinterested friends to the number of twelve, such quarterly meeting shall, after making its own appointment, apply to some neighbouring quarterly meeting, for such an addition as may be necessary to complete the number: in which case notice shall be given to the appellant and respondents of the intended application, that they may have the opportunity of attending such neighbouring quarterly meeting, and exercising (according to Sect. 3,) their right of objection, if such right has not been before exhausted. And such meeting is to be informed by the applying quarterly meeting, whether any and what right of objection remains to the respective parties.

Appeals to the Yearly Meeting.

To the Yearly Meeting.

- IV. If any person shall think himself injured or aggrieved by the judgment of any quarterly meeting given against him, he may appeal from such judgment to the yearly meeting; in which case, notice, in writing, of his intention to appeal, is to be given by him, not later than to the second quarterly meeting after that at which such judgment has been recorded.
- V. A quarterly meeting receiving such notice shall appoint respondents to act on its behalf, and shall inform the appellant that an appointment has been made. But if notice of appeal be given to a quarterly meeting relating to a case in which the said meeting has been informed by minute of the monthly meeting concerned, that a final decision has not been given, the quarterly meeting, instead of appointing respondents, shall send forward to the yearly meeting a minute, stating that a final decision has not been given in the case, and that consequently the appellant has, at that time, no right of appeal; which minute the yearly meeting shall, without entering into the Tothe Yearly case, record as its judgment. But no quarterly meeting shall be at liberty to omit the appointment of respondents on any other ground.

- VI. If any person, having given notice of his intention of appealing, is prevented from bringing his appeal to the yearly meeting immediately succeeding such notice, he may continue his appeal to the next following yearly meeting, on renewing his notice in writing to the meeting appealed against, at any time preceding the second yearly meeting. In this case, however, the appeal shall not be received, unless satisfactory reasons for the delay be stated to the yearly meeting, or to its committee on the appeal.
- VII. The following regulations are to be observed in the conducting of appeals to the yearly meeting:
 - 1. The appeal, in writing and sealed up, is to be delivered to the clerk for the time being, before the close of the first sitting of the yearly meeting, with an indorsement simply specifying the appellant, his assistant or assistants, (if any are intended,) the meeting appealed against, and that appealed to. The indorsement shall be read, and also the minute of the quarterly meeting, appointing respondents to act on its behalf.
 - 2. An appeal having been delivered in, the representatives shall meet at the close of the first sitting of the yearly meeting, and a committee shall be by them nominated to hear and judge of the appeal, agreeably to the following regulations.
 - 3. The committee shall consist of one representative from each meeting in Great Britain represented in the yearly meeting, with the exception of the meeting against which the appeal is brought, and of any meeting appealing, or to which belongs a subordinate meeting appealing; the representatives of which excepted meeting or meetings shall withdraw previously to the nomination.

Note.-If there be two appeals, the committee thus selected shall be considered as also nominated to hear the second, with similar exception as is provided with regard to the first; and with the addition of a representative from the meeting, or each of the meetings, before excepted: and so on for any number of appeals.

To the Yearly Meeting.

- 4. After the nomination has taken place, the appellant and respondents in each case of appeal shall be called in, the names of the proposed committee shall be read, in their presence, and each party shall be allowed (after having had the opportunity, if desired, of withdrawing a short time for consultation) to object to any of the committee, not exceeding six respectively, but shall not assign any cause for such objection; after which they shall If any of the committee be so objected to, they shall be set aside, but only as to that particular appeal. Their places shall be supplied from the other representatives of the quarterly meetings to which they respectively belong; but in case of there being no representative left from any such quarterly meeting, the deficiency shall be made up by nominating one friend out of each such meeting in alphabetical order, that has not fewer than four representatives present, beginning at any future time with the next meeting in rotation. And any or all of those nominated in the stead of others first selected and set aside as above mentioned, shall themselves be liable to be objected to by either party; in which case a further nomination to supply their places shall be made in like manner as before: but this third shall be a final nomination.
- 5. The committee or committees thus nominated shall be reported to the yearly meeting at its second or third sitting, when all appeals shall be delivered to the committee or committees, in order to be immediately proceeded on; not less than three-fourths of the number appointed for a particular appeal being at any time present thereon.
- 6. All appeals shall be opened and read in the presence of the respective appellants and respondents. In case an appeal shall be found to relate to matter of faith and doctrine, the committee shall, without proceeding further, report accordingly to the yearly meeting; that the said meeting may decide whether to proceed to hear the appeal in the meeting itself, or to refer it again to the committee.
 - 7. In all appeals heard by a committee of the yearly meeting, the appellant shall, after the appeal has been read, be heard in Tothe Yearly Meeting. support thereof, and afterwards the respondents in reply, in the presence of each other, until both parties have been fully and fairly heard; after which the parties shall withdraw previously to the committee's deliberation on the case.

8. When, in the committee, the whole or the greater part of the members present (such members present not being less than the quorum) have agreed in a judgment on the case, a report in writing shall be prepared, which is to be signed, as the report of the committee, by those so uniting in judgment.

If the members so present as above are equally divided in judgment, the report shall be in favour of the party originally appealing.

The committee shall not be expected to assign any reasons for the judgment expressed in their report, and it is recommended that the purport of it be simply the confirming or annulling of the decision of the quarterly meeting.

- 9. The committee shall give notice in writing, to both parties, of the time when it is intended to deliver in their report.
- 10. The report of the committee shall be read in the yearly meeting, in the presence of both parties, if they incline to attend; and, except when the circumstance occurs which forms the subject of the next succeeding section (Sect. 11), and with the exception also of such appeals relating to faith and doctrine, as may come to be opened in the yearly meeting itself, according to the liberty hereafter given (Sect. 12), the judgment expressed in any such report, shall be recorded as the decision of the yearly meeting in the case.
- 11. If, in the case of an appeal not relating to faith and doctrine, in which the disownment of an individual is involved, the report of the committee, confirmatory of the disownment, be signed by less than two-thirds of its number, the individual is to be reinstated in membership.
 - 12. The report of any committee expressing a judgment on the

To the Yearly Meeting. merits of an appeal relating to faith and doctrine, may be objected to by the party against whom it is given, and such party may require the case to be heard by the meeting itself.

13. Whenever an appeal relating to faith and doctrine, comes to be heard in the yearly meeting itself, the following regulations are to be observed:—

First.—The appeal shall be read in the presence of both parties, and the appellant shall then be heard in support of the same, and afterwards the respondents in reply, in the presence of each other, until both parties have been fully and fairly heard.

Second.—In stating and replying, no persons are to be permitted to speak on the case, but those who, as, or for, the appellant, and as respondents, or as original appellant, are immediately concerned in the appeal; except that any friend, (not being a member of a quarterly meeting concerned in the appeal, or of a committee that may have heard it, and reported a judgment on the merits thereof,) who may apprehend it proper for a question to be put to either party, shall have the liberty of requesting that it may be done through the clerk.

Third.—The parties immediately concerned in the appeal shall withdraw previously to the meeting's deliberation on the case, and after they have so withdrawn, or during their absence in consequence of any prior withdrawing, no member of a meeting concerned in the appeal, or of a committee that may have heard it and reported a judgment on the merits thereof, is to be allowed to speak on the subject before the meeting.

Fourth.—When the meeting has come to a conclusion in the case, its decision shall be entered on minute, and then the parties shall be at liberty to come in again and hear it read.

14. In every case a copy of the minute of the yearly meeting, recording its decision therein, shall be sent to each Tothe Yearly party.

VIII. The notice to be given to any monthly or quarterly meeting of an intended appeal, shall be according to the following form, or in words to the like effect:—

To the Monthly [or Quarterly] Meeting of to be held at the day of month, 18.

I hereby give notice, that I intend to appeal to the Quarterly Meeting of [or to the Yearly Meeting] to be held at [or in] the day of month, 18, against your decision in my case.

A. B.

Note.—By inserting the date, this form is adapted either to an original notice of appeal, or to a renewed notice.

General Rules relating to Appeals both to Quarterly Meetings and to the Yearly Meeting.

IX. In all cases of appeal, whether to a quarterly or to the yearly meeting, in which notice and renewed notice shall be given by the appellant, such appellant shall, three weeks at least previously to the time of holding the meeting specified in the first notice, apprize the clerk of the monthly or quarterly meeting appealed against, that the appeal is not about to be then brought.

General Rules.

X. If either of the parties concerned in an appeal, when stating or replying to the case, shall digress into irrelevant matter, it is recommended that the committee or meeting before which the appeal is brought, do, through the medium of the clerk, stop such proceeding, and require that the subject of the appeal be kept to. And no member of a committee or meeting by which any appeal is heard, is to express in the presence of the parties any opinion on the subject or subjects at issue.

XI. If any member of a committee on an appeal, be prevented attending during any part of the time in which the case is proceeded

General Rules. in by the appellant and respondents, he cannot afterwards unite with the rest, either in the further hearing of the case, or in the deliberation upon it, unless with the previous consent of the appellant and respondents.

XII. All committees appointed to hear and judge of an appeal, shall, after having had the case duly laid before them, require the parties to sign an acknowledgment that they have been fully and fairly heard; such acknowledgment to be brought, with the report of the committee, to the meeting appointing it. If either party refuse to sign an acknowledgment of this tenour, the committee in making their report shall give in a statement that the parties have been fully and fairly heard, according to the judgment of at least four-fifths of the members present at the decision; which statement shall, as to any further procedure in the case, have the same effect as an acknowledgment.

XIII. Any person that may think himself, or any meeting that may deem itself, aggrieved, not observing the foregoing rules and regulations, shall lose the right of appeal. And if an appellant shall print his appeal, or any matter relating thereto, or cause to be printed, or be in any way accessary to the printing of the same, such appeal shall not be received by the quarterly or yearly meeting. And if any monthly or quarterly meeting appealed against or the respondents appointed on its behalf, shall print, or cause to be printed, or be in any way accessary to the printing of, any matter respecting an appeal, such respondents and their constituent meeting shall be precluded from being heard in defence of the judgment appealed against; the effect of which (provided the appellant has proceeded regularly) shall be a reversal of such judgment.

XIV. The foregoing rules and regulations shall apply to any meeting, which shall consider itself injured or aggrieved by the decision of any other meeting.

XV. An appellant shall be allowed to avail himself, throughout the course of prosecuting his appeal, of the aid of one or two members of our society, in speaking on the case on his behalf, or in otherwise assisting him, or in conducting the appeal in his stead: but the appellant is not to be himself absent, unless from some reasonable cause approved by the committee, or meeting, hearing the appeal.

General Rules.

XVI. The respondents on behalf of a quarterly meeting, in any case of appeal from a monthly meeting, in which an individual is concerned as original appellant, shall be accompanied by such individual, if he incline to attend; who, so attending, shall have an equal right with them of being heard. If in the committee of the yearly meeting, the decision should be against such respondents, and they should be willing to submit to such decision, the original appellant, shall, nevertheless, in appeals relating to faith and doctrine, have such right as appellants possess under the twelfth section of the preceding seventh rule, of requiring that the matter be opened in the meeting itself; in which case, such person shall appear in the character of appellant, and the friends appointed by the monthly meeting, in that of respondents.

XVII. No appeal that has once been determined by the yearly meeting shall be received a second time. 1727.—1733.—1745.—1787.—1794.—1806.—1813.—1815.—1821.—1822.—1833.

Appeals from Ireland.

The friends of Ireland, by a letter from their last national meeting, and also by their representatives present, have earnestly requested to be excused from attending appeals against them to this meeting, except in matters of faith and principle, wherein they desire not to be excused; but having urged many hardships and inconveniences, which they apprehend must attend their following appeals in other cases, this meeting, upon solid and deliberate consideration of their request, in much brotherly condescension agrees thereto, until some manifest inconvenience shall be found to arise from such exemption. 1760.

Appeals to the General Meeting for Scotland, and from thence to the Yearly Meeting.

In consequence of the local circumstances of friends in Scotland, several variations in the foregoing rules on appeals have been agreed upon and adopted, as applicable to friends in that country. These variations are embodied in the following rules, which are for the future to be observed in the prosecution of all appeals within the general meeting for Scotland and from thence to this meeting, leaving the rules which govern the hearing and judging of appeals to this meeting against the decision of any quarterly or other meeting in England or Wales, in equal force as to the hearing and judging of appeals against the decision of the general meeting of Scotland.

- I. If any person shall after a final decision in his case, (which final decision when disownment takes place, is the issuing of a minute or testimony against him,) think himself injured or aggrieved by the proceedings of Aberdeen monthly meeting in such case, he may appeal to the general meeting for Scotland, when held within the compass of Edinburgh two-months meeting. Notice of such intended appeal is to be given in writing to the monthly meeting within three months after such decision is communicated by or on behalf of such meeting, to the party concerned, or, if, because the party could not be found, or by reason of his having left the kingdom, the decision has not been so communicated, then within two years at the furthest after the issuing of it.
- II. If any person shall, after a final decision in his case, think himself injured or aggrieved by the proceedings of Edinburgh two-months meeting in such case, he may appeal to the general meeting for Scotland when held within the compass of Aberdeen monthly meeting. Notice of such intended appeal is to be given in writing to the two-months meeting not later than the second meeting occurring after such decision is communicated, by, or on behalf of such meeting to the party concerned, or, if, because the party could not be found, or by reason of his having left the kingdom, the decision has not been so communicated, then within two years at the furthest after the issuing of it.
- III. The appeal whether against the decision of Aberdeen monthly meeting, or against that of Edinburgh two-months meeting, is to be brought to the first general meeting, at Edinburgh or Aberdeen respectively, which shall occur after the meeting to which notice of appeal is given—but, if such general meeting at which the appeal is (by either of the preceding rules) to be heard, shall occur within two months from the time at which such notice is presented—the prosecution of the appeal may, if the appellant think right, be deferred to the next following general meeting which is held at the place where the said appeal must be heard. The meeting receiving notice of appeal, shall appoint respondents to act on its behalf, and shall inform the appellant that an appointment has been made. If, in the judgment of the meeting receiving notice of appeal, such notice be given before a final decision in the case, the meeting, instead of appointing respondents, shall send forward to the general meeting a minute stating that a final decision has not been given in the case, and that consequently the appellant has no right of appeal, which minute the general meeting shall, without entering into the case, record as its judgment. But after the final decision of the case, the meeting receiving a notice of appeal shall not be at liberty to omit or delay the appointment of respondents, because it does not deem the case one that admits of appeal or on any other ground.

- IV. The following regulations are to be observed in the conducting of appeals to the general meeting:—
 - 1. The appeal, in writing, and sealed up, shall be delivered to the clerk for the time being, soon after the representatives are called over, with an endorsement simply specifying the appellant, his assistant, or assistants, (if any are intended,) the meeting appealed against, and that appealed to. The indorsement shall be read, and also the minute of the monthly or two-months meeting appointing respondents to act on its behalf. But, if no respondents be appointed, nor any minute produced from the meeting appealed against, informing the general meeting that a final decision has not been given in the case, the general meeting shall, as it may deem best, either at once record a reversal of the decision appealed against, or refer the appeal to a committee to be appointed in the manner pointed out in the two next regulations, who shall hear and judge of the same upon such statements and evidence as may be produced by the appellants alone.
 - 2. When any appeal is so brought as above, the general meeting shall proceed to nominate a committee, of not less than seven nor exceeding twelve disinterested friends, to hear the same, and judge thereof. No member of the meeting appealed against is to be at liberty to take any part in nominating the committee of the general meeting.
 - 3. After the nomination has taken place, the appellants and respondents shall be called in, the names of the proposed committee shall be read in their presence, and each party shall be allowed (after having had the opportunity, if desired, of withdrawing a short time for consultation) to object to any of the committee, not exceeding three if the committee consist of eleven or twelve members, not exceeding two if it consist of nine or ten members, and not exceeding one if it consist of less than nine members. In objecting, no cause shall be assigned. The place or places of the friend, or friends, thus objected to, shall not be supplied by a fresh nomination, except such fresh nomination can be made with the consent of both parties.
 - 4. The appointment of the committee being completed, a time and place shall be fixed for their meeting, of which due notice shall be given to the parties concerned. On the principle of the importance of promoting the speedy settlement of differences, the time shall be as early an one as can with convenience be chosen.
 - 5. The committee (not less than five of whom are to be a quorum) shall, when met, proceed to open and read the appeal in the presence of the appellant and respondents. In case an appeal, when so read, shall be found by the committee to relate to faith and doctrine, the committee shall, without proceeding further, report in writing to the general meeting that such is the case, and the general meeting, upon receiving this report, shall not enter upon any consideration of the appeal, but refer it at once to be heard by the yearly meeting, and shall then make an appointment of respondents to act on behalf of the meeting appealed against, and shall immediately inform the appellant of such reference and appointment. In case such reference of an appeal to the yearly meeting is made by and from the general meeting, when held within the compass of Aberdeen monthly meeting, such reference shall be made to the next following yearly meeting. But in case such reference of an appeal to the yearly meeting is made by and from the general meeting, when held within the compass of Edinburgh two-months meeting, such reference shall be made, not to the yearly meeting of that year, but to that of the following year, unless both parties agree in bringing it, without delay, to the yearly meeting.

- 6. In all appeals heard by a committee of the general meeting, the appellant shall, after the appeal has been read, be heard in support thereof, and afterwards the respondents in reply in the presence of each other, until both parties have been fully and fairly heard; after which the parties shall withdraw previous to the committee's deliberation on the case.
- 7. When in the committee, the whole or the greater part of the members present (such members present not being less than the quorum) have agreed in a judgment on the case, a report in writing shall be prepared, which is to be signed as the report of the committee by those so uniting in judgment. If the members so present as above are equally divided in judgment, the report shall be in favour of the appealing party.

The committee shall not be expected to assign any reasons for the judgment expressed in their report, and it is recommended that the purport of it be simply the confirming or annulling of the decision of the meeting appealed against.

- 8. If, in the case of an appeal not relating to faith and doctrine, brought by an individual in consequence of his discomment, the report of the committee confirmatory of the decision of the meeting appealed against, be signed by less than four-fifths of the members present in the committee when the judgment is come to, such judgment is to be reversed.
- 9. If either of the parties concerned in an appeal when stating or replying, to the case, shall digress into irrelevant matter, it is recommended that the committee do, through the medium of the clerk, stop such proceedings, and require that the subject of the appeal be kept to. And no member of the committee is to express, in the presence of the parties, any opinion on the subject, or subjects at issue.

- 10. If any member of the committee, be prevented attending, during any part of the time in which the case is proceeded in by the appellant and respondents, he cannot afterwards unite with the rest, either in the further hearing of the case, or in the deliberation upon it, unless with the previous consent of the appellant and respondents.
- Scotland.
- 11. The committee shall, after having had the case duly laid before them, require the parties to sign an acknowledgment that they have been fully and fairly heard, such acknowledgment to be brought with the report of the committee to the general meeting. If either party refuse to sign an acknowledgment of this tenour, the committee, in making their report, shall give in a statement, that the parties have been fully and fairly heard, according to the judgment of at least four-fifths of the members present at the decision; which statement shall, as to any further procedure in the case, have the same effect as an acknowledgment.
- 12. The committee shall give notice in writing to both parties, of the time when it is intended to deliver in the report, which is to be at an adjournment of the general meeting, to be held at the place at which the appeal was heard.
- 13. The report of the committee shall be read in the general meeting in the presence of both parties, if they incline to attend; and the judgment expressed in any such report shall be recorded as the decision of the general meeting in the case.
- 14. In every case a copy of the minute of the general meeting recording its decision therein, shall be sent to each party.
- V. If any person shall think himself injured or aggrieved by the judgment of the general meeting given against him, he may appeal from such judgment to the yearly meeting, in which case, notice in writing of his intention so to appeal is to be given by him to the next general meeting which occurs after such judgment is given, and whether the same be held within the compass of Aberdeen monthly meeting, or of Edinburgh two-months meeting.
- VI. The general meeting receiving such notice shall appoint respondents to act on its behalf, and shall inform the appellant that an appointment has been made.

If notice of appeal be given to the general meeting relating to a case in which the said meeting has been informed, by minute of the meeting appealed against, that a final decision has not been given, the general meeting, instead of appointing respondents, shall send forward to the yearly meeting a minute stating that a final decision has not been given in the case, and that consequently the appellant has no right of appeal: which minute the yearly meeting shall, without entering into the case, record as its judgment. But the general meeting shall not be at liberty to omit the appointment of respondents on any other ground.

VII. The notice to be given to the monthly meeting of Aberdeen, the two-months meeting of Edinburgh, and to the general meeting for Scotland, shall be according to the following form, or in words to the like effect:—

Scotland.

To the Monthly Meeting of Aberdeen,

The Two-Months Meeting of Edinburgh,

The General Meeting of Scotland, to be held the day of month, 18.

I hereby give notice, that I intend to appeal to the General Meeting of Scotland, [or to the Yearly Meeting] to be held at [or in] the day of month, 18, against your decision in my case.

A. B.

VIII. If any person, having given notice of his intention of appealing, is prevented bringing his appeal to the yearly meeting immediately succeeding such notice, he may continue his appeal to the next following yearly meeting, on renewing his notice in writing to the general meeting at any time preceding the second yearly meeting, subject however to the next following rule, whether such general meeting is held within the compass of Aberdeen monthly meeting, or of Edinburgh two-months meeting. In this case, however, the appeal shall not be received unless satisfactory reasons for the delay be stated to the yearly meeting, or to its committee on the appeal.

IX. In all cases of appeal to the yearly meeting from a decision of the general meeting when held within the compass of Aberdeen monthly meeting, in which notice of appeal shall have been given, the appellant, in case he determine to defer presenting it till the following year shall, three weeks at least previously to the time of holding the next yearly meeting which occurs after the decision, apprize the clerk of the general meeting that the appeal is not about to be brought to that yearly meeting; but in case of appeal to the yearly meeting from a decision of the general meeting when held within the compass of Edinburgh two-months meeting, in which notice of appeal shall have been given, the appellant shall be required to apprize the clerk of the general meeting within three days from the time at which such decision is recorded, in case he determines not to present his appeal to the yearly meeting which next occurs after the decision is given.

X. All rules or regulations which govern the hearing and judging of appeals by the yearly meeting against the decision of any quarterly meeting in England, are to remain in equal force as to hearing and judging of appeals against the decision of the general meeting of Scotland.

XI. An appellant shall be allowed to avail himself throughout the course of prosecuting his appeal, of the aid of one or two members of our society in speaking to the case on his behalf, or in otherwise assisting him, or in conducting the appeal in his stead; but the appellant is not to be himself absent, unless from some reasonable cause approved by the committee, or meeting hearing the appeal.

XII. Any person that may think himself, or any meeting that may deem itself aggrieved, not observing the foregoing rules and regulations, shall lose the right of appeal. And if an appellant shall print his appeal, or any matter relating thereto, or cause to be printed, or be in any way accessary to the printing of the same, such appeal shall not be received by the general meeting. And if the meeting appealed against, or the respondents appointed on its behalf, shall print, or cause to be printed, or be in any way accessary to the printing of any matter respecting an appeal, such respondents, and their constituent meeting shall be precluded from being heard in defence of the judgment appealed against; the effect of which (provided the appellant has proceeded regularly) shall be a reversal of such judgment.

XIII. The foregoing rules and regulations shall apply to any meeting, which may consider itself injured or aggrieved by the decision of any other meeting.

XIV. The respondents on behalf of the general meeting in any case of appeal to the yearly meeting, in which an individual is concerned as original appellant, shall be accompanied by such individual if he inclines to attend, who, so attending shall have an equal right of being heard.

XV. No appeal that has once been determined by the yearly meeting shall be received a second time. 1833

ARBITRATION.

General advice.

It is advised, that, in all cases of controversy and difference, the persons concerned therein, either speedily compose the difference between themselves, or make choice of some faithful, unconcerned, impartial friends, to determine the same; and that all friends take heed of being parties with one another. 1692. P. E.—1833.

- Advised, that no friends go from the order of truth, and former advice, to sue one another at law; but that all differences among friends be speedily ended by themselves, or by reference, and not prolonged or delayed. 1696.
- Let friends every where be careful that all differences about outward things be speedily composed, either between themselves, or by arbitrators; and it would be well that friends were at all times ready to submit their differences, even with persons not of our religious persuasion, to arbitration, rather than to contend at law. "Hear the causes between your brethren, and judge righteously between every man and his brother, and the stranger that is with him." 1737. W. E.—1833.
- Whereas it sometimes happeneth, to the hurt of truth, and grief of many friends, that differences about outward things do arise amongst some professing truth; it is therefore by this meeting thought convenient, and advised, that when any friend or friends shall hear of any such difference betwixt any friends in that meeting to which they do belong, that they forthwith speak to, and tenderly advise, the persons between whom the difference is, to make a speedy end thereof; and if such friends do not comply with their advice, that then they take to them one or two friends more, and again exhort them to end their difference. 1697.

The following method is to be observed in proceeding in Arbitrations.

I. Each party having chosen one or two indifferent, impartial, and judicious friends, those so chosen are to agree upon a third, or a fifth Rules for the conducting of friend, unless the parties first agree in the nomination, whose name is Arbitrations. to be inserted with the others in the bonds of arbitration, or other written agreement.

- II. The arbitrators so appointed, or the majority of them, are to fix the time and place of their meeting.
- III. The arbitrators are not to consider themselves as advocates for the party by whom they were chosen, but men, whose incumbent duty it is to judge righteously, fearing the Lord. They are to shun all previous information respecting the case, that they may not become biassed in their judgments, before they hear both parties together.
- IV. The parties are to enter into written engagements, or bonds in the usual form, if either of them require it, to abide by the award of the arbitrators, or a majority of them, to be made in a limited time.
- V. Every meeting of the arbitrators is to be made known to the parties concerned, until they have been fully heard; nor are there to be any separate, private meetings between some of the arbitrators, or with one party separate from the other on the business referred to them; and no representation of the case of one party, either by writing or otherwise, is to be admitted, without its being fully made known to the other, and, if required, a copy to be delivered to the other party.
- VI. The arbitrators are to hear both parties fully, in the presence of each other, whilst either hath any fresh matter to offer, until a certain time to be limited by the arbitrators. Let no evidence or witness be withheld or rejected.
- VII. If there should appear to the arbitrators, or to one or more of them, to be any doubtful point of law, the majority of them are to Rules for the agree upon a case, and consult counsel thereupon. The arbitrators are not required to express in the award their reasons for their decision. One writing of the award is to be delivered to each party.

> VIII. Arbitrators are to propose to the parties, that they should give an acknowledgment in writing, before the award be made, that they have been candidly and fully heard.

> Matters of defamation are not subjects to be arbitrated, until the defamation is proved, and that some injury is sustained by the defamed in his trade or property; and in that case, the damage should be submitted to arbitration. 1782.—1833.

6 General Rules.

If any friend shall refuse speedily to end a difference in which he is a party concerned, or to refer it as before advised, and if the overseers or other friends who have given advice on the subject, being of opinion that such case of difference should be referred to arbitration, have unavailingly endeavoured to effect the same, the case should then be reported to the monthly meeting to which the friend belongs; and if such meeting is also of the judgment that the case ought to be so referred, and the friend shall continue to refuse so to do, the monthly meeting, after the exercise of due care, and with a just regard to the interests of the complaining party, is to express its disunity with his conduct, and may proceed to disown him as a member of our Society. 1697.—1828.—1833.

7 When cases of difference are referred, and judgment and award are made, signed, and given thereupon, the parties concerned are to stand to and perform the said award, which they have bound themselves to perform; and, if any one shall refuse so to do, the monthly meeting to which such person doth belong, upon notice thereof to them given, shall admonish him thereunto; and if, after admonition, he persist to refuse, the meeting is then to proceed to disownment. 1697.—1833.

If any friends that shall be chosen to hear and determine any 8 difference, (after having accepted thereof, and the parties differing are become bound to stand to their determination,) shall decline and refuse to stand and act as arbitrators, the person or persons so refusing, are to be required to give the reasons of their refusal unto the monthly meeting to which they belong; and, if that meeting shall not esteem those reasons sufficient justly to excuse them, the meeting is to press them to stand to what they have accepted; and if, after such admonition, they shall continue to refuse to stand as arbitrators, the meeting may proceed to disown them, or either of them, as members of our religious society. 1697.—1833.

General Rules.

It is the advice of this meeting, that persons differing about outward things, do, as little as may be, trouble ministering friends with being arbitrators in such cases. 1697.

This meeting concludes, with respect to the appointing of arbitrators in cases of differences between friends, that a person, or persons, not of our religious society, may be chosen to the office, if both parties unite in agreeing thereto. The concurrence of the overseers, or of the monthly meeting, is also to be had, if the case is under their or its notice. It is, however, the judgment of this meeting, that the long established practice of confining the choice to friends, should, as much as circumstances will admit, be still observed. 1828.

It is the sense and judgment of this meeting, that, if any member of our religious society shall arrest, sue, or implead at law, any other member of our religious society, such person doth therein depart from our religious principles, and the known way thereof, and that he acts contrary thereunto, and ought to be dealt with for the same by the meeting to which he belongs; and if he shall not give satisfaction to the meeting for such his disorderly proceeding, by condemning it, and himself therein, that then he be disowned by the meeting. Or if the party so sued or arrested, taking with him, or, if under confinement, sending one or two friends, to the person who goes to law, shall complain thereof, the said person shall be required immediately to stay proceedings; and if he Rules which regard proceedings in does not comply with such requisition, the monthly meeting to which he belongs shall disown him, if the case require it. 1697.—1782.—1833.

If any members of our society, after having contracted debts, or otherwise become legally responsible, should prove so unworthy, as to remove themselves, or to remove or appropriate property or effects, in a way whereby the ends of justice may be defeated, it is hereby declared, that the last preceding rule, which prohibits friends from suing or arresting one another, is not intended to prevent such persons from being proceeded against, at law, or in equity, as the nature of the case may require; subject to the provision in the regulation next following. 1720.—1801.—1828.

The several quarterly meetings are desired periodically to appoint a committee for the whole, or if convenience require a division into districts, two or more committees for such several districts of any such meeting, with power to any committee so appointed, to grant, in its discretion, liberty for proceeding at law or in equity, in cases such as those described in the last preceding regulation. Such liberty to be granted in any particular case by the committee or committees within the limits of which the individual or individuals complained against, may be a member or members. Any such committee to be summoned at the instance of the complaining party, by any one of its members, and not less than three members to be present, to enable the committee to act. 1828.

This meeting agrees that, in cases of dispute about property, in which legal difficulties obviously present themselves, the parties may, with mutual consent, and with the approbation of a committee or committees, appointed under the last preceding regulation, submit such disputes to the decision of a court of law or equity. If all the parties are members within the district of the same committee, that committee is to be, of course, the approving one; if not, the approbation is to be obtained of the committees within the limits of which each party (or any one individual on each side) is a member. Any such committee is to be summoned, in the cases under this regulation, at the instance of either party, by any one of its members; and not less than three to be the number competent to act. 1720.—1828.

Rules which regard proceedings in law.

This meeting is of the judgment that the rules for the settlement of differences about property, are not to be considered as binding upon trustees or upon executors acting for others in the performance of their duties as such; nor upon any friends acting on behalf of, and so as to incur a legal responsibility to, persons not of our religious society. 1828.

BOOKS.

Advice against infidel publications:

This meeting, considering that some in the present age do endeavour, as well by certain books, as by a licentious conversation, to lessen and decry the true faith in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ—even that precious faith once delivered to his saints, which by the mercy of God is also bestowed upon us—doth therefore earnestly advise and exhort all parents, masters and mistresses of families, and guardians of minors, that they prevent, as much as in them lies, their children, servants, and youth, under their respective care and tuition, from having or reading books or papers that have any tendency to prejudice the profession of the Christian religion, to create in them the least doubt or question concerning the truth of the Holy Scriptures, or those necessary and saving truths declared in them; lest their minds should be poisoned thereby, and a foundation laid for the greatest evils. 1723. P. E.

also against novels and other pernicious books. This meeting, being sorrowfully affected, under a consideration of the hurtful tendency of reading plays, romances, novels, and other pernicious books, earnestly recommends to every member of our society, to discourage and suppress the same; and particularly to acquaint all booksellers, under our name, with the painful anxiety occasioned to this meeting, by a report of some instances of selling or lending such books, intreating them to avoid a practice so inconsistent with the purity of the Christian religion. And friends are desired to be careful in the choice of all books, in which their children read, seeing there are many, under the specious titles of the promotion of religion and morality, containing sentiments repugnant to the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. 1764.

There having been, for many years past, a great circulation of vain, idle, and irreligious books and pamphlets, tending to lead the mind Advice away from sober and serious duty, to infect the inexperienced and un-per reading, wary with notions which promote infidelity and corruption, and to alienate their attention from the Spirit of God, under whose influence and holy keeping alone is safety; we earnestly request that parents, and all others who have youth under their tuition, will keep a constant eye over them, and as much as possible guard them against, and prevent them from, wasting their precious time upon such unprofitable and pernicious reading; that they inure them to the frequent and diligent reading of the sacred writings, which through divine goodness are afforded to us, for our "instruction in righteousness," and, "that we, through patience, and comfort of the Scriptures, might have hope."1 1769. P. E.

against improand in favour of the Scrip-tures,

We earnestly recommend to all, the frequent perusal of the Holy Scriptures, according to repeated exhortations; and we at this time and the writings of our also recommend the writings of our faithful predecessors, and the accounts that are published of their experiences, labours, travels, and sufferings in the cause of Christ. Those hours of leisure would be profitably employed in this manner, which are often wasted in reading light and trivial publications, calculated to gratify the vain imagination, and to feed that disposition that is always hankering after some new thing. 1789. ing, provided they give notice to the meeting for sufferings of such intention. This notice is not required in the case of small tracts: nevertheless it is not intended hereby to sanction any infringement on the copyright of individuals. 1672.—1679.—1813.

It is agreed that the meeting for sufferings do distribute in such manner, and to such parts of the world as they think proper, the approved writings of members of our society, and such other works as accord with our religious principles, and which that meeting may think it desirable to circulate. 1732,—1833.

As it is of great importance that members of our society, and others, should be invited to a perusal of the approved writings of friends, it is desired that monthly meetings would request their particular meetings to revise the catalogues of their libraries once in the year, and report their having done so to the monthly meeting; and then to consider what additions may be suitably made, as well as the best means of giving publicity to the collection, promoting the circulation of them, and affording ready access to the books to all who may wish to peruse them, whether members of our religious society or not. 1821.—1833.

Monthly meetings may furnish their libraries, or those of their particular meetings, out of the stock of this meeting, at prime cost: and it is recommended that suitable measures be taken for promoting the establishment and proper use of libraries within the respective monthly meetings, where that is not already done.

The meeting for sufferings is left at liberty to employ the national stock in purchasing and printing such works as it may think best adapted for the supply of friends. 1828.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

Advised to walk wisely and circumspectly towards all men, in the peaceable spirit of Christ Jesus, giving no offence or occasions to those cumspect conin outward government, nor way to any controversies, heats, and dis-the Governtractions of this world, about the kingdoms of it; but to pray for the good of all, and submit all to that divine power and wisdom, which rules over the kingdoms of men. 1689.

It is advised that friends be circumspect, and not make it their business to discourse of the outward powers, but to discourage all such things: and although we gave plain and Christian advice and admonition last year, for friends to beware of all airy discourses, disputes, and controversies, about the kingdoms of this world; that all might walk circumspectly and wisely, in subjection to the divine and overruling power and wisdom of God; yet contrarywise, to our grief, we have heard too much complaint and reflections, occasioned by some who have not observed a true bridle to their tongues, but have been too busy, loose, and airy, in discourses of this nature; and therefore we do exhort and admonish all such in the fear of God, and as they have respect unto His holy truth and innocent people, and their own safety, to be watchful, careful, and circumspect for the time to come: that none may suffer as busy-bodies, or bring suffering or reproach, or cause jealousies to be raised upon or against others that are innocent and singly desire the preservation, safety, and peace of all friends, in truth and innocency towards all men. 1690. W. E.

To live peaceably and inoffensively as a Christian Society.

This meeting was well satisfied, and very glad, in the sense it had of the innocency and peaceableness of the body of our friends in general towards the civil government; under which we live, and enjoy our present liberty in the peaceable exercise of our tender consciences towards Almighty God; to whom we are humbly thankful for the same; being obliged to demean ourselves not only as a grateful people, but, as a Christian society, to live peaceably and inoffensively under the present government, as we have always done under the various revolutions of government, ever since we were a people, according to our ancient principle and practice; in which we hope we shall ever persevere, according as we are enjoined by our peaceable Saviour Jesus Christ, we being a people clear, in the sight of God, from all evil designs, plots, and conspiracies whatever, and hope we shall continue a people always quiet in the land, having nothing but love and good-will to all men. For which end we earnestly desire, that a care may not be wanting among you, for the preservation of our whole society, in that innocent life and peaceable conversation, which is agreeable to our Christian principle and profession; wherein we have from the beginning found our safety and peace with God, and Him to be our defence; being fully persuaded, that this our ancient Christian testimony, publicly owned among us, none can gainsay, nor any faithful friends can ever decline; being assured that the Lord will, in his own due time, remove all offences, and causeless jealousies and reproaches, tending to cloud our innocency, and will set his own power, and the peaceable kingdom of his dear Son, over all. 1692. W. E.

As we have, in common with other protestant dissenters, been favoured by government with the enjoyment of our religious liberties, and, in an especial manner, relieved by the legislature in several cases which peculiarly concern us as a people; we therefore think ourselves obliged earnestly to advise friends, that they be particularly careful to behave with all dutifulness and gratitude; and especially to discountenance every indecent mark of dissatisfaction in word or writing, relating to the government. 1730. P. E.

We think it incumbent upon us to exhort friends in every place, not only to demean themselves as becomes good and faithful subjects, in word and conduct; but also to promote the like sentiments of duty contentions. and affection among those over whom their influence may extend; and that they avoid being ensuared by the animosities of contending parties, or any thing unbecoming the stability and uprightness of our profession, and incompatible with the pure and peaceable spirit of our holy head, the Lord Jesus Christ. 1769. P. E.

We trust we are called to show forth to the world in life and practice, that the blessed reign of the Messiah, the Prince of Peace, is begun; and we doubt not but it will proceed, till it attain its completion in the earth: when, according to the prophecies of Isaiah and Micah, "nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Influenced by these principles, we cannot consistently join with such as form combinations of a hostile nature against any; much less in opposition to those providentially placed, either in sovereign or subordinate authority; nor can we unite with, or encourage, such as revile and asperse them: for it is written, "Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people." 2 1775. P. E.

We observe, with great satisfaction, from the accounts received, that friends are generally careful not to defraud the king in any branch of Fidelitytothe his revenues, nor to deal in goods clandestinely imported: we most payment of his revenue. earnestly exhort the same care may be continued with the utmost diligence, and that friends keep clear of purchasing any such goods, either for sale or for private use; from motives of gratitude to the government, and justice to our fellow-subjects. For though we cannot, for conscience sake, actively comply with some things enjoined by human laws, yet the Holy Scriptures require that we should "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's," and be punctual in the payment of every tribute, which we can justly do, without acting in opposition to that

Fidelity to the sacred illumination bestowed upon us by the Father of Lights; not only paymentofhis to teach, but also to enable us to perform, every duty with uprightness revenue. and integrity both to God, and to those who, in the course of his providence, are placed in authority. 1757. P. E.

- 18 In order to promote an increasing care in these respects, we intreat all duly to consider that by being accessary, in any degree, to the continuance of such unlawful practices, even by buying for private use only, encouragement is given to perjury and bloodshed, the frequent attendants of smuggling. 1786. W. E.
 - 9 As our testimony hath ever been, and still is, against defrauding the king of any of his customs, duties, or excise, buying goods, reasonably suspected to be run, or doing any other thing whatsoever to the injury of the king's revenues, or of the common good, or to the hurt of the fair trader; so if any person or persons under our name and profession shall be known to be guilty of these, or any such crimes and offences, we do earnestly advise the respective monthly meetings to which such offenders belong, that they reprehend, and if needful, testify against such offenders. 1719. P. E.—1833.

10 Unstamped receipts.

The writing in books, or on invoices, or other unstamped paper, or the accepting, of terms intended to convey the substance of what should be written on receipt stamps, is illegal, and is an evasion unworthy of the character of a member of our society. Where friends observe, in any of their members, deviations in this respect from that uprightness which becomes us in every part of our conduct, we desire that they will extend tender, private admonition on the subject; which will, we believe, be found the most effectual means of removing this occasion of concern.

11 Elections.

The corrupt and immoral practices, which have frequently attended public elections, are a scandal to the Christian name, and would be very reproachful to any of our profession: wherefore, if any amongst us, should be prevailed upon to become managers or agents in elections, let such be visited, and laboured with, in order to convince them of the hurtful and reproachful consequences that may ensue. 1774. W. E.

Elections.

The principle of truth calls us out of contention, it even seeks not its own end by means productive of animosity; much less therefore should its professors indulge themselves in strife, for objects of a perishing nature: such are the desires of power and advancement, which are too often the incitements to contested elections; and were even the purpose purer, we know the means are polluted. We know that drunkenness, riot, and confusion, are frequently attendant on these contests; and how can any in profession with us, expose their minds, which it is their duty to keep unspotted of the world, to such contamination? 1790. W. E.

The awful subject of the punishment of death has at this time deeply impressed our minds. We believe that where the precepts and spirit of our great Lord and Lawgiver have a complete ascendency, they will lead to the abolition of this practice. The situation of those who have forfeited their liberty by the commission of crime, has also claimed our consideration. We regard such as objects of great compassion, and desire that they may receive the kind assistance of friends who may have it in their power to help them; but this should be coupled with due prudence and discretion, and with that respect to the laws of our country, and to those who administer them, which we have ever believed it our duty to enjoin. 1818. P. E.

CONDUCT AND CONVERSATION.

l Christ our Sanctuary.

MAY all keep and walk in Christ Jesus, the Sanctuary: for in Him are peace and safety, who destroys the destroyer, the enmity, and adversary. For Christ is your Sanctuary in this day of storm and tempest, in whom you have rest and peace. And, therefore, whatever storms or tempests do or should arise within or without, Christ your Sanctuary is over them all, who has all power in heaven and earth given unto Him; and none is able to pluck his lambs and sheep out of his Father's or his hand, who is the true Shepherd; neither are any able to hurt the hair of your head, except it be permitted by his power for your trial. And therefore rejoice in his power, the Lamb of God who hath the victory over all, both within and without. by whom all things were made, and is over all; the first and the last; the Amen; and the faithful and true witness in all his, males and females; the heavenly rock and foundation for all the believers in the light and children of the day to build upon, to stand sure. 1683. P. E.

Against the spirit of the world, and its fashions:

We earnestly desire that friends every where be put in mind to keep under the leadings and guidance of the Spirit of Truth in their outward habits and fashions thereof; not suffering the spirit of the world to get over them, in a lust to be like unto it in things useless and superfluous; lest it prevail upon them, by giving a little way to it, till it leads them from the simplicity and plainness that become the Gospel; and so from one vain liberty to another, till they come to lose the blessed liberty that is in Christ; into which they were in measure redeemed; and fall back into the bondage of the world's spirit, and grow up into the liberty of the flesh with the lust and concupiscence thereof; and so lose both their name and place in the truth, as too many have done. 1688. P. E.

Advised, in God's holy fear to watch against, and keep out the spirit and corrupt friendship of the world; and that no fellowship may be also against the unnecesheld or had with the unfruitful works of darkness, nor therein with the sary frequenting of taverns. workers thereof:--and to avoid unnecessary frequenting of taverns, alehouses, all looseness, excess, and unprofitable and idle discourses, mis-spending their precious time and substance to the dishonour of truth, and scandal of our holy profession. 1691. W. E.

Let us all walk with much circumspection, fear, and humility before the Lord, under a sense of our present outward liberty, and the Un serving the Lordinthe temporal mercies that have for some years attended the same; that our love and service for the Lord, and his holy truth and church, may have the preference of our worldly business in our thoughts, lest we should incur his displeasure, for an ungrateful neglect of our duty and thankfulness to Him; for it has sometimes pleased the Lord to deprive his people of the favours they abuse; though He is a God slow to anger, and of long suffering towards his children. 1707. P. E.

Let the Christian duty of visiting the sick be timely remembered and practised; it having often left comfort, ease, and sweetness upon the On visiting the sick. spirits of many, to their very end. 1710. P. E.

On following

Christ.

The Lord is one, and his name, power, and Spirit, one; and He hath called us to be one, in charity, in principle, and practice. us all therefore diligently follow and pursue the same, according to the degrees of that Divine grace, wisdom, and understanding given us of God, through the dear Son of his love, Jesus Christ our only Mediator. And, let us all diligently follow Him, and his example, in his Divine light and Spirit, wherein Satan, the adversary, the devil, the murderer, and divider hath no place; that the power of Christ Jesus, in whom the prince of the world hath nothing, may reign over all for ever; to whose name and power every knee must bow, and tongue confess. We pray God that friends every where may truly reverence his name and power, and be mindful of his kingdom and government over all. 1715. P. E.

CONDUCT AND CONVERSATION.

7 On bowing by way of salutation.

Advised against a declension crept in among us, by unbecoming gestures, in cringing and bowing the body by way of salutation which ought not to be taught or countenanced. 1718. W. E.

8 On circumspect conduct at inns. It is earnestly recommended to all friends, resorting to any of our annual or other meetings, to be very careful at their inns, or other places where they may lodge or converse, to be prudent in all manner of behaviour, both in public and private; avoiding all intemperance in eating and drinking, and likewise foolish jesting, or any undue liberty whatsoever; that our conversation, seasoned with the fear of God, may appear correspondent to our profession, and answer the witness of God in others. 1731. W. E.—1801.

9 On watchful conduct at all times. Friends are also advised to be careful of their conduct at all times, and on all occasions, that no stumbling-block be laid in the way of honest inquirers, nor offence given to tender young convinced friends. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Let us walk wisely towards those that are without, as well as those within; let our moderation and prudence, as well as truth and justice, appear to all men, and in all things, in trading and commerce, in speech and communication, in eating and drinking, in habit and furniture; and, through all, in a meek, lowly, quiet, spirit; that as we profess to be a spiritually-minded people, we may appear to be such as, being bounded by the cross of Christ, show forth the power of that divine principle we make profession of, by a conversation every way agreeable thereunto. 1731. P. E.

10 Against vain company. Seeing it is evident that evil communications corrupt good manners, we recommend with much affection to our young friends, that they be very careful to avoid all such company, as by a light and vain conversation would tend to alienate their minds from the love of virtue and sobriety. 1734. P. E.

And, dear friends, in order that as we have received Christ, so we may walk in Him, in all holiness and godliness of conversation, we earnestly exhort, that ye hold fast the profession of the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, without wavering; both in respect to his outward coming in the flesh, his sufferings, death, resurrection, ascension, mediation, and intercession at the right hand of the Father; and to the inward manifestation of his grace and Holy Spirit in our hearts, powerfully working in the soul of man, to the subduing of every evil affection and lust, and to the purifying of our consciences from dead works to serve the living God; and that through the virtue and efficacy of this most holy faith, ye may become strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. 1736. P. E.

On faith in

It is with much grief and concern, that we observe in some a declension from the way of righteousness and truth, as well as from the light of the light of the plainness of habit, and simplicity of speech and behaviour, which were so conspicuous in our early friends, and many of their offspring. This declension, we apprehend, arises from a disregard to the divine light and truth they have often been recommended to, as the regulator of their words and actions. By a careful, conscientious regard to this, the holy men in all ages obtained a good report; and our ancients, and many of their immediate offspring, were comely in the eyes of the nation for their solid deportment, and religious regard to their words and actions: a godly fear rested upon their minds, that the precious truth and principle which they professed, and felt the blessed effects of, might not suffer reproach from their misconduct. The like holy concern now would tend to regulate our youth. This would instruct them to avoid all pride and affectation, and endue them with humility, modesty, and virtue, which recommend to the favour of God, and a good esteem among men. A religious regard to the principle of light and truth, God's witness in the mind and heart of man, ever produces the most beneficial effects, as well to society in general, as to every one in particular. This would introduce universal love, peace, and concord, among mankind. This would sweeten the bitter spirit, mollify and

We do therefore most earnestly recommend a strict attention to this holy and divine principle, to friends every where, and in a particular manner to the youth of the present generation. 1736. P. E.

13 On the value of brokenness of spirit.

Let none be ashamed of the tendering power of the Lord, but yield to the operation of his Word which is as a fire to burn up, and as a hammer to break in pieces. It was by this that our ancients became a bright and shining people. The Lord himself hath declared his approbation of an humble and contrite state and condition of soul; so that none need to be ashamed of it. "Thus saith the Lord, the heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool: where is the house that ye build unto me? and where is the place of my rest? For all those things hath mine hand made, and all those things have been, saith the Lord: but to this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word." And the royal prophet says, "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrife heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."2 1739. P. E.

14 On watchfulness and humility. Beware of that wisdom which descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, and puffeth up the mind; but be ye, like our great pattern the Lord Jesus, meek and lowly in heart, not seeking your own glory, but the honour of Him that hath called you. Be ready to every good office of love, even to the least of Christ's disciples, and He will esteem it as done to Himself: delight to encourage those who are honest and sincere in heart, and to strengthen the feeble-minded under their trials and conflicts; so shall ye become as nursing-fathers and nursing-mothers in the church of God, and be qualified with wisdom from above to administer suitably to the conditions of others, to the

And, dear friends, under a consideration of the subtle humility. and continual assaults of the enemy of our souls, we find it necessary to put you in mind, that whatever your advancement in the work of religion, or your services in the church, may have been, you have still as great need as ever to dwell in an humble state of watchfulness. Some, whom the Lord hath favoured with the influences of his love, while their hearts remained low and humble in his sight, have, by giving way to the subtle temptations of the enemy, under the specious pretence of enlargement and freedom of spirit, become exalted in their minds, gradually declined from their first love, and from that tender regard and care which once rested upon their minds towards God; and by an unguarded conduct have lost their esteem and service in the church, and brought dishonour on the blessed truth which they had long professed. "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall." 1743. P. E.

your good example, and the gravity and circumspection of your conduct and behaviour, minister matter of just rebuke to those who know not a bridle to their tongues, and who seem not sufficiently aware, that "in the multitude of words there wanteth not sin." 1755. P. E.

17 On Christian simplicity in conduct.

Our concern is to revive a truth which is worthy of general remembrance, that no affectation of singularity was the cause of a demeanour both civil and religious in our forefathers (or in the faithful of this day) different in many respects from the conduct of those among whom we dwell; but they, beholding the vanity, unprofitableness, and insincerity of the salutations, customs, and fashions of the world, and observing the example of our blessed Saviour and that of his followers, with the frequent testimonies recorded in holy writ to the necessity of a selfdenying life and conversation, together with the law and the testimony revealed in their hearts, retained in view the injunction of the apostle, not to be conformed to this world, but to be transformed by the renewing of the mind, that we "may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." May an uprightness of heart, as in the sight of God, ever attend this simplicity of appearance, that none, by a conduct inconsistent therewith, may furnish occasion for the testimony to be evil spoken of, or despised. 1761. P. E.

18 On waiting before the Lord, and on unprofitable conversation. Frequent waiting in stillness on the Lord, for the renewal of strength, keeps the mind at home in its proper place and duty, and out of all unprofitable association and converse, whether amongst those of our own, or other professions. Much hurt may accrue to the religious mind by long and frequent conversation on temporal matters, especially by interesting ourselves too much in them; for there is a leaven therein, which, being suffered to prevail, indisposes and benumbs the soul, and prevents its frequent ascendings in living aspirations towards the Fountain of eternal life. 1770. But it is the peculiar property of many of the contagious vices and vanities, with which these countries abound, that they lull to security the incautious, even though once aroused; and point their infection at the well-being of the soul. By what means, then, shall we expect preservation? Our belief, dear friends, is, that it will depend on a frequent recurrence to our first principle: even to the saving power of Christ Jesus our Lord, revealed in the "This," said our Redeemer when personally on earth; "is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."2 But this, friends, is no trivial nor momentary acquirement. Many of you know that it must be waited for in singleness of heart; and that the important pursuit of this heavenly knowledge should regulate the tenour of our lives. Where,

Against the vices and vanities of the world. then, judge ye, would any find leisure for those amusements, in which some in profession with us, are reported to waste much of their time? This meeting has repeatedly testified against vain sports, and places of diversion, as so many allurements tending to draw the mind from its watch, and to lay it open to further temptation. The best recreation of a Christian is the relief of distress; and his chief delight to promote the knowledge, and to exalt the glory, of his heavenly master: and this is most effectually done, under his holy influence, by a life of faith, purity, and general benevolence. False principles too, as well as wrong practices, may have their advocates for a time; but the unspotted lives of the faithful remain to be their best refutation. none then start aside at the magnitude of the object, or be too much dismayed because of the little progress they seem to themselves to make in the way of holiness; but, trusting in the Lord, who giveth power to the faint, let us all press after ability to comply with the apostolic advice, "Be ye holy in all manner of conversation." 1799. P. E.

21 On righteousness and a growth in grace. Dear friends, we beseech you to consider the holy gradation of righteousness, peace and joy; and to mark that the first step is that most comprehensive attainment, righteousness.—Righteousness is immutable justice. It leaves no duty unfulfilled. Man has his full share of love from man; and God, his due reverence, adoration, and praise. Peace then flows as a river, and joy in the Holy Spirit completes the gracious purpose of Christian redemption. "Happy is that people that is in such a case: yea, happy is that people whose God is the Lord." As the vigorous tree brings forth its fruit in its season, so if any man grow in the Truth, he will bring forth the fruits of Truth, even the fruit of the Spirit, so well described by the apostle to the Galatian converts. And what obstructs this growth in any? We reply, The love of ease: the dread of conflict. But as winter and storms promote the well-being of the outward creation, so tribulation and conflict improve the Christian. They have their appropriate and On righteousappointed end, in the work of sanctification; they arise not out of the growth in dust, but are sent or permitted in the proper seasons; and whoever seeks to escape without his share, rejects the very means of his advancement, and scarcely can hope to attain his due "measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ:" a state of which the same apostle speaks, as attainable by all. 1806. P. E.

We may now turn from subjects which concern every state in life; and direct the course of our Christian counsel to the states more in particular. And first, you who are not intrusted with much of the possessions of this life, you are still the objects of our constant care. society has long endeavoured to consult your interests, and to place within your reach whatever is necessary for your welfare, and for that of your offspring. And you are equally the care of Him who provides for the sparrows; to his ear your access is as easy as that of any condition amongst men; and if, by his holy assistance, and by a conformity to his will, you become truly poor in spirit, yours is the kingdom of heaven.2 But, dear friends, suffer us to remind you, that there is not a passion that can infest the rich, which may not also, in a degree subversive of your peace, be fostered in your minds. You may covet, and give way to pride and anger, and to all the "foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition."3 Therefore do you partake of the universal necessity of paying strict attention to Christ's sacred injunction, when, addressing himself to his immediate followers, he closed his address with these memorable words, "What I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch."4

22 Counsel to the poor:

As for you, dear friends, who occupy what are termed the middle to those in stations of life, you have every cause to bless the Lord for the sphere in the middle stations of which he hath permitted you to move. In you, seems fulfilled the wish to those in the middle stations of life: of Agur: "give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me; lest I be full and deny thee, and say, Who is the Lord? or lest I be poor and steal, and take the name of my God in vain." Among your number the society has often found many of its more useful members, of its more able advocates. Be content therefore with your stations. Seek not great things for yourselves; yea, "Mind not high things; but condescend to men of low estate." But above all things, "Follow on to know the Lord;" or, if you have not known him and served him fully and faithfully, seek him, "with a perfect heart, and with a willing mind," for if you seek him, he will be found of you; and you will remain to be, as many of you have been, supports of the building, under the protecting providence of the Lord; who is the sole and true builder of his spiritual house, the "house of prayer for all people."

And you who are intrusted with much of the good things of this life, you who cannot disclaim the title of affluent—we believe there are among you many good stewards of the temporal things committed to your trust; yet we desire that others may duly consider, whether they are so "rich in faith," as to be "heirs of the kingdom," being fruitful in those good works which are produced by faith. Though, friends, you may not have to labour with your hands, the cause of Truth has business of importance for you to do; and it may be promoted or obstructed by the right or wrong application of your property. Much responsibility lies on you; your property is an additional article in the account; and we much desire that you may be so awake to a sense of these things, as to be prepared to render up your accounts with joy, and to receive the answer of "Well done." The poor and the rich have their appropriate virtues; and, at the same time that each is required to be content and to be humble, we believe it may be truly said, that as contentment is a peculiar ornament of the poor, so is humility of the rich. Your station in life subjects you, more than to those in others, to be tried by associating with other wealthy persons, among cumstances. the people at large, with whom the cross of Christ is often in too little esteem. You may be leavened by their conversation and example; and it may operate still more sensibly and rapidly upon your children. Therefore we tenderly intreat you, for your own sake, for that of your offspring whom you are bound to protect, and for the sake of the cause of Truth-we intreat you, dear friends, we beseech you "by the mercies of God," "Be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." "For," continues the apostle, "I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith." 1808. Our solicitude has at this time been awakened for our young men employed as travellers in business. The exposure of these to the On young men employtemptations to which they are often unavoidably subjected, has tended lers in busi to draw aside some from that simplicity, that purity of heart and ness. thought, that strict morality, which our Christian principles require. We would submit to the serious consideration of their parents and employers, the extreme danger of sending forth into such service any young persons whose religious principles are not fixed, nor their habits formed; and we would encourage friends in different places, where those in this line of employment may travel, to continue and to extend that kind and hospitable notice which has been already manifested. 1816. P. E.

of more than transient benefit. It is our present concern, that no silence on spe- exception to this practice may be found amongst us; whether it take place on the reading of a portion of the sacred volume, or when we are assembled to partake of the provisions with which we are supplied for the sustenance of the body. On these latter occasions, may the hearts of our young friends also, be turned in gratitude to God, who thus liberally provides for them. May the experience of us all be such, that we can adopt the words of the Psalmist, "Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray." 1817. P. E.

On the right First-day.

In turning our attention to the state of the society as it has been observance of now laid before us, the proper employment of the First-day of the week, the day more particularly set apart for public worship, is a subject that has claimed our serious attention. It is no small privilege to be living in a country where much regard is paid to this duty, and it highly becomes us to be careful that our example in this respect be consistent with the profession we make to the world. We desire that heads of families, and our younger friends also, may closely examine, whether they are sufficiently solicitous to improve that portion of this day which is not allotted to the great duty of meeting with their friends for the purpose of Divine worship. To those who are awakened to a due sense of the eternal interests of the soul—and oh! that this were the case with all—we believe that these intervals have often proved times of much religious benefit. Many have derived great increase of strength both at these and other times, from retiring to wait upon the Lord; from reading the Holy Scriptures with minds turned to their Divine Author, in desire that He would bless them to their comfort and edification; and from perusing the pious lives and experiences of those who have gone before them. But we avoid prescribing any precise line of conduct, believing that if the attention be sincerely turned unto the Heavenly Shepherd, his preserving help and guidance will not be withheld. 1817. P. E.

In the wilderness of this life, dangers assail us on every hand: but if we look with entire reliance unto Christ, the great Head of the On looking unto Christ Church, He will lead us safely along; He will protect us from being under the trials of life. entangled by the briars and thorns; He will shield us from the sun, and from the storm; He will permit us to know his voice, and to distinguish it from the voice of the stranger; and humbly to believe that we are of that one fold, of which He is the everlasting Shepherd, 1that He will give unto us eternal life, and that none shall pluck us out of his hand. How inviting are these truths! how animating are these assurances! But this attainment is to be ours, only as we look in faith unto Him who declared, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me."2 To deny ourselves, and to take up the cross, are duties which we desire earnestly to press upon all. If we seek for divine aid that this may become the daily engagement of our lives, we shall be induced to make a narrow scrutiny into our thoughts, and into the motives which influence our conduct. Frequent self-examination will convince us that we are frail, and unworthy of the Lord's mercies. A conviction of our own weakness and transgressions will make us fearful of speaking of the errors of others; and tend to restrain us from talebearing and detraction. At the same time, divine love operating on our hearts, and begetting there the love of our neighbour, will constrain us to offer a word of counsel, in a way most calculated to produce the desired effect on such as we deem deficient in moral or religious duty. Precious and very desirable is an humble, contrite, teachable state of mind, in which the earnest prayer is raised, that we may live in the love and fear of our great Creator, and in all things walk acceptably before Him. Oh! that all may be kept in the low valley of humility, where the dew remains long; where they will know the Lord to be "as a hiding-place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest." Here preservation is witnessed within the holy inclosure: here we are guarded against the snares which beset those who would make haste to be rich. How safe, how necessary it is, for the humble Christian to set out well; to watch against the first temptations to covet great things! Sweet is the condition of the grateful mind: sweet is a state of contentment and of daily dependence on the Lord. 1819. P. E.

On a Christian course of conduct in times of outward trouble.

Our Christian principles teach us to live in the world aright, but not to live unto the world. If we indeed seek to be redeemed from its spirit; if it be our daily concern that our garments may be kept unspotted by its defilements; that we may be clothed with the meekness and gentleness of Christ; we shall be enabled to discharge our civil and religious duties with holy propriety, and to adorn the Gospel in our lives and conversation. In times, in which the public feeling may be agitated by civil or political questions of general interest, or by such as involve the vital principles of our faith, the humble Christian, thus prepared, will retire to the place of true inward prayer. He will see the necessity of carefully suppressing in his own mind the first emotions of party zeal; but he will feel the advantage of cherishing a willingness to suffer, whether little or much, whether in secret exercise of mind, or in outward trials, to promote the cause of his Lord. He will not view with indifference any open, or less direct attacks upon those blessed truths on which his hope of salvation is founded. He will not be improperly solicitous for his own ease and security, when he sees difficulties or trouble threatening those around him: his great concern will be that he may in no way bring reproach on his high profession, but that by acknowledging the Lord in all his ways, He may direct his paths. 1820. P. E.

28 On waiting for the influence of the Holy Spirit, and following its guidance. Our present concern is, to turn the attention of all our dear friends to a strict examination of their religious profession and experience. We profess to believe in the inward teachings of the Spirit of Christ Jesus, our Redeemer and Mediator, our Advocate with the Father;—of Him whose precious blood was shed, that He might procure unto us eternal life, and present us holy, and unblamable, and unreprovable unto God. Let us individually inquire, how far we are acting in conformity with the solemn truths of the Gospel. Are we seeking in hum- On waiting ble supplication unto the Lord, that our faith may be established therein? Are we, in patient waiting before Him, desiring that we may and following clearly discover the inshinings of his light upon our understandings, and that, by walking in faith, according to its manifestations, our lives may be spent in the love and fear of our great Creator?

It is of unspeakable importance to all, that they should know their own wills and dispositions regulated and sanctified by the power of the Holy Spirit. If this engagement of heart be earnest and frequent, humble views of ourselves ensue, a distrust in our rational powers as sufficient for the great work of salvation is induced: we are taught the inestimable blessing which those enjoy who attain to a reliance on holy aid; and, whilst we are brought low in our own estimation, and are fearful to speak of our religious attainments, we are enabled to rejoice in Him in whom we have believed. 1820. P. E.

If we are really concerned to look into our own hearts, if we do but enough bear in remembrance that our inmost thoughts are beheld On prayer and trust in by the all-penetrating eye of God, we shall be sensible that there God in order to live to his ought to be no relaxation in the great duty of watchfulness unto prayer. praise. The frequent recurrence of this conviction will lead us to look to a higher power than our own faculties, to enable us to work out our salvation, or to aid in promoting the Lord's work on the earth. At the same time, an increase of gratitude, from a continued sense of the Lord's unmerited goodness, will animate us to serve Him in the performance of our allotted duties in civil and religious society; in doing good to our neighbours, or in the concerns of the church. Then will there be a constant reference to Him who has qualified for the work: we shall, in reality, seek no honour one from another; but, by our lives as well as by our words, ascribe all to Him to whom it is due. It is equally the duty of all our members, to endeavour, in their daily walk through life, to act consistently with their Christian profession. It is a serious reflection for us to make, that our conduct may, in the eyes of our associates, either adorn or dishonour the principles which we trust in God to his praise.

On prayer and profess. Our views on silent waiting upon God in religious meetings, in order to live our belief that pure gospel ministry ought to be exercised from the immediate influence of the Holy Spirit, our testimony to the meek and peaceable nature of the religion of Jesus, and our non-observance of outward ordinances, originate in a conviction that the dispensation of the Gospel is a spiritual dispensation. This our religious profession is a loud call upon us for great circumspection of conduct, and deep, inward retirement before the Lord. And, whilst we are persuaded that these precious testimonies are founded upon the precepts and spirit of the Gospel, we believe, and we desire especially to press this sentiment upon our younger friends just setting out in life, that we are at no time more qualified to bear them, than when we have the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, and are willing to suffer for the name of Christ. 1821. P. E.

30 On the faithfulness of our early friends.

We have at this time been renewedly convinced that the gathering and establishing of our religious society was not the effect of human wisdom. It pleased the Lord, by the powerful influence of his eternal word on the hearts of our faithful predecessors, to prepare them to receive the Truth in the love of it. They consulted not with flesh and blood, but obeyed the heavenly call. They were strengthened to bear, with firmness and meekness, the scoffs and persecutions, and imprisonments, to which they were subjected. In supporting their religious testimonies, they sought not the praise of men, but the approbation of God. Believing that their views of the design in the coming of Christ, and of the nature of his dispensation, were confirmed to their understandings, by the power of his Spirit, they suffered freely and cheerfully for his name. Their patience and fortitude, and their firm reliance on the Lord alone for deliverance from the hands of their persecutors, gave clear proof of their sincerity, and ultimately secured a free and undisturbed profession of their religious principles. And it has been under the influence of the same Almighty Power, we have been preserved an united and religious body, and that these testimonies have been faithfully borne amongst us from generation to generation. 1822. P. E.

Whilst he who would be a real and not a nominal Christian, is duly impressed with the necessity of striving to become a meek and humble of continued disciple of Jesus,—whilst he bears in mind that he is constantly liable dependence upon God. to fall, and that he must therefore be waiting for the renewal of his spiritual strength, and at all times be placing his dependence upon Divine aid,—there is safety. But we fear, with respect to some who have run well for a time, that either through the friendship of men or outward prosperity, or through unwatchfulness, they have gradually fallen away from that to which they had once attained; and that others, from similar causes, are not advancing to that state of purity and simplicity in which they would become useful members of the church of Christ. Dear friends, permit us in Christian love, to remind vou of the ever important injunction of our Lord:—" Watch and pray, that we enter not into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." If you endeavour to prove by your actions the sincerity of your profession, if in your intercourse with others you show that you have an honest and upright heart, if your lives are ordered in the fear of the Lord; you may, by your daily walk through life, commend and adorn your own religious principles. But, if there be a want of consistency of conduct, it may lead those around you, lightly to esteem those very principles which their judgment has at one time approved; nay, it may cause the way of Truth to be evil spoken of. 1823. P. E.

In the sacred writings no duty is more clearly set forth than that of Prayer is the aspiration of the heart unto God: it is one of On prayer. the first engagements of the awakened soul, and we believe that it becomes the clothing of the minds of those whose lives are regulated by the fear and love of their Creator. If in moments of serious reflection, and when communing with our own hearts, we are sufficiently alive to our helpless condition, we shall often feel that we may pour forth our secret supplications unto the Lord. And as we believe that it is one of the greatest privileges a Christian can enjoy, thus to drawnigh in spirit unto the Father of mercies, we earnestly desire that no one may deprive himself of so great a blessing. But let all on such occasions remember the awful majesty of Him who filleth heaven and earth, and their own unworthiness in his pure and holy sight. If these considerations ought to possess the mind in our secret aspirations unto the Almighty, how incumbent is it upon those who publicly approach the throne of grace, to cherish them in their hearts, and to move only under the influence of that Spirit which enables us to pray aright! 1823. P. E.

33 On the consistency of a true Christian. The consistent Christian will make no compromise of principle. When persecution does not await him, it will be his earnest prayer that, whilst he thankfully enjoys the temporal blessings dispensed by the all-bounteous Giver, he may not so fix his heart upon these fading treasures, as to be unprepared, should the day of trouble overtake him, to stand with uprightness, and to adorn his profession by patiently enduring affliction. Whilst, upon a well-grounded conviction, he is satisfied that he ought to be aiming at a perfect standard, he will be solicitous that no part of his demeanour, that none of his transactions among men, may tend to diminish the excellence of that standard in the view of those with whom he associates. 1825. P. E.

34 On the benefit of true Christian experience. Vital Christianity consisteth not in words but in power; and however important it is that we have a right apprehension of the doctrines of the Gospel, this availeth not, unless we are regenerated by the power of the Holy Ghost. We therefore tenderly intreat all to wait in humble faith for its quickening influence; and to seek to have their hearts contrited before the Lord. Then we believe that they will know for themselves of His great goodness; and as they continue, from time to time, profiting by what they learn in the way of life and salvation, but not trusting to it, they will partake of that living bread which cometh down from heaven; they will drink of those living waters which nourish the soul unto eternal life. This course of Christian On the benefit experience we earnestly desire for every one amongst us. individual work; but it is indispensable for all. It may often be slow in its progress, but it is certain in its effects; and amongst the blessed consequences which it produces, we come to have an establishment in Christ, resulting not from any speculative system of belief, but from a heart-felt acquaintance with His power inwardly revealed to the soul. When assailed by false doctrines, or when in the support of our views of Christian practice, trials are our portion, knowing in whom we have believed, we can look, in humble but firm reliance, unto Him. Resignation under the varied trials incident to human life, is often the happy attainment of the patient, Christian traveller: these may arise to him from outward afflictions, or from the privation of the society of faithful Christian friends: he may be cast down from not feeling those evidences of the love of God, or of the clear guidance of the Spirit of Truth, which his soul would desire. But a frequent recurrence to past mercies, and to numberless blessings still bestowed upon us, should warm the heart with gratitude, and animate it with the belief, that all these things will be blessed, as means by which we may become of the pure in heart who shall see God. Wait then, dear friends, upon Him: be of good courage, and He shall strengthen your hearts.1 1827. P. E.

We continue to believe that our disuse of set forms of prayer is founded on a correct view of the spiritual nature of the Gospel dispen-At the same time we are persuaded, that all who have a just sense of the value of their immortal souls, and of their own great need of help from above, must rejoice with thankfulness, in knowing and in feeling that they may pray unto our Father who is in heaven. Father." But having thus asked in faith and submission, may we all be concerned so to walk before the Lord, that our prayers may be heard with acceptance. Let none, however, be discouraged from the performance of this duty by a sense of their transgressions; but in humility and sincere repentance, let them implore the forgiveness of God, who, as they patiently wait before Him, will in his own time supply all their need. And if there be any, who, if they deal honestly with their own hearts, must acknowledge that they do not pray, may these deeply reflect upon the danger of their situation, and be alarmed at the great loss which they sustain, and avail themselves of the high privilege of drawing nigh unto God, and partaking of the assurance that He will draw nigh unto them. 1828. P. E.

36 On the right occupation of First-day. Whilst the remembrance of our Creator ought at all times to be present with us, we have been again concerned that the day more especially set apart for religious duties, may be rightly observed amongst us. Let those hours which are not passed in attending our meetings, be so occupied as to strengthen habits of piety and devotion. It is good to exercise an especial care that the converse of the day be not such as to dissipate any religious impressions which may have been received. The households of friends ought to be assembled at least once in the course of the day, for the public reading of the Holy Scriptures, and for retirement in spirit before the Lord. And we wish particularly to call the attention of those who are in remote and country situations, to the purport of this advice. 1828. P. E.

37 Against any compromise of our ancient testimonies.

In these days of religious liberty, and in which our intercourse with those of other societies is widely different from that which obtained in the times of our pious predecessors, it becomes us to be especially careful that we do not in any way compromise our ancient principles and testimonies. We believe that it is equally incumbent on us, as on those who were made instrumental in the first gathering of our society, Against any compromise of to maintain those views and practices by which they were distinguished. our ancient testimonies. And we feel desirous that both in the performance of our civil duties, and in associating for objects of benevolence, all our dear friends may be concerned not in any way to forfeit the character of consistency, but in all things to adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour. It is, we believe, alike important to our own benefit, and that of the universal church of Christ, that we do not shrink from filling that station in it which Divine Wisdom has assigned us, but in singleness of heart give ourselves up to what it may be our individual duty to perform.

The humble endeavour to observe the precepts of the Gospel leads to purity of heart and conduct; it induces strict integrity in all our On that purity of life transactions; and gives rise to the exercise of that meekness and which the Gospel encharity which shine forth in the conduct of the true and practical be-joins. liever in the Christian religion. If we seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, we shall be instructed by the example of pious men, but not blind to their infirmities; comforted by their society, but not dependent upon it; helped by religious conversation, but not disposed to enter into it hastily or superficially. If we are concerned aright for the cultivation and cleansing of our own hearts, impressed with the importance of our own stewardship unto God, and duly sensible of our own sins and great need of forgiveness from Him, we shall become very cautious how we converse on the failings of others, and anxious not to violate that charity which is enjoined upon all; that love which is the true badge of discipleship.

The great importance of cultivating true piety and virtue, is what we are at this time concerned earnestly to press upon every one. If this become, as it ought to be, the main object of our lives, the fruit of the Spirit will be apparent. But we are constantly to bear in mind, that this is not the place of our rest. The warfare must be maintained; we can at no period put off the armour with safety: we have an unwearied enemy to contend with, whose temptations are diversified, subtle, and insidious: the path of life is an arduous one; but, thanks be unto Him who is omnipotent, his grace is all-sufficient: as He is daily sought unto, he strengtheneth our souls and increaseth our confidence in him; and, if we faint not, but persevere unto the end, He will give the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ. 1829. P. E.

On that purity of life which the Gospel enjoins.

39 On prayer. May we all draw nigh unto God in prayer—ask the assistance of His grace to help in time of need—and look unto Him as our merciful Father who is in heaven: assuredly believing, that, as He is approached in reverence and faith, he will graciously answer our petitions, and supply all our need, in and through Christ Jesus. As this sacred duty, so forcibly enjoined in Holy Scripture, is correctly understood and performed aright, parents will become so sensible of its great value to themselves, that they will feel the importance of turning thereto the attention of their beloved offspring; and, as they seek for wisdom and strength to act rightly herein, they will be assisted by Him to whom they should desire, that they and their children may be wholly dedicated. 1830. P. E.

40 Conclusion.

Now, dear friends, of every rank, state, and condition, let us endeavour to be one in the Lord: that He may shower down of his mercies, gifts, and grace upon all. This will keep each in his proper place. The young will be mild, submissive, and teachable; and will become early acquainted with that power which is their only safe conductor through life, and their hope in death. These are near to our The very remembrance of them awakens our tenderest feeling, and prompts our prayer to the Lord for their preservation. middle-aged will stand firm in their day, as watchmen upon the wall, and as valiants, having on the armour of light, to withstand the attacks of the enemy. And the aged will have to rejoice both in retrospective, and prospective view. The past will recall to their gladdened remembrance the numberless mercies of the Lord; and the future, through the power of an endless life, and the efficacy of that redemption which comes by the Lord Jesus, will open to them the prospect, and satisfy them with the assurance, of being His for ever. Amen. 1808. P. E.—1833.

CONVINCED PERSONS.

WE esteem it very necessary, that young convinced and well inclined persons and friends, be early visited in the love of God, by faith- Advice concerning those ful friends; for their encouragement, help, and furtherance in the truth. 1710. P. E.

For the sake of tender and young convinced friends, an earnest concern is on the minds of many, that no occasion of stumbling or offence be laid in their way; but that all such as have made longer profession with us, may be careful to walk in all holiness and uprightness of conversation, and in an humble waiting upon the Lord; that their example may tend to the encouragement and strengthening of those who have been more lately visited, to a steady and constant perseverance in the path into which the Lord hath directed their feet. 1737, P. E.

As we have received comfortable accounts from divers parts, of a convincement amongst the people, so as to join with us in profession; we earnestly intreat that a holy care may rest upon all our members, to walk circumspectly as good examples; that, in a particular manner, the ministers and elders may carefully watch that their conduct may be to the edification and strength of the honest, though sometimes weak And that friends be careful to lay hands suddenly on no man, but distinguish between a true Christian tenderness to help the weak, and a hasty reception of those under convincement, into membership with us; which has often hurt the individuals, by settling them in a false rest, and been very injurious to the reputation of the society. 1753. W. E.

4 Care recommended respecting admission into membership. Advised, that monthly meetings lay hands on no man suddenly, nor speedily admit into membership, any who may come to friends' meetings as convinced persons, especially such as discover an earnestness for a speedy admission into communion with us, without a seasonable time to consider their conduct. Let the innocency of their lives and conversation first be manifested, and a deputation of judicious friends be made, to enquire into the sincerity of their convincement of the truth of our religious principles, and let this appear to the satisfaction of the monthly meeting, previously to their admission. 1764.

Advice to those newly convinced.

We have received accounts, this year, as well as in preceding years, that divers persons have joined our society by convincement.—For you of this description, we feel a tender care, that, after admittance into membership, you may not measure yourselves by others; nor take up a rest short of the true rest. Seek rather an increase in the heavenly principle which comes by Jesus Christ, the true and holy pattern for his flock. Thus only, will your union with us contribute to your advantage; and thus only, will the increase of numbers produce an increase of the joy. 1799. P. E.

6 General counsel. We find, at this as at other times, that several persons have been added to us by convincement. We desire it may also have been by conversion, from form to power. Such truly convinced and converted, are a strength to us. They know the sacrifice which they have made for their present condition, and value it accordingly. They have bought the truth, and are so far from desiring to sell it, that they are concerned that others should possess the same enjoyment. But we are sometimes grieved that persons finding their way, and probably through self-denial, into our society, do not always retain their ground. The salt doth not always retain its savour. In tenderness therefore we intreat the newly-convinced not to esteem their admission as a period of rest from conflict. It rather requires a deeper exercise. And we beseech friends among whom such may dwell, to treat them with great circumspection as well as kindness. Beware of hurting them by any ill example. They may be offended, and if they are sincere, they are in the number of those whom we are cautioned not to offend. On the other hand, they are tender and inexperienced, and they may be laden with the concerns of our discipline faster than their strength will bear. Thus, friends, on every occasion we see that sound judgment and sound practice require depth and solidity. Let us then keep in view, and earnestly desire to be endued with that discernment which is the means, under direction of the Holy Head, of edifying the body of Christ. 1807. P. E.

General counsel.

COVETOUSNESS.

1 General advice against covetousness and overreaching.

LET none strive nor covet to be rich in this world, in these changeable things that will pass away; but let your faith stand in the Lord God who changes not, that created all, and gives the increase of all. 1676.

We do, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, warn and charge all that profess the truth amongst us to take heed and beware of covetousness, over-reaching, oppressing, and defrauding of any, from whence strife, contention, and law-suits do often arise; and if any difference about these things do happen among you, to stop and suppress it. 1697. P. E.

3 Recommendation to selfdenial and the daily cross as means of preservation.

Let all friends be exhorted to abide under the daily cross, whereby the earthly mind may be crucified, which hath its delights and ease in vanity, pride, and covetousness; that friends, being preserved out of those things wherein the enemy hath had, and has, his kingdom, and too plainly lays his snares to hinder their holy progress, may every where be more and more a retired, serious, plain, and self-denying people; growing in the grace and knowledge of God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, and exalting his spiritual kingdom in their souls. 1699. P. E.

4 General advice.

Seeing that our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ exhorted to take heed and beware of covetousness, which is idolatry, we are concerned, that all among us, may take heed of pride, covetousness, and hastening to be rich in the world, which are pernicious and growing evils: let them be watched against, resisted, and suppressed in the fear and dread of Almighty God, and have no place or countenance in his camp. 1720. P. E.

We beseech you to stand upon your guard against the allurements and temptations of this evil world; and beware of an ambitious and The danger of ambition and covetous spirit, by which many are ensnared in an eager pursuit of a desire to be rich set forth. earthly enjoyments; the danger of which is thus described by the apostle Paul: "They that will be rich, fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition: for the love of money is the root of all evil; which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." Beware, therefore, dearly beloved, lest you also, being led aside by the love of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, fall from your own steadfastness. 1740. P. E.

The great deception of mankind is, that they look for happiness where it is not; are ensuared by the love of the world, and the deceitfulness of riches, which, "while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith;"2 have abused what they should have made good use of, and hurt themselves with the means given for the help of others: the love of money shutting up their hearts from the exercise of charity, in proportion to the substance bestowed on them. 1746. P. E.

Dear friends, the continuance of covetousness and of earthly-mindedness in many, calls upon us to endeavour to awaken such as are infected with it, to a sense of what they are pursuing, and at what The great Master hath shown the unprofitableness to a man of the whole world, compared with his immortal soul; and yet many are pursuing a delusive portion of it, at the expense of their soul's But were all thus awakened, what place would be found for extensive schemes in trade, and fictitious credit to support them? To mix with the spirit of the world in the pursuit of gain, would then be a subject of dread; and contentment under the allotment of Providence, a sure means of preservation. 1788. P. E.

The wordly spirit may prevail in small as well as in larger concerns.

We are not disposed to enter into all the particulars of deviation, in which those, who will not submit to be bound by the testimony of Truth in their hearts, may be found; but we think we can trace several of them to that common, but destructive cause, the love of worldly things. In some it discovers itself in a desire to be rich and great; whilst in others the worldly spirit is as clearly discerned, though the attention seems to be occupied in smaller concerns: and though we are clear that very extensive ones are often in themselves great evils. yet the trafficker in hundreds, unless the eye be kept single, may be as much buried in the earth as the trafficker in thousands. But were each honestly to ask himself the question, 'Have I first sought the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness?' how might the answer tend to cover the face with confusion! Did our Lord utter any one precept with a clearer address to the reason, and greater promise of support, than that of which such a question is the substance? So that to seek first the world, is to give up at once our obedience to his command with our trust in his promises.—"All these things shall be added unto you." "Your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things." 1797. P. E.

9 General counsel. Dear friends, in times of outward prosperity there are snares to be avoided, as well as duties to be fulfilled. One of those snares seems to us to be a too eager, and therefore unlawful, pursuit of lawful things. Such a pursuit prevents the mind from rising in living aspirations to God, the giver of every good and perfect gift; indisposes it for duly assembling with his devoted servants to wait upon Him, and worship Him; and causes "the volume of the book" of sacred scripture—that record of truth which was written aforetime for our instruction—to be but seldom perused. Such a pursuit also, if general, spreads devastation over religious society. But, friends, we intreat you, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things," said our blessed Redeemer, speaking of necessary things, "shall be added unto you." Then would your assemblings together be seasons of heavenly consolation; your hearts would be enlarged in that gospel love that knows no bounds to its desire of human happiness; ye would covet that others might partake with you of the enriching joy; and ye would be careful that not any trifling impediment prevented the due attendance of your own families. "Come," would ye say by your example if not in words, "Come and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and He will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths." "Come and let us join ourselves to the Lord, in a perpetual covenant that shall not be forgotten." 1802. P. E.

DETRACTION AND DEFAMATION.

l Advice. Dear Friends, the increase of love, unity, and peace amongst all friends in their respective meetings and in general, is greatly desired by us; and that every one watch against, and shut out all occasions of offences, contentions, and divisions, and stop all whisperings, talebearing, back-biting, and evil-speaking tending thereunto. Be kind, and tender-hearted, one to another, and earnestly labour for universal love, union, and peace, in all the churches of Christ. 1689. P. E.

- And where any hath received offence from another, let him first speak privately to the party concerned, and endeavour reconciliation between themselves:—and not to whisper, or aggravate matters against them, behind their backs, to the making of parties, and to the widening of the breach. 1692. P. E.
- Let those just and ancient commands of God be observed, "Thou shalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer among thy people;" and "Thou shalt not raise a false report." In the fear of the Lord stand against all whisperers, back-biters, tale-bearers, defamers, and slanderers; and against all whisperings, back-bitings, tale-bearing, reproaching, and slandering, and put a speedy stop thereto, as much as in you lies: for such works of darkness and envy tend to division and discord, and the righteous law of God goes against both the authors, fomenters, receivers, and encouragers thereof. 1695. P. E.
- 4 If you hear a report of a friend [to his disadvantage] be careful not to report it again, but go to the person of whom the report is, and inquire if it be true, or not; and if it be true, then deal with such person for it, according to the doctrine of Christ; but if false, then endeavour, as much as in you lies, to stop such report; for, as Solomon says, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." 1719. P. E.

Advice.

The preservation of love is a duty in every state of religious attainment; and did we faithfully observe the great Master's precept of doing to others as we would they should do to us, its practice would be easy. Detraction and enmity would then be destroyed in the seed, and that excellent Christian charity, recommended by the Apostle, prevail over all. 1789. P. E.

From obedience to the law of Christ, arises that stream of love to the brotherhood, which, if suffered to flow in our hearts with unobstructed course, would bear away all malice and guile, and cause all complaints of tale-bearing and detraction to cease in our borders. the precious care that attends the mind in which Christian charity is become habitual! "Charity," saith the apostle, "hopeth all things." It divulges not the faults of others, because, in its unbounded hope, it desires their removal without exposure. For the mind in which it dwells, ascribes its own preservation, and the cleansing of its former sins, to the unbounded love of God in Christ Jesus; and it prays that all may partake of the same benefit. How opposite that disposition, which delights to report evil, and to accuse! Shun it, dear friends, as the poison of asps. Even the sacred writings emphatically denominate the grand adversary of mankind by the name of accuser of the brethren. "Follow," therefore, "peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord: looking diligently, lest any man fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up, trouble you, and thereby many be defiled." 1804. 7 Rules. It is the advice of this meeting, that any person charged with defamation or scandal, ought to be proceeded against in the manner, and by the several steps following:—

First, the person defamed, or supposed to be defamed, in his own person, or any other to whom the knowledge of the case shall come, to go to the accused and tell him his fault, or supposed fault, between them alone; and, by the best method he is capable of, to labour to convince him of it, in order to his acknowledgment of the truth, and repentance, if he appear to be guilty. But if the accused shall appear, either through ignorance not to apprehend the validity of the proof, or through wilfulness not to yield to it, or being convinced, shall refuse to make such satisfaction as the nature of the case requires (that being the consequence of true repentance); in such case the accuser to take with him one or two more of the monthly meeting the accused belongs to, if it may be conveniently done; and if the accused thinks fit, he may bring with him one or two friends also of the same monthly meeting, if it may be conveniently done; and they together, in the wisdom of God, to endeavour to obtain the true knowledge of the case, by hearing witnesses, if there be occasion. And if they all judge him guilty, and he doth not make satisfaction; or if they do not all agree that he is innocent; in either of these cases happening, the person charging is at liberty to bring the matter before the church, who are the only judges now remaining, both of the nature of the fact, and the validity of the proof of it; and they, in the wisdom of God, which we hope will not be wanting to his church, as they humbly wait on him for it, to deal with the accused person for the good ends before mentioned, and as they see cause upon a mature and deliberate consideration, to justify or condemn him. And if the church shall see meet to commit the consideration of a case of this nature, for better dispatch, to certain persons of their own body, we recommend it as our tender advice, in case the accused shall object against one or more of the friends so chosen, that the church have a due regard for such objection; and set aside the person or persons so objected against, and substitute another, or others, in his or their room; provided such objection doth not extend to the major part of the friends so chosen: and in general we desire all tenderness and regard may be had to a person under such circumstances; and that friends in a spirit of love and condescension, should be ready to make him as easy as they can, provided they keep up the authority of their meetings.

Rules.

Anonymous books, pamphlets, and papers, reflecting darkly on friends, are testified against; and it is desired that no such book, pamphlet, or paper be written, printed, published, or privately handed about, by any under our profession. 1718.

Whereas it may happen, that friends may suffer much in their reputation and character by a detracting spirit, which prevails among some bearing our name; who shelter themselves under a pretence that they say no more than they have heard from others, but will not discover who they are; wherefore to prevent this evil of reporting and talebearing; it is agreed that such reporters or tale-bearers shall either discover their authors, or be dealt with, and testified against, as the authors thereof. 1744.

GRAVE STONES AND MOURNING HABITS.

- This meeting being informed, that friends in some places have gone Grave Stones. into the vain custom of erecting monuments over the dead bodies of friends, by stones, inscriptions, &c. it is therefore the advice of this meeting, that all such monuments should be removed, as much as may be with discretion and conveniency; and that none be any where made or set up, near, or over, the dead bodies of friends or others, in friends' burying places for time to come. 1717.
 - This meeting being informed, that since the advice formerly issued, 2 in order to excite friends to a proper regard to our testimony against grave stones, divers have accordingly been removed; and being desirous that the revival of this concern may be effectual, we earnestly recommend the removal of them may become general.
 - According to the primitive simplicity of friends, it is the advice of Mourning this meeting, that no friends imitate the world in any distinction of Habits : habit, or otherwise, as marks or tokens of mourning for the dead. 1717.
 - Advised against imitating the vain custom of wearing or giving 4 mourning, and all extravagant expenses about the interment of the dead. 1724. P. E.
- Having observed that, in imitation of a custom prevailing of late in this nation, divers under our religious profession have discouraged the female sex from attending the burial of their relations, by not inviting them thereto with the men; which is neither agreeable to the practice of our worthy predecessors, nor a decent token of respect,

HEATHEN NAMES OF THE DAYS AND MONTHS.

It is the advice of this meeting that all friends keep to the simplicity of truth, and our ancient testimony in calling the months and days by scripture names, and not by heathen. 1697. P. E.

Letter from the Meeting for Sufferings assigning reasons for the disuse of the common names of the days and months.

To the quarterly and monthly meetings of friends in Great Britain, Ireland, and America.

Dear Friends,

Pursuant to the directions of the last yearly meeting, in relation to an act made, the last session of parliament, for regulating the commencement of the year, and correcting the calendar now in use, this meeting hath thought convenient to communicate unto you the following advices:—

By the said act it is ordered and enacted, that the 'supputation according to which the year of our Lord beginneth on the twenty-fifth day of March, shall not be made use of from and after the last day of December, 1751; and that the first day of January next following the said last day of December, shall be reckoned, taken, deemed, and accounted to be the first day of the year of our Lord, 1752, and so on, from time to time, that the first day of January in every year, which shall happen in time to come, shall be reckoned, taken, deemed, and accounted to be the first day of the year; and that each new year shall accordingly commence, and begin to be reckoned from the first day of every such month of January.'

First. That in all the records and writings of friends, from and after the last day of the Tenth month called December, next, the computation of the time established by the said act, should be observed; and that accordingly, the First day of the Eleventh month, commonly called January, next, shall be reckoned and deemed, by friends, the First day of the First month of the year 1752, and

	Eleventh		January		First
The	Twelfth	Month called	February	shall be reck- oned and styled the	Second	Month of the next and every succeed- ing Year.

	Sixth		August		Eighth
	Seventh.		September		Ninth
	Eighth		October		Tenth
	Ninth		November		Eleventh
	Tenth		December		Twelfth	•

Secondly. And whereas for the more regular computation of time, the same act of parliament doth direct, that the natural day next immediately following the 'second day of September' in the year 1752, 'shall be called, reckoned, and accounted to be the fourteenth day of September, omitting, for that time only, the eleven intermediate days of the common calendar;'—that friends should be found in the observance of this direction, and omit the said eleven nominal days accordingly.

And we think it may be useful and expedient, on the present occasion, to revive in your remembrance some of the motives which induced our ancient friends to forbear the appellations of the months and days, and to observe in their conversations and writings such names as were agreeable to scripture, and the practice of good men therein recorded.

The children of Israel, the people whom God chose out of all the families of the earth to place his name among, and to make himself known unto, were strictly commanded, not only to abstain from the idolatrous practices of the nations, in the midst of whom they dwelt, but were enjoined to be circumspect in all things that the Lord commanded; and even, to make no mention of the name of other Gods, neither to let it be heard out of their mouth.¹ This injunction was not relative to any legal or typical rites, external ceremonies, or institutions of the law, peculiar to the Jewish nation, but was a perpetual command and standing ordinance, respecting the honour of the One Almighty Being, the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever; and as such ought to be regarded by us, and by all the generations of those who with the heart believe, as well as with the tongue confess, "that the Lord he is God," and that "there is none else beside Him;" who hath declared, "I am the Lord; that is my name; and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images."

Convinced of this great and everlasting truth, both by the testimony of the Holy Scripture, and the manifestation of that divine principle, which leads those who are faithful to its teachings, from all that would dishonour the name of God, either in word or deed, our ancient friends were conscientiously concerned to refrain from the use of those names of months and days, which had been ascribed by way of honour to the idols of the heathen, and in conformity to their false worships: this concern rested upon them, from a firm persuasion, that the glorious gospel day and time was come, wherein the Lord was fulfilling his covenant with Israel, viz. "I will take away the names of Baalim4 out of his mouth, and they shall no more be remembered by their name."

And that you may the more clearly discern the importance of that Christian testimony borne by our predecessors in this case, we recommend what follows to your serious consideration: viz.

A brief account of the origin of the names of some months of the year, and of all the days of the week, now customarily and commonly used.

- I. January was so called from Janus, an ancient king of Italy, whom heathenish superstition had deified, to whom a temple was built, and this month dedicated.
- II. February was so called from Februa, a word denoting purgation by sacrifices; it being usual in this month for the priests of the heathen god Pan to offer sacrifices, and perform certain rites; conducing, as was supposed, to the cleansing or purgation of the people.
- III. March was so denominated from Mars, feigned to be the god of war, whom Romulus, founder of the Roman empire, pretended to be his father.
- IV. April is generally supposed to derive its name from the Greek appellation of Venus, an imaginary goddess worshipped by the Romans.
- V. May is said to have been so called from Maia the mother of Mercury, another of their pretended ethnic deities, to whom in this month they paid their devotions.
- VI. June is said to take its name from Juno, one of the supposed goddesses of the heathen.
- VII. July, so called from Julius Cæsar, one of the Roman emperors, who gave his own name to this month, which before was called Quintilis, or the Fifth.
- VIII. August, so named in honour of Augustus Cæsar, another of the Roman emperors. This month was before called Sextilis, or the Sixth.

The other four months, namely, September, October, November, and December, still retain their numerical Latin names; which, according to the late regulation of the calendar, will for the future be improperly applied. However, from the continued use of them hitherto, as well as from the practice of the Jews before the Babylonish captivity,² it seemeth highly probable, that the method of distinguishing the months by their numerical order only, was the most ancient, as it is the most plain, simple, and rational.

² Vid. the Scriptures to the time of Ezra.

As the idolatrous Romans thus gave names to several of the months in honour of their pretended deities: so the like idolatry prevailing among our Saxon ancestors, induced them to call the days of the week by the name of the idol, which on that day they peculiarly worshipped. Hence

The First day of the week was by them called Sunday, from their customary adoration of the Sun upon that day.

The Second day of the week they called Monday, from their usual custom of worshipping the Moon on that day.

The Third day of the week they named Tuesday, in honour of one of their idols called Tuisco.

The Fourth day of the week was called Wednesday, from the appellation of Woden, another of their idols.

The Fifth day of the week was called Thursday, from the name of an idol called Thor, to whom they paid their devotions upon that day.

The Sixth day of the week was termed Friday, from the name of Friga, an imaginary goddess by them worshipped.

The Seventh day they stiled Saturday, as is supposed from Saturn, or Seater, by them then worshipped. ¹

In the ages of popish superstition, not only the use of such heathenish names and customs was indulged, but also other unsound and unscriptural practices in religion were invented and introduced. For when the profession of the Christian religion became national, multitudes of the heathen priests, whose interest lay in the performance of rites, ceremonies, and sacrifices, embraced prevailing Christianity with selfish views; and laboured early, with too much success, to find employment for themselves, by imposing on the people a new set of ceremonies and sacrifices, bearing some resemblance to those, which in their former state of heathenism they had been accustomed to. From this corrupt source sprang the popish sacrifice of the mass, the celebration of which, at particular times, and on particular occasions, gave rise to the vulgar names of Michaelmas, Martinmas, Christmas, and the like.

Seeing therefore that these appellations and names of days, months, and times, are of an idolatrous or superstitious original, contrary to the divine command, the practice of good and holy men in former ages, and repugnant to the Christian testimony borne by our faithful friends and predecessors in the truth, for the sake of which they patiently endured many revilings; let neither the reproach of singularity, nor the specious reasonings of such as would evade the cross of Christ, turn you aside from the simplicity of the gospel; nor discourage you from keeping to the language of truth, in denominating the months and days according to the plain and scriptural way of expression: thereby following the example of our worthy elders, and coming up in a noble and honourable testimony against these, and all other remains of idolatry and superstition.

From the Meeting of Sufferings in London, the sixth day of the Seventh Month, 1751.

LIBERALITY AND BENEVOLENCE.

- General advice.
- It is desired that such among friends as are endowed with plenty of outward substance, be timely and tenderly advised to do good therewith, in their day and generation, especially with regard to the poor; that the tokens of your charity may be good precedents to generations to come. 1696. P. E.
- Care as to the security of charitable bequests.
- Let the rich remember the poor, and do good in their life-time; and, if they make any settlement for the use of the poor, take advice and counsel, that friends may not be deprived of their charity; but that it may be firm, and according to law. 1696.
- Times of scarcity and sickness.
- We find ourselves at this time engaged to request that friends in any part of this kingdom, or other places, where provisions and the necessaries of life are dear and scarce, or sickness doth remarkably afflict, would, in proportion to such scarcity and affliction, exert their charitable assistance to the poor; which is our Christian duty, as stewards of the many mercies wherewith the Lord has intrusted us. 1729. P. E.
 Personal moderation in connexion with charity, recommended.
- "Let your moderation be known unto all men." Warn those that are rich in this world, that they apply not the blessings of God to the indulging of their appetites in pleasure and vanity; but that they be ready to do good, and to communicate to the relief of those who are in necessity. The principal, if not only satisfaction, a man of a truly Christian disposition can have in affluence and the increase of the things of this world, must arise from the greater opportunities put into his hands of doing good therewith. But, alas! it is a most melancholy Personal moreflection, that the very superfluities of the apparel of one person connexion might sometimes be sufficient to clothe the nakedness of several fellow-recommended. 1741. P.E. creatures.

And as it has pleased the Lord to favour many amongst us with the outward blessings of this life, in so plentiful a manner that we are those in affluplaced in a capacity of doing much good, and of exercising offices of Christian love and charity, to the comfort and assistance of the poor and needy; we earnestly recommend to the practice of those whom God hath so favoured, the excellent advice given by the apostle: "Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy: that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life." 1750. P. E.

We think it incumbent upon us in this time of severity, particularly to impress it upon our brethren to open their hearts and hands freely for the relief of the poor and needy of all denominations: those in affluence especially ought ever to bear in mind, that none are entrusted with riches that they may indulge themselves in pleasures, or for the gratification of luxury, ambition, or vain glory; but to do good and to communicate thereof, and thus to mitigate the afflictions of the distressed. 1757. P. E.

We fear that some of our youth are training in habits of expense in attire, furniture, and attendance, which are not only inconsistent habits in with the simplicity of the gospel, but a constant call for much of that vourable to property, which would be better employed in feeding the hungry; and of that time, which might be occupied in visiting and cheering the habitations of human misery. 'The trimming of the vain world,' said our worthy elder, William Penn, 'would clothe the naked one.' It is not however with such only that we plead, on behalf of the indigent. We wish those who are generally consistent in appearance and manners with our self-denying profession, to be clear that a due proportion of their time and substance is spent in the relief of distress. 1798. P. E.

Counsel at a time of severe pressure on the poor.

In this season of almost unprecedented pressure on some of the poorer classes of our countrymen, we deem it particularly desirable, that our dear friends every where should not be backward in examining into their distresses; but liberal in contributing a due proportion of relief. Many are allowed to have temporal possessions sufficient to do this with comparative ease. Let these therefore remember that they are but stewards, and let them seek to be good and faithful stewards. And it is probable that others, not equally abounding in the good things of this life, may find that in using moderation in their own expenditure, they may have wherewith to supply the wants of others, and to make the heart of the poor man sing for joy. O the blessing of clothing the naked and feeding the hungry—who would not desire to be entitled to a share in it! 1812. P. E.

A disposition to active benevolence encouraged. As it is the natural effect of obedience to the love of Christ revealed in the heart, to enlarge our love to others, the more we are brought under the influence of this principle, the more we shall be prepared to employ a portion of our time and of our substance, in promoting the temporal and spiritual welfare of mankind. We warmly desire that the moral and religious improvement of every class of our fellow-men, and the alleviation of their sufferings and distress may ever obtain that aid and sympathy, which, in the unlimited love of the Gospel of Christ, should be extended towards the whole human race. We therefore desire that a disposition for active benevolence may be cherished in every heart; each being concerned to know for himself, in what way consistently with his private and social duties, he may employ his talents for the good of others, and steadily to persevere in what he may have rightly undertaken; with a constant reference to the divine blessing:not with a view to popularity or ostentation, but simply as acting the part of a wise and faithful servant who must give an account to his Lord at his coming. 1824.—1825. P. E.

There is a humility and sweetness, combined with a noble firmness of character arising from the expansive influence of Christian love, The disposiwhich ought to actuate all our endeavours for the good of others. in which benevolence Strive then, dear friends, that, in your benevolent exertions to promote should be exercised. the temporal, the moral, or the religious welfare of your fellow-men, your whole conduct may be marked by an unobtrusive, Christian temper; that, when associated with your friends and neighbours on these occasions, it may be manifest that your great concern is to live under the influence of that Wisdom which is from above; which is pure, peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, without partiality and without hypocrisy, full of mercy and full of good fruits. The pure exercise of Christian kindness brings with it its own reward: but to be pure, it must have its origin in the love of God, which produces love to man; and the satisfaction is never so great, the efforts are never so steady, as when we continually bear in mind, that we are to commit all our exertions to the blessing of Him whose providential eye is over all, and who is continually caring for the workmanship of his holy hand. 1827. P. E.

The degraded and demoralized state of the poor, in many parts of the United Kingdom, and the great extent of crime, have at this time Attention recommended deeply affected us. We therefore intreat friends, in their respective situations in town or country, to search out the causes of these things. We apprehend that among these causes will be found those abridgements of the comfort of the labourer, which tend to a wretched and disreputable pauperism. We earnestly desire that friends may be exemplary in their attention to this important subject; and that they may encourage their neighbours, and unite with them in their endeavours, to apply a remedy to these evils. And seeing it is sin which 11 to the condi-tion of the separates the soul from God, and that ignorance and intemperance, vice and irreligion, so much prevail among the inhabitants of the British Isles, we are desirous that our members may allow their sympathies to be awakened for these our fellow-subjects. And may their religious concern extend to other parts of Christendom similarly circumstanced, with an earnest desire that, under the blessing of Providence, they may be made instrumental to effect a real improvement in the domestic, moral, and religious state of our fellow-men. 1833. P. E.

The benighted condition of the Heathen recommended to sympathy.

The deplorable condition of the Heathen, and the degraded circumstances under which they are living, have been felt at this time, as well as in former years, to be truly affecting. And although no way appears to open for our adopting any specific measure, in order to communicate to them the knowledge of the truths of the Gospel, we earnestly recommend their benighted condition to the frequent remembrance and Christian sympathy of all our members. There are various means of diffusing a knowledge of Christianity among them, which in no degree compromise our religious principles. The holy Scriptures abundantly testify how offensive in the Divine sight are the abominations of idolatry; and we desire that all may stand open to the intimations of the Heavenly Shepherd, and follow the leadings of his Spirit into such services as He may be pleased to appoint to them individually. We rejoice in the part which many of our members have taken in the general diffusion of the holy Scriptures, and in promoting a Christian education of the poor in this and in other countries; and we desire that these very important objects may receive the continued attention and support of Friends.

The true Christian will be enabled to discover the path of his duty. We feel at this time a warm and affectionate solicitude that we may all strive, through the help of the Holy Spirit, to live up to that profession of the Christian religion, and to maintain those views of its simplicity, spirituality, and purity, which our society has uniformly thought it right to uphold. And, as living faith in the doctrines of the Gospel, and a practical observance of the precepts and example of our blessed Lord, regulate our affections and conduct, we shall be enabled more correctly to perceive our individual places in the church. In the exercise of this faith and obedience, we shall become more weaned from the love of the world, and more filled with the love of God; and whether our lot be cast at home or abroad, in more civilized or in less enlightened countries, we shall be made instrumental in advancing that kingdom which is righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. 1833. LOVE AND UNITY.

l General Advice. Advised, that friends be tender to the principle of God in all, and shun the occasion of vain disputes and janglings, both among themselves and others: for this many times is like a blustering wind, that hurts and bruises the tender buds of plants. 1676.

2 Humility and condescension recommended Seeing our comfort as a people depends upon our care to maintain peace and fellowship amongst brethren, in all our services, we earnestly recommend an humble and condescending frame of spirit unto all; that with godly fear, wisdom, and meekness, we may be so ordered in all our respective services, that every high and rough thing may be laid low, that all occasions of striving may be prevented, and the peace of the church of Christ preserved and increased amongst us.

And to this purpose it is tenderly advised, that we diligently and carefully observe the comely and blessed gospel order, so long known and in practice amongst us, in the spirit of meekness and of a sound mind; which is the way to crush all differences in their infancy, and suppress the rise, as well as stop the progress, of every thing that is unseemly, and inconsistent with the testimony of the precious truth. 1699. P. E.

3 True Christian charity the ground of concord.

It is our earnest desire, that, above all, friends hold fervent charity in the body, that will keep the members together in a blessed concord and communion; which is esteemed by the apostle the more excellent way, excelling other gifts, which pass away: but charity (that is the love of God, from which our Christian and brotherly affection springs) shall endure for ever. This envieth not, vaunteth not, boasteth not itself, and seeketh not its own; but is patient, beareth all things, suffereth all things, and watcheth not with an evil eye, no, nor thinketh ill, but is kind. In which blessed love, dear friends, hold your fellowship one with another, which was the character of the primitive Chris-1705. P. E. tians.

Among the gospel precepts, we find not any thing more strongly and frequently recommended by our Lord Jesus Christ and his apostles to the primitive believers, than that they should love one another; and as we are sensible, that nothing will more contribute to the peace and pendant upon the preservaprosperity of the church, than due regard to this advice, so we earnestly desire that it may be the care and concern of all friends to dwell therein; and, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, to maintain love, concord, and peace, in and among all the churches of Christ. 1730. P. E.

The peace church detion of love.

It is our earnest desire that a spirit of love and humility may more and more diffuse itself among us, and influence the hearts of all, so that every one may come to seek peace, and pursue it; and that none be apt to take offence; but each, in his own particular, be more careful to rectify his own failings and imperfections, than curious in observing, censuring, and aggravating those of others. This will lead to the exercise of mutual forbearance and forgiveness one of another; by which the occasions of contention will be avoided, and the churches preserved in a state of peace and tranquillity. 1736. P. E.

By accounts received it appears, that in general love and concord are maintained, and that friends in divers places are under an earnest concern for the promotion of peace, and for suppressing and guarding against every occasion of strife and discord, tending to divide and scat-For strengthening this concern, and promoting ter the flock of Christ. this Christian disposition of love, wheresoever it appears, we remind you of the benefits thereof, expressed in Psalm cxxxiii. tains of Zion; for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore." Be ye also mindful of the saying of our blessed Lord himself: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." 1752. P. E.

7 Christian humility the true ground of love. Friends, seek peace and pursue it. Ye are called to love. O that the smallest germ of enmity might be eradicated from our inclosure! And verily there is a soil in which it cannot live, but naturally withers and dies. This soil is Christian humility: a state highly becoming and indispensable, for a being who depends continually on the favour of his Lord; a state in which of all others he can most acceptably approach his presence; and a state which naturally conducts frail man to love and compassion, for the companions of his frailty and poverty, yet his fellow-partakers of the offered riches of the gospel. 1805. But that is little else than a disguised pride, seeking for superiority. The love which Christ commanded to his church, goes further than that. "This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you."2 And how did the Lord love the world? Let the apostle answer: " God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." And, friends, mark and remember his gracious dying words, when, praying for his very persecutors, He said, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." And shall we expect access for our feeble prayers, at the throne of grace, if we harbour any ill will to our fellow-travellers Let us hear again the Saviour of men: " And towards immortality? when ve stand praying, forgive, if ve have ought against any." He doth not allow time for seeing the injuring person become submissive; but,—Standing, forgive: for, "If ye do not forgive, neither will your Father which is in heaven forgive your trespasses"² O, the excellence of Christian love and the temper of forgiveness! 1806. P. E.

Our concern for the preservation of brotherly love remains strong and unabated. When assembled in this meeting we have special Exhortation to the maincause to know the invigorating, uniting effects of it. Therefore were tenance of brotherly there no other inducement, we should still be disposed, from time to time, to renew our earnest and pressing exhortation, that it may abound and flourish amongst our dear brethren in religious profession. Enmity, even in a small degree, pollutes the mind, and renders it unfit to approach with acceptance that pure and holy Being, of whom the beloved disciple thus emphatically testifies, "God is love." we not peculiarly lament the wide spread of distress, which the spirit of contention is, even now, occasioning to suffering humanity? though it differs in degree, springs from the same root as private ill Therefore a people abhorrent of war, if they are consistent, will watch against the smallest bud of enmity, as it is conceived, on any occasion, in the heart. And the man who, in the school of Christ, hath learned the useful lesson of self-denial, will often make a sacrifice of his own will and opinion, though he may esteem them to be right, rather than persist in them, at the expense of Christian fellowship. 1808. P. E.

Seeing therefore the infinite value of love, that indispensable qualification of a true disciple, we are desirous of pressing it on every Advice to individual selfindividual, to examine impartially how far he feels it to flourish in his own mind, and to influence all his actions. And we believe that valence of love.

nothing will be so favourable to the preservation of this holy disposition as humility of heart, a temper in which we constantly see ourselves unworthy of the least of the Lord's mercies, and dependent only on his compassion for our final acceptance. Seeing also that no awakened mind can be without a view to a better and an enduring state, and that no one knows how soon he may be called to put off mutability; let us bear in perpetual recollection that, in the state to which we aspire, there is nothing but eternal love, joy, and adoration, in the presence of Him through whose love we were first awakened.

Friends encouraged to accept the office of peace-maker. In contemplating this copious subject, we feel disposed afresh to encourage friends to be prompt in undertaking, and prudent in executing, the blessed office of peace-maker. And we believe the patient endeavours of faithful friends will be generally crowned with success, in proportion as their own minds are seeking to Jesus, for assistance in performing an office on which He has pronounced his blessing; and in endeavouring to lead the minds of any contending persons, to a sense of the absolute necessity for all true disciples to live in peace one with another, and to forgive one another, even as God for Christ's sake has forgiven them. ¹ 1812. P. E.

11 Effects of true love and charity. One of the blessed effects of aspiring after holiness of life, is an increase of true love. This Christian virtue so expands and gladdens the heart, that its possessor having known its value, will be on the watch against any thing that may tend to disturb it: he will strive to yield to heavenly love, when causes of irritation present themselves. Even when he deems himself injured, he will be the more prepared to display the beauty of condescension, and, for the preservation of love and harmony, to relinquish his own right, and to refrain from insisting on his own views. He will be so guarded in his conversation as not to take pleasure in discoursing on the errors of his neighbour. Instead of thus contributing to kindle the flame of dissension and variance, he will be vigilant in his attempts to extinguish the sparks, by the power of persuasion and love. 1821. P. E.

May we labour after and forbearan increase of that fellowship and sympathy in which we can bear ance recomone another's burdens; and in which, if one member of the church suffer, the others can suffer with it, and if one be honoured, the others can rejoice with it. May it be the prayer of us all, that the charity which hopeth, believeth, and endureth all things, may increase and abound amongst us. Bear one with the other in meekness and love, amidst the infirmities of flesh and spirit. "Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to

MARRIAGE.

WE earnestly advise and exhort all young and unmarried friends, that they do not make any procedure one with another upon the ac- the subject of count of marriage, without first applying to their parents or guardians for their consent and agreement therein. And we also advise, that, in the first place, all young persons concerned, seriously wait upon the Lord for counsel and clearness in this weighty concern, before they make any procedure with any, in order to marriage; that they may not be led by any forward or uncertain affections in this great concern; to their own hurt, the grief of their friends, and the dishonour of truth. 1690. P. E.—1801.—1833.

It is further advised, that parents and guardians wait upon and seek the Lord for their children in proposals of marriage, before they give any encouragement thereunto; and that after they have suffered them to engage one another in affection, they do not consent to their breaking off upon any worldly account. 1707. P. E.

Parents are tenderly advised not to make it their first or chief care to obtain for their children large portions or settlements of marriage; but rather to be careful that their children be joined in marriage with persons of religious inclinations, suitable dispositions and temper, sobriety in manners, and diligence in business, (which are things essentially necessary to a comfortable life in a married state); and carefully to guard against all mixed marriages, and unequal yoking of their children. 1722. P. E.

As parents have a natural right to approve of, and consent to, the

- And we do exhort friends, that in the great concern of marriage, whereon much of the comfort and happiness of life depend, they be mindful to proceed in the fear of the Lord, and have an eye to Him for counsel and instruction in their choice; the neglect of which has been the ruin of many. 1734. P. E.
- This meeting strongly recommends friends to avoid and to discountenance very early proceedings in regard to marriage after the death of husband or wife; esteeming such conduct as tending to the dishonour and reproach of our Christian profession. 1691.—1833.
- Friends are advised against running into excessive, sumptuous, and costly entertainments at marriage dinners; a great part of the cost of which would be better employed in relieving the necessities of the poor. 1718. W. E.

Rules for proceeding in relation to Marriage.

When the parties are members of the same monthly meeting.

8 Rules for proceeding in marriage. I. The parties intending to join in marriage, are first to declare their intention at the monthly meeting whereof they are members, in terms of the following import, viz. the man, that he intends to take D. E. to be his wife, if the Lord permit: the woman, that she intends to take A. B. to be her husband, if the Lord permit.

- II. These declarations are to be made first before the women's meet-Rules for proing where such are held, and then before the men's meeting.
 - marriage.
- III. If parents or guardians be present, they are to declare their consent, if absent, a certificate or certificates are to be produced, signifying, that it is with their consent the parties proceed to accomplish their intended marriage; which certificates are to be signed by the parents or guardians, and attested by two competent witnesses.
- IV. If there appear no sufficient objection, the said meetings are to appoint two men and two women friends to inquire into the clearness of the parties from any other marriage engagements. Those appointed by the men's monthly meeting are also to see if there be issue by a former marriage or marriages, that the children's rights are legally secured; and to take care that public notice of such intended marriage be given at the close of a first-day morning meeting to which the parties respectively belong: this is to be done as early as convenient after the appointment, and in the following form: Friends, there is an intention of marriage between A.B. of N. and D.E. of P.: if any person have any thing to object let timely notice be given.
- V. The friends appointed are to make report at a subsequent monthly meeting of the day and place of the publication of the intended marriage, and on the other subjects of their appointment: the particulars of this report are to be recorded. If no sufficient obstruction appear in the monthly meeting, liberty is then to be granted to the parties to solemnize the marriage; and the women's monthly meeting is to be informed of this conclusion.

When the parties are members of different monthly meetings.

VI. If the parties be of different monthly meetings, the man is first to declare his intention to the men's monthly meeting to which he belongs, and there to produce certificates of his parents' or guardians' consent to his proceedings therein; also of the woman's consent, and of that of her parents or guardians; each signed by the respective party or parties, and attested by two competent witnesses. If there appear no sufficient objection, two men friends are to be appointed who are to proceed as directed in rule IV. If no sufficient obstruction arise, they are to prepare and produce to the monthly meeting a certificate thereof, which, if approved, is to be issued by the meeting, and forwarded to the monthly meeting to which the woman belongs. The man is not to be required in this case to produce to the monthly meeting of which the woman is a member, certificates of the consent of his parents or guardians to his proceedings in marriage.

It is however agreed that after the man has, with the necessary consent of the parties concerned, declared his intention of marriage to the monthly meeting of which he is a member, a notification of his having so done, in the following form, may be signed by the clerk of the meeting on his behalf: viz.

Monthly Meeting of Friends.

Dear Friends,

We hereby inform you, that A. B., a member of this meeting, has communicated to us on the day of the month, 18, his intention of marriage with D. E., a member of your monthly meeting, accompanied by the needful certificates of the consent of all parties concerned. An appointment is made agreeably to the direction of the yearly meeting, and if no obstruction arise, a certificate is to be issued in due course.

Signed on behalf of monthly meeting, held this day of month, 18.

With this notification he may proceed to the monthly meeting to which the woman belongs, where they are to propose their intention of marriage to the women's and men's meetings, who are to receive and act upon the said proposal of marriage as regards the woman, as already prescribed. A certificate of clearness on behalf of the man from the monthly meeting of which he is a member, must however be produced to that to which the woman belongs, before liberty for solemnizing the marriage is granted; which certificate is to be in the following form:—

VII. Monthly meetings are to make a suitable appointment of friends, to take the needful care that good order be observed on the day of marriage, and that the certificates and the registers of the marriage be properly filled up, and duly signed and witnessed; who are to make a report to the next monthly meeting.

VIII. Marriages are to be solemnized at the usual week-day meeting, or at a meeting appointed at some seasonable hour in the forenoon on some other convenient week-day (previous notice in the latter case having been given); and at the meeting-house to which the woman belongs, unless leave be obtained of the woman's monthly meeting to solemnize the marriage in some other meeting-house, with the consent of the friends of such other meeting.

IX. After the meeting has been held a seasonable time, the parties are to stand up, and, taking each other by the hand, to declare in an audible and solemn manner to the following effect: the man first, viz. Friends, I take this my friend D. E. to be my wife, promising,

B. and D. E. after due inquiry and deliberate consideration thereof, were allowed by the said meeting, they appearing clear of all others, and having consent of parents [or guardians, as the case may be]. Now these are to certify, that for the accomplishing of their said marriage, this month, in the year one thousand eight day of the , they, the said A. B. and D. And the said D. E. did then and there, in the said assembly, declare Rules for proceeding in marriage.

And the said A. B. and D. E. as a further confirmation thereof, and in testimony thereunto, did then and there to these presents set their hands.

A. B.

We, being present at the above said marriage, have also subscribed our names as witnesses thereunto, the day and year above written.

If the man be a member of a different monthly meeting from that to which the woman belongs, when report is made to the monthly meeting of which the latter was a member, that the said marriage has been solemnized, a notification in the following form is to be sent to the monthly meeting to which the man belongs; and the said meeting on receiving such notification, is desired in every case to enter on its minutes a copy thereof.

Form of Notification.

The Monthly Meeting of is hereby informed, that the Marriage between A. B. and C. D. was solemnized in Friends' Meeting-House at in the County of the day month, 18.

Signed in and on behalf of Monthly Meeting held at the of month, 18.

On Marriages contrary to our Rules.

It is our living sense and judgment, that not only those marriages of near kindred, expressly forbidden under the law, ought not to be near kindred practised under the gospel; but that we in our day ought not to take first cousins in marriage, being brought to that spiritual dispensation which gives dominion over the affections, and leads to those marriages which are more natural, and of better report. And though some, through weakness, have been drawn into such marriages (which being done must not be broken,) yet let not their practice be a precedent or example to any others amongst us for the time to come. 1675.

11 Violation of contract of marriage. And further, that such friends as have with serious advice, due deliberation, and free and mutual consent, absolutely agreed, espoused, or contracted upon the account of marriage, shall not be allowed, or owned amongst us, in any unfaithfulness or injustice one to another, to break or violate any such contract or engagement: which is to the reproach of truth, or injury one of another. And where any such injury, breach, or violation of such solemn contract is known or complained of, or enmity or strife occasioned thereby, we advise and counsel that a few faithful friends, both men and women, in their respective meetings, to which the parties belong, be appointed to inquire into the cause thereof, and to report to a succeeding monthly meeting the result of their inquiry, that it may use its discretion as to the due exercise of the discipline in the case.

On consent of parents, &c.

And, further, we advise and exhort that no engagements made without honest endeavours to obtain, or due regard first had to, the counsel and consent of parents, relations, and friends, be countenanced; that so all foolish and unbridled affections, and all ensnaring and selfish ends, be not so much as found among us on any hand. 1675.—1833.

12 Marriages of first cousins. This meeting, on receiving a minute relating to marriage of persons near of kin, having taken into consideration the yearly meeting minute of 1675, made against such marriages, and particularly of first cousins, do declare it to be our sense and judgment, that no monthly meeting should pass first cousins in order for marriage; and this meeting earnestly desires all friends, whenever they know or hear of any first cousins designing or intending to marry, that they immediately advise them against it. 1747.—1801.

The modifying or rescinding of the rules which disallow the marriage of first cousins amongst us, has been at this time deliberately considered, and this meeting does not deem it right to make any alteration in the said rules. 1833.

In order to put a stop to an undue liberty in contracting marriages with such as are not of our society, it is advised, that all parents and guardians of children do take especial care, as much as in them lies, to prevent their children from running into such marriages; and that the friends of each particular meeting, as also of the monthly meeting to which such persons belong, do, in the wisdom and power of truth, use their endeavours to put a stop to the said evil, by admonishing such as may attempt to marry as aforesaid; but if they refuse to take counsel, or go on to marry as aforesaid, that then such persons be dealt with according to the good order of truth, and judgment fixed upon all who take such an undue liberty. 1719. P. E.—1833.

On contracting marriage with those not members of our society.

And it is the sense and judgment of this meeting, that when any marry by the priest, or in any other manner contrary to the established rules of the society, they shall be dealt with in the spirit of Christian love and tenderness, agreeably to our known discipline; and that if after the commission of such offence, access cannot be had to them for the right exercise of the discipline, on account of their absence from the United Kingdom, they shall not be relieved in the manner of poor friends until they be restored into unity with the monthly meeting to which they belong. 1744.—1783.—1833.

15 Marriages by the priest.

This meeting having deliberately considered the great exercise brought upon our society, by divers in profession with us, who, contrary to our known principles, and the wholesome discipline established among us, are joined in marriage by the priest with persons either of our own or other persuasions, doth earnestly advise, that all friends use their utmost endeavours to prevent such marriages, when the parties' inclinations may come to their knowledge. 1768.

Parents or guardians consenting to marriages contrary to our rules.

This meeting being sorrowfully affected under the consideration of divers in our society entering into marriage with such as are not in membership with us; or being married, in a manner contrary to our established rules, with such as are in profession with us; to prevent which, many minutes directing dealing with such offenders have from time to time been made; but the said minutes not appearing to extend to parents and guardians, that may be encouraging such marriages; it is therefore the direction of this meeting, when that appears to be the case, that such parents or guardians, so offending, be dealt with in a spirit of Christian love and meekness; and unless satisfaction be given to the monthly meeting in which such circumstances may fall out, that a testimony may go forth against them. 1752.—1833.

18 Clandestine proceedings. We also recommend the good order of friends relating to marriage, that it be carefully preserved and duly maintained in the first and earliest proceedings leading thereunto, as well as the orderly solemnization thereof; and if any persons, contrary to the repeated advice and established order of friends, shall, under any pretence whatsoever, presume to take one another in any meeting for worship, without the consent of the monthly meeting to which they belong, such proceeding being of a clandestine nature, tending to make void the just care of friends in that case, we advise that the monthly meeting do not fail to testify against the practice, as well as against the persons concerned therein. 1730. P. E.

19 Regulation in the case of a woman who marries contrary to our rules. This meeting is of the judgment, that when a woman marries a member of another monthly meeting, in a manner contrary to our rules, she should be dealt with by, or on behalf of, the monthly meeting to which she belonged before marriage. 1796.

20 Elders and overseers as well as parents to guard against mar-

This meeting having solidly considered the great inconsistency, and pernicious effects, of marriages by the priest with persons not of our society, as being a violation of our testimony against a hireling ministry, which we, as a people, have always believed it our duty to testify against: seeing also, that disorder in families is thereby occa-riages by the sioned, generally rendering a married state (which under the divine blessing, and within the limit of truth, is helpful towards a religious growth) a state of confusion and perplexity, and laying waste that united religious care, which ought to accompany the minds of parents for the education of their offspring in the principles of true religion. Under the sorrowful consideration of these and other unhappy effects of such undue proceedings, and the great difficulty of reclaiming such offenders, when thus united to persons of different religious principles; we earnestly advise all parents, and others who have youth committed to their care, to be very watchful against their forming such connexions; and when they, or overseers and elders, perceive any in danger thereof, that they timely advise and deal with them, to prevent their being thus entangled.

And as we have great cause to believe, that remissness in dealing, and weakness in some monthly meetings in accepting superficial and in- ficial acknowsincere acknowledgments, have had a great tendency to promote such advised marriages, we earnestly advise, that monthly meetings be very careful not to accept acknowledgments without full satisfaction of the sincere repentance of such transgressors, manifested by a conduct circumspect

23 General advice. Marriage being a divine ordinance, and a solemn engagement for term of life, is of great importance to our peace and well-being in this world, and may prove of no small consequence respecting our state in that which is to come; yet it is often too inconsiderately entered into, upon motives inconsistent with the evident intention of that unerring Wisdom by which it was primarily ordained; which was for the mutual assistance and comfort of both sexes, that they might be meet-helps to each other, both in spirituals and temporals, and that their endeavours might be united for the pious and proper education of their children, in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and for suitably qualifying them to discharge their duty in the various allotments in the world.

Marriage implies union and concurrence, as well in spiritual as temporal concerns. Whilst the parties differ in religion, they stand disunited in the main point; even that which should increase and confirm their mutual happiness, and render them meet-helps and blessings to each other.

To prevent falling into these disagreeable and disorderly engagements, it is requisite to beware of the paths that lead to them—the sordid interests, and ensnaring friendships of the world, the contaminating pleasures and idle pastimes of earthly minds; also the various solicitations and incentives to festivity and dissipation; likewise especially to avoid too frequent and too familiar converse with those from whom may arise a danger of entanglement, by their alluring the passions, and drawing the affections after them.

For want of due watchfulness, and obedience to the convictions of divine grace in their consciences, many amongst us, as well as others, have wounded their own souls, distressed their friends, injured their families, and done great disservice to the church, by these unequal connexions; which have proved an inlet to much degeneracy, and mournfully affected the minds of those who labour under a living concern for the good of all, and the prosperity of Truth upon earth. 1777. P. E.

General advice.

MASTERS, MISTRESSES, SERVANTS, AND APPRENTICES.

- Advised, that servants professing the truth behave themselves in due subjection, humility, and plainness, as becomes their profession and places: and likewise, that masters and mistresses behave themselves toward their servants, according to the apostle's direction. Eph. vi. 5, 6, 9. Col. iv. 1. 1 Tim. vi. 1, 2. Titus ii. 9, 10. 1 Pet. ii. 18, 19, 20. 1703. P. E.
- A religious care is recommended toward our servants, that all Servants to be encouraged to appearance of pride, idleness, and vain conversation in them may be discouraged; and that they may be exhorted to attend First-day and week-day meetings, and have a sense of God's love upon their spirits, and therein partake of the sweetness of truth; and in the discharge of their duty to God, and to their masters and mistresses, know peace in themselves. 1718. W. E.
- We earnestly intreat, that it may be the constant care of all masters 3 Advice to and mistresses properly to teach, restrain, and example those whom masters and mistresses re-Providence hath placed under them, for their help, direction, and prespecting those under their servation, and for whom an account must be rendered; bringing them care. up in the fear of the Lord, and in that sobriety, moderation, and plainness of speech, apparel, and deportment, which become a people professing to be followers of our Lord Jesus Christ, the perfect pattern of humility and self-denial. 1760. P.E.
- The situation of the offspring, and of the servants, of those who $^{\Lambda}_{\text{trust in}}_{\text{riches leads to}}$ neglect the due attendance of our religious meetings, is greatly to be lamented; as is that even of some who, though frequently seen at indifference them, do not, by their conduct, seem to believe that it is required tendance of of them to allow their dependents also to attend; but are leaving these still to pursue the world for them at home. For if any have, in a greater or a less degree, made gold their hope, or have said to the fine gold, "Thou art my confidence," it will be found that, in proportion, they will be slack in bringing their families to our accustomed opportunities for public worship. 1797. P. E.

We request those who have the privilege of ability to employ servants, whether professing with us or not, to sympathize with them in with servants their labours, to delight to render them happy, and to seek for that bours: disposition that can lead them along as fellow-travellers in the road to the city of God. Various are the means by which this may be attempted. The principal one certainly is, the keeping of the mind attentive to the discoveries of Truth; and as, we doubt not, a perusal their attendof the Scriptures is the frequent employ of many families, we desire family readthat the servants may be made partakers of the benefits resulting from Scriptures rethe practice, and from occasional opportunities of retirement in spirit. 1805. P. E.—1833.

This meeting has been impressed with the importance of the exercise of a due care towards young persons who are taken as apprentices by friends to friends. It may be thought that an additional responsibility attaches into their emto the taking of members of our society in that station, or as shopmen of our own soor servants; but this meeting trusts that if, from a sincere desire to protect such individuals, friends were willing to give a preference to our own members, a real satisfaction would arise from it; and we further desire that those who fill the station of masters, may endeavour to discharge the important duties which devolve upon them, in a moral and religious care of those who are employed in their service.

We are comforted in the persuasion that the care and instruction which many in early life have received in our public schools have an interest in been a blessing to them, and we are anxious that both masters and the welfare of young persons within their meetings: other friends in the meetings in which these and other young persons reside, may watch over them for good, and be willing in various ways to show an affectionate interest in their comfort and welfare. A few kind expressions arising from a solicitude for their moral and spiritual good, offered in love as opportunities occur, may have more effect than is at the time apprehended. 1828.

and to promote the attendance of servants, &c. at public worship.

This meeting recommends friends who have the charge of servants and apprentices, to extend kind attention and care towards them, and to make such domestic arrangements as may enable them to attend public worship duly and punctually, and to promote their employing the portions of the First-day of the week not so occupied, in a manner becoming the professors of the Christian name. 1833.

MEETING FOR SUFFERINGS.

AGREED, that certain friends of this city be nominated to keep a constant meeting about sufferings four times in a year, with the day and time of each meeting here fixed and settled. That at least one friend of each county be appointed by the quarterly meeting thereof, to be in readiness to repair to any of the said meetings at this city, at such times as their urgent occasions or sufferings shall require. 1675.

l Meeting for sufferings es tablished.

It is agreed to be sufficient, that the meeting for sufferings be held in course on the first Sixth-day in each month; subject nevertheless, on any emergency, to the call of any five of the members thereof. 1794.—1798.

2 Time of meeting.

N. B. It appears by the records of the meeting for sufferings, that the mode of meeting every week was practised in the year 1676; and continued until the year 1794.

The meeting for sufferings, (so called from the nature of its original object,) is a standing committee of this meeting, and is entrusted with a general care of whatever may arise during the intervals of this meeting, affecting our religious society, and requiring immediate attention; particularly of such matters as may occasion an application to the legislature for the relief of the society in regard to its Christian testimonies. 1833.

3 Character and duties.

Agreed, that the meeting for sufferings do consist of correspondents nominated by the several quarterly meetings and approved by this meeting, and of those appointed by meetings in foreign parts corresponding with this meeting, and of foreign correspondents appointed by this meeting; and likewise of men friends in the stations of ap-of members.

It is agreed that the following minute be read previously to the Qualifications calling over of the correspondent-book in this meeting.

> This meeting having considered the nature and importance of the affairs transacted by the meeting for sufferings, and the continued necessity there is that they should be managed by grave and weighty friends, such as are themselves men of clean hands, and adorning the doctrine they profess, in their lives and conversation; it is the earnest desire of this meeting, that friends be particularly careful in their choice of such as are to act as correspondents, either in the city or the counties; informing themselves, as much as may be, of the qualifications of those who are intended for such services; and that such only may be nominated as are faithful in the several branches of our Christian testimony against tithes, bearing arms, and oaths, and are also exemplary in their conduct and conversation amongst men, and coming up in that plainness of speech, behaviour, and apparel, which highly becomes those in an especial manner, who are concerned in managing the affairs of the church. 1747.—1759.

Choice of London correspondents.

The elders and overseers of the several monthly meetings in the quarterly meeting of London and Middlesex, are directed to take particular notice of those friends in their respective meetings, whose conduct and conversation appear to be agreeable to the description given in the last preceding minute, respecting the choice of correspondents.

And those elders and overseers are to meet together annually, at a convenient time before the yearly meeting, and make a list of such friends' names, as shall be by them approved for this service; and leave the said list with the clerk of the meeting for sufferings, for the information of friends in the country. Nevertheless, it is not hereby intended to restrain them from choosing any member of that meeting, provided he is not already a correspondent for more than three places. 1772.—1833.

Agreed, that the quarterly meetings be directed expressly to give instructions to their representatives who attend this meeting, what correspondents they shall nominate in the city, in the room of any friends representadeceased or removed; or else expressly leave them to their liberty of tives as to a choice of corchoice. 1725.

The meeting for sufferings, on the removal of any of its members, by death or otherwise, from the office of correspondent, is to give Quarterly notice to the quarterly meeting by which such correspondent was be informed appointed, in order that the quarterly meeting may be prepared to moval of their propose a successor at the ensuing yearly meeting; and it is agreed respondents. that the meeting for sufferings is, at its discretion, to report to this meeting the names of such correspondents in London, as do not attend Regulation it six times in the year, in order to their being discharged by this respecting attendance. meeting, unless sufficient reason be rendered for their absence. —1737.—1801.—1833.

Provision respecting ministers travelling in foreign parts:

This meeting is of the judgment that the yearly meeting of ministers and elders, or the morning meeting, when it sees right to liberate a friend to travel in the work of the ministry in foreign parts, out of the acknowledged limits of any monthly meeting, should inform the meeting for sufferings of such conclusion. The last mentioned meeting is desired to extend such Christian care as it may deem necessary, in aiding friends thus liberated in the prosecution of their concern, and also from time to time during the said engagement, particularly as it relates to their being suitably accompanied. And it is further left to the said meeting to exercise its discretion in regard to the companions of such travelling friends; care being taken that, when convenient, a minute of the approbation of the monthly meeting of which any such companion is a member, has been obtained.

applicable also to ministers from America or elsewhere. In the case of any friend liberated to travel on similar service from America or elsewhere, the foregoing provision is also to apply, after such friend shall have laid his concern before our yearly meeting of ministers and elders, when it can conveniently be done, or otherwise before the morning meeting, which meeting is to inform the meeting for sufferings of the circumstance. 1827.—1833.

MEETINGS FOR DISCIPLINE.

It is our judgment and testimony, that the rise and practice, setting up and establishment of men's and women's meetings, in the church of Christ in this our generation, is according to the mind and counsel of objects of our meetings for God, and done in the ordering and leading of his eternal Spirit; and that it is the duty of all friends and brethren in the power of God, in all parts, to be diligent therein, and to encourage and further each other in that blessed work; and particularly that friends and brethren in their respective counties encourage their faithful and grave women in the settlement of the said meetings. Advised, that the church's testimonies and judgments against disorderly and scandalous walkers, as also the repentance and condemnation of the parties restored, be recorded in the respective monthly meetings, for the clearing of truth, friends, and our holy profession. And it is also our advice in the love of God, that after any friend's repentance and restoration, he abiding faithful in the truth that condemns the evil, none among you so remember his transgression, as to cast it at him, or upbraid him with it; for that is not according to the mercies of God.

Let all your affairs be managed in your meetings, in the peaceable wisdom and spirit of our Lord Jesus Christ; not striving, but bearing On the right conducting of one with and for another; that the power of Christ may rest upon you, the discipline. and rule in all your assemblies. 1696. P.E.

Keep all your meetings, as well those for good order, charity, and Christian discipline, as those set apart entirely for the worship of God, in his love, and in the name, power, and peaceable spirit of his dear Son Jesus Christ, which is the alone true authority of all our meetings;

On the right conducting of the discipline.

DISCIPLINE. for without Him we can do nothing: and in his blessed power, stand fast in righteous judgment over all unruly and disorderly spirits, that would break in upon the good order and discipline settled among us; as well as over all those that seek to lay waste the testimony of truth, and cause the offence of the cross to cease. 1700. P. E.

Our monthly and quarterly meetings being set up by the power and 4 in the wisdom of God, which is the authority of those meetings, all friends are tenderly desired and advised, carefully to keep to, and in, that authority; and therein manage all the business and affairs of the said meetings, in discharge of their duty to God and his church; and not expect or depend upon this meeting for particular direction from time to time, how they shall proceed in the management of the concerns of those meetings, relating to truth's testimony and service; but wait for, and depend upon, the power and wisdom of God for counsel and direction in such matters and cases as may come before them; which will be to the great ease of this meeting, and dispatch of the proper concerns thereof. And let the man's part, and natural wisdom and attainments, be subject to the power and spirit of God, which will truly edify the body in love, righteousness, and peace.

It is recommended unto faithful friends and elders especially, to watch over the flock of Christ in their respective places; that they faithfully and diligently walk up to the testimony of the blessed truth, to which the Lord hath gathered us in this latter age of the world; that so where any are found short, weak, or faulty, they may be admonished and sought in the spirit of love, which is the spirit of the gospel-that divine charity, wherein mercy is not only mixed with judgment, but may appear over all our works; that it may be seen by all, that church-love abounds before church-censure comes, and that a gospel-spirit is the spring and motive to all our performances, as well in discipline as worship. 1703. P. E.

So will all be done in a holy awe, reverence, and humility, and none 5 will intrude themselves into things too high for them, nor exalt themselves above their proper growths and stations in the church, whether DISCIPLINE. they be elder or younger; but self (that great mountain which stands on the right so much in opposition to the cross of Christ, and his love and peace in conducting of the discipline. the church) will be abased, and the Lord alone exalted among his people. 1706. P. E.

Recommended, that friends concerned in meetings for discipline, do labour to know their own spirits subjected by the Spirit of Truth; that thereby being baptized into one body, they may be truly one, in the foundation of their love and unity; and that therein they may all labour to find a nearness to each other in spirit: this being the true way to a thorough reconciliation, wherever there is, or hath been, any difference of apprehension. Hereby friends will be preserved in that sweetness of spirit, that is, and will be, the bond of true peace throughout the churches of Christ. 1717. P. E.

Advised, that nothing be done through strife and contention, or vain glory, murmuring or disputing; but in the spirit of meekness, love, and humility carry yourselves towards one another: and ye younger brethren, endeavour to know your places, as living members of one body, and preserve a due regard to your elders in Christ Jesus. 1718. P. E.

Advised to a cementing in a very close and brotherly fellowship one with another in the divine Spirit; and therein to watch against all occasion of discord, or breach of unity, in any quarterly, monthly, or particular meeting; to the end Sion may continue a quiet habitation, the glory and presence of God rest and remain on her, and the spirit and doctrine of the gospel be lived in and maintained. And we also recommend, that such friends as are concerned in the affairs of the church, in quarterly, monthly, or particular meetings, be careful to act therein in the wisdom of God; whereby they will be exemplary to the young: and as such young persons are found to be qualified with a real sense of truth upon their spirits, and subjection thereunto, and thereby made capable to come up to a service in their respective meet. 8

On the right conducting of the discipline.

ings, friends are desired to encourage and bring them forward therein; whereby they may be helpful to the ancients, and brought up in a life of righteousness, to walk and act to the praise of God's holy name; and, standing in their lot, may supply the place of the elders in such meetings, through the same spirit, when they are gone. 1722. P. E.

- Advised, that friends, in meetings for discipline, watch over their own spirits; that no indecent warmth get in, whereby the understanding may be hurried, and hindered from a regular judgment on the affairs before the meeting. 1724. P. E.
- As the promotion of piety and charity is the end and intent of our meetings for the discipline of the church, a weighty concern rests upon us, that friends be careful diligently to attend those meetings; and, when there, to act in the wisdom given them of God, with a real and living sense of truth upon their spirits; that so the affairs of the church may be carried on in brotherly love: and in that sweet, calm, and Christian disposition of mind, which tends to the mutual comfort and edification one of another, and of the church in general. 1733. P. E.
- We earnestly exhort all friends and brethren, that, under a living concern of spirit for the honour of God and welfare of his people, they diligently watch over one another for good: and where any weakness or unfaithfulness, touching any branch of our Christian testimony, appears in any making profession with us, let such be timely and tenderly advised, and in the wisdom of truth stirred up to do their duty. 1734. P. E.
- It is earnestly recommended, as a means very conducive to the preservation of friends a people of one heart and one way, for the good of themselves and their children after them, that the discipline of the church, in the several meetings instituted for that purpose, be kept up and managed in a spirit of love and wisdom. Let all things in those meetings be done with charity; let the love of God, in an especial manner, rule in your hearts; and therein, though sometimes different DISCIPLINE. sentiments may arise, yet will every member have the same thing in On the right view, viz. the glory of God, and the good of his church and people; conducting of the discipline. and will, in this singleness of heart, best promote the great end and services of those meetings. We advise therefore, that nothing be done through strife and contention, or from any private views, or by the influence of numbers; but in lowliness of mind, let each esteem 1735. P. E. another better than himself.

We tenderly exhort, that in all your meetings for the discipline of the church, you wait in humility to have your own spirits brought into a holy subjection to the spirit of Christ; that thereby you may be duly qualified for the work and service conducive to the building up of his church; in which work all who are engaged, should be men of upright hearts, and clean hands, rightly prepared for the service they undertake. 1748. P. E.

The want of a due concern to deal with such as walk inconsistently with our holy profession, and are unfaithful in respect to our Christian testimony, being but too obvious, an early and diligent care over such is earnestly recommended; and we do desire, that all who have at heart the honour of God, and prosperity of truth, would be stirred up to discharge this necessary part of Christian duty in their Timely caution may often prevent unhappy respective stations. effects; and a brotherly care over such as are in danger of receiving hurt, may be rewarded with the secret satisfaction of being made instrumental in their preservation.

Greatly would the Christian discipline established amongst us (if thus exerted in divine wisdom and zeal) contribute to prevent the growing evils, and hurtful liberties of various kinds, which appear in too many places, to the dishonour of God, the grief of good men, and the reproach of our holy profession.

But if individuals neglect their duty, grow cool in their love to God, and lose that hunger after divine virtue and inward support, to live to his praise and their own comfort, which is the certain effect of his visitation, wherever it is embraced; how can a proper concern for the good of others, and for the prosperity of truth, have due place in their minds; or be properly exerted by those who are not enough engaged to feel after the increase of its blessed effects for themselves?

As this neglect of steadily applying and waiting for heavenly virtue and ability to discharge the duties required of us, is the source of loss and decay to individuals, with respect to a growth in religion; so the same unhappy effects are communicated to the body, and, where this is the case, evidently discover themselves in a disregard to discipline, and the want of a proper concern for the good order of the church.

Let all therefore be excited to labour, in a spirit of fervent charity, with such as may be in danger of falling into things injurious to their peace, and tending to the dishonour of our Christian profession; so that in thus exercising a tender care and watchfulness over one another, for mutual edification, we may approve ourselves faithful, just, and true, in the sight of God; and examples of temperance, patience, purity, and holiness before men; to the praise of the Most High, the comfort of his people, and our own eternal happiness. 1750. W. E.

In all your meetings for the discipline of the church, let all be done in a meek, calm, and peaceable spirit, in which the force and power of love may effectually operate upon those who shall perceive that your care and regard for their good and preservation in the truth, is founded upon so excellent a principle. May this peaceable wisdom and spirit of Christ ever preside in all your assemblies, that therein all your affairs may be conducted to his glory; who is worthy for ever and ever. 1752. W. E.

In order to unite us the more nearly one to another, as members of the same body, and to strengthen our hands to promote the general cause of truth, it is recommended to friends to stand open to the leadings of the love of God through Jesus Christ our Lord;

W.E. same spirit.

Let a necessary inquiry be raised in the minds of all members of the church, who have had any part of the Lord's work upon them, how they have acquitted themselves therein, and discharged themselves in the sight of God; forasmuch as a day comes on apace, in which an account of our stewardship will be required at our hands. The discipline of the society, in some places at a low ebb, would again be revived and strengthened, if this awful sense of rendering an account of our trust, and the importance of being clear from the blood of all men, were enough impressed upon all minds. And, dear friends, as it is the Lord's work, let it be done as in his sight. all answers to this meeting's, and other queries, be plain and explicit. Let a due sense of the state of the church prevail on your minds, rather than an unwillingness to appear deficient among your brethren. May a suitable engagement of mind prevail on all the active members of the church, to acquit themselves with faithfulness, that they may at last receive the crown of righteousness, which will never fade away. 1760, W. E.

A concern hath been spread amongst us, that the management of our Christian discipline be not committed to hands unclean; particularly that such should not be active therein, who allow, or connive at, undue liberties in their own children or families. "If a man," said the apostle, "know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?" And we particularly desire that those, who from their experience and stations, ought to lead such to greater circumspection, do not encourage their remissness, by putting them improperly forward into service. 1795. We earnestly recommend to meetings, to allow sufficient time for transacting the important business which may come before them, and to avoid unnecessary adjournments to distant times and places; but when the business cannot be properly accomplished at one sitting, that the adjournments may be held on the same or next succeeding day. 1787.—1801.

This meeting is impressed with a sense of the important duties which devolve upon quarterly and monthly meetings, and under this impression feels that small meetings for worship, and small preparative meetings, ought peculiarly to claim their attention. We desire that quarterly or monthly meetings may, from time to time, consider whether these meetings are held in such a manner, under such regulations, and at such times, as are best adapted to answer the end designed; and whether there may not be a propriety in appointing suit able committees occasionally to visit them. 1815.—1821.—1822.

This meeting has been afresh impressed with the benefits resulting from our Christian discipline, that salutary provision for the exercise of gospel love and care, and for the purpose of reclaiming and restoring those who may be overtaken with a fault. We believe that it had its origin in Divine authority; that it was founded on love one towards another; and that it has been a great blessing to our society. We therefore affectionately recommend, that where any are deficient, they should, in tenderness and love, be invited to assemble with their brethren in meetings held on these occasions. If it be the concern of all when thus met, to seek to have their minds settled in that state, in which they are most fit to perceive the gentle intimations and restraints of the Spirit of Truth, these meetings will often prove times of great instruction, of close self-examination, and of a renewal of strength; they would then tend to unite us still more strongly one unto another in the bond of Christian love; and they would be a means of increasing our esteem for those salutary restraints which our religious testimonies require. Some who may have far to travel to attend such meetings, whilst careful not to neglect their outward affairs, would do well, on the recurrence of these occasions, to con- DISCIPLINE. sider whether it would not be for their good thus to be separated On the right from the cares of this life; and to breathe, in tender aspirations, for the discipline. strength to rise above them; and these would, we believe, often be permitted to feel, that such acts of dedication are followed by a peaceful reward. 1819.—1820.

This meeting, notwithstanding the advice which has been issued of later years, believes it right again to express an earnest desire, that our meetings for discipline may be held in the power and authority of Truth. We recommend, that in making appointments in such meetings, care be taken to judge of the respective qualifications of those who are employed in the service of the church, and not to introduce friends to matters which may be beyond their religious strength.

As one means of preserving a quiet, settled frame of mind, we exhort friends to consider whether it may not be injurious to leave the meeting-house, or to enter into conversation, when about to attend a meeting for discipline, after having previously been at a meeting for worship; and we desire that this care may prevail, with regard to conversation, both before entering, and on leaving, all our religious meetings.

The meeting for divine worship, previous to a meeting for discipline, affords an opportunity for retirement in spirit before the Lord; a state in which we are best qualified to enter upon the concerns of the church: and if friends endeavour to settle down in this collected state of mind, and to maintain the watch as the business proceeds, we believe they will often be sensible of the prevalence of Christian love, be assisted to keep their own wills in due subjection, and manifest to others, that they have no desire that their sentiments may be adopted, rather than the solid judgment of the meeting.

The true nature and spirit of Christian discipline are thus instructively unfolded by the Apostle Paul: "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself lest thou also be tempted."¹ From this passage we may learn, that the first object of our discipline ought to be, to restore offenders; and that it should ever be conducted in the spirit of humility, meekness, and love.

While it is our steadfast endeavour, in the government of the Church, to maintain our integrity in the truth, a due sense of our own frailty will discourage all harsh judgment of our brethren; and the love of Christ, who came to seek and to save that which is lost, will lead his servants into earnest and patient endeavours to gather again those who are gone astray. Nor ought this Christian care to cease when disownment has taken place. It is the earnest desire of this meeting, that such individuals may not be overlooked in any part of the society; but that they may be the objects of the tender and watchful care of friends, in order to their restoration. 1833.

We have been much impressed with the value and importance of our Christian discipline: we believe that our forefathers in the Truth were graciously favoured with Divine aid in its establishment, and that it is in accordance with the simple principles of church government developed in the New Testament. While it enjoins upon us to be subject one to another in love, it neither encroaches on true Christian liberty, nor in any degree releases us from that individual dependence on the great Head of the church, and that obedience to his commandments, without which we can have no claim to be regarded as members of the body of Christ. We highly esteem this institution as a means of preservation to us and to our children, and most earnestly do we desire that it may ever be administered by men of clean hands, in the spirit of meekness, and in the fear of God. And we affectionately recommend those who are advancing to manhood, justly to appreciate the care which our discipline extends over them; to consider it a privilege to be subject to it, and, as occasions may arise, to contribute to uphold it. And whilst we fervently desire that the number of faithful labourers in word and doctrine may be increased, we wish to remind DISCIPLINE. our dear friends, that the discipline of the church affords a wide sphere of usefulness to all who are concerned for the prosperity of the cause of Truth; and little as, in some cases, our dear brethren and sisters may see of the fruit of their labours, we would at this time press it upon them not to relax in a pious watchful care over the flock. 1833. P. E.

Forasmuch as a godly care is growing among friends in many places, that all things which are unsavoury and hurtful may be re- Appointments recommended moved, so that all who profess the precious truth with us, may come to visit and advise friends up together in the good order of the gospel; for the furthering thereof, in their families. and encouraging thereto, it is recommended that weighty and sensible friends, of unblamable conversation, be chosen in the wisdom of God to visit the families of friends in his love; and they are desired to advise and admonish, in the peaceable spirit of truth, as occasion may offer. 1708. P. E.

This meeting being under a weighty concern and exercise, on observing that the many wholesome advices, recommended from year to year, are in too many places either neglected, or not enough practised; particularly those against tithes, church-rates so called, and priests' maintenance; also about keeping up to justice in dealing, plainness of habit and speech, and several other branches of our Christian testimony; we therefore again recommend to friends in their several monthly meetings, to take especial care to appoint proper, prudent, and judicious friends, to visit their brethren in their families, pursuant to former advices; and that such friends labour faithfully in a spirit of love, and in the meekness of wisdom, to convince the judgments of their respective members, of the necessity of their coming up with their brethren in practice, agreeable to our Christian principle; that so the several branches of the testimony, which truth hath given our ancients and us to bear, may be maintained inviolate.

DISCIPLINE.

We are concerned again to recommend to monthly meetings, the appointment of solid and judicious friends to visit the families of their brethren in Christian love, and therein to inform, admonish, and advise, as occasion may be; and we beseech you, brethren, let the tender advice of such as shall undertake so brotherly an office, meet with a kind and open reception, that in the mutual giving and receiving of wholesome counsel and advice, you may co-operate to the help and furtherance of each other's faith, and the reviving of our ancient Christian testimony. 1752. P. E.

A weighty concern being livingly impressed on our minds in this meeting, that good service may arise from visiting the families of our brethren, by rightly concerned friends, we are engaged to recommend to the sensible members of the body, and to monthly and quarterly meetings, to feel deeply after the pointings of truth; and that as this divine principle opens their way, they may promote this useful service in their respective meetings, by appointing suitable friends, of either or both sexes, who are desired to proceed therein in the love of the gospel, and under the tendering influence thereof; which we have good cause to hope may thus be attended with beneficial effects to the visited; and with solid satisfaction, and additional experience in the work of truth, to those who may be engaged therein. 1773.

YEARLY MEETING.

For better managing, ordering, and regulating the public affairs of friends, relating to truth, and the service thereof, it is agreed that a ing establishgeneral meeting be held in London annually. 1672.

Yearly meet-

The good and blessed intent and end of this and all our assemblies, is, with the Lord's assistance, for his honour: in the promoting and maintaining of our Christian society and religion, in life and practice, in all the parts and branches thereof. 1695. P. E.

Its object.

It is the fervent desire of this meeting, that the business and concerns thereof be solidly, in the fear of God, managed and carried on, ducting of its without contention or striving, and with as few words, and in as pertinent expressions to the matter in hand, as may be, for expediting the affairs thereof without loss of time, or any ways disordering the meeting; but one at a time speaking, and standing up, that all things may be done decently, and in good order.

The intent and design of our annual assemblies, in their first constitution, was for a great and weighty oversight and Christian care of the The maintenance of true affairs of the churches pertaining to our holy profession and Christian love and concord of essencommunion; that good order, true love, unity, and concord may be tial importfaithfully followed and maintained among all of us, as a peculiar people, called and chosen out of the world, and the errors and corruptions thereof; knowing also, that sincere love and union in general will be a great cause of truth's prosperity among ourselves, and of the prevalency thereof over the world, and the spirit of it: all which seriously considered, we sincerely desire and humbly hope, that God will be graciously pleased more and more to put into the hearts of friends and

5 Constitution.

It is concluded that this meeting consist of representatives from every quarterly meeting in Great Britain, and from the yearly meeting in Ireland; likewise of acknowledged ministers and appointed elders, and of the correspondents. Each quarterly meeting is to depute not more than eight, nor less than four representatives, where they can conveniently be found; but the quarterly meetings of Lancashire, London and Middlesex, and Yorkshire, in consideration of their numbers, are each allowed to send twelve. 1728.—1730.—1782.—1801.—1833.

6 Who to be deputed as representatives:

Quarterly meetings are desired to be careful annually to depute such friends to attend the service of this meeting, whose lives and conversation become our Christian profession, and who manifest their love to the cause of Truth by a diligent attendance of their meetings for worship and discipline at home, and by a faithful support of our various 1714. This meeting directs, that the names of the representatives to this given of their meeting, and also to the yearly meeting of ministers and elders, be entered under the answers to the respective queries, previously to the signatures of the clerks of the several quarterly meetings. that the representatives do deliver in their names in writing, and for what meetings, to the clerk of the meeting for sufferings in London, previously to the sitting of this meeting, that they may be entered in the yearly meeting book: in order to save time, and that the names may be entered more correctly. The names of the representatives are likewise to be indorsed on the answers to the queries; and a reference is to be added to any minute or testimony which may be sent from the quarterly meeting. 1753.—1790.—1833.

and of minutes, &c. from quarterly meetings.

It is agreed that the following be the arrangement for the holding of this meeting, and other meetings immediately connected therewith:

YEARLY MEETING.

The yearly meeting of ministers and elders to begin on the day after the third first day in the fifth month, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and to proceed the remainder of that day, and third day morning with its business.

8 Times of holding the yearly meet-ing and other meetings connected therewith.

The adjourned general meeting for Ackworth school, to be held on third day afternoon at five.

The yearly meeting at large to sit down on fourth day morning Meetings for worship to be held on sixth day morning at ten, and on fourth day morning in the week following at the same hour. 1798.—1833.

Advised, that no representatives withdraw, or go out of town, before the meeting end, without leave first requested and granted; that the service of the meeting may not be neglected. 1709.

Representatives not to be absent without leave.

It is agreed that the representatives shall meet at the close of the first sitting of this meeting in each year, and shall, when so met, nominate a clerk and two assistants for the current year, from amongst the members of this meeting; except that they shall be at liberty to nominate the former clerk. The said nomination is to be reported to the next sitting of this meeting previously to any other business: and the former clerk is not to consider himself discharged until another be chosen. 1807.—1822.—1833.

10 Clerk and assistants.

Agreed, that two or three friends be appointed to revise the minutes of each day's transactions, and to correct any slight inaccuracies that appointed to may be observed; and if any alterations or corrections in things of minutes. moment appear necessary, to propose the same to the meeting at its next sitting, previously to any other business; in order that the minutes may be entered with due accuracy, and in a manner clearly to be com prehended. 1762.

A committee is to be annually appointed to audit the accounts of this meeting, which committee is to consist of one representative from each quarterly meeting, by which means all the quarterly meetings may have an opportunity of being informed how the money collected for the general service of the society is expended. 1752.—1833.

Letters to be first perused by two or three friends.

All letters directed to this meeting, except from such meetings as regularly correspond therewith, are to be first perused by two or three friends to be appointed, who are to consider and report whether the same be proper to be read in this meeting or not. 1736.

14 Propositions to be sent in writing. This meeting desires, that all propositions from any quarterly or yearly meeting to this meeting, be delivered in writing, and signed by order of such meeting. 1735.

QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

All minutes and written epistles from the yearly meeting are to be entered by the quarterly meetings in fair books, and the printed epistles properly kept, that all friends of their counties may have recourse to them, as occasion shall require: and quarterly meetings preserved. are desired to take care, that the same attention be had in their several monthly meetings. 1727.—1801.

General or other periodical meetings.

It is agreed that where general or other periodical meetings are established in the place of quarterly meetings, directions respecting the latter are applicable to the former, so far as circumstances will admit. 1801.—1833.

Monthly meetings to receive the especial notice of quarterly meetings in the summer.

This meeting is of the judgment that due attention on the part of quarterly meetings to inspect and to assist their respective monthly meetings, when deficiencies are known to exist, is highly conducive to the maintenance of our Christian discipline. The several quarterly meetings of men and women friends are therefore desired, without omitting the necessary care at the time the answers are brought in, to employ also the Summer quarterly meeting in further attention to the state of their several monthly meetings, as laid open in the answers to the queries sent forward to this meeting. 1801.

In the consideration of that care which it is the duty of quarterly meetings to extend towards their monthly meetings, this meeting is engaged to recommend that at the Midsummer quarterly meeting, when the query expressly addressed to such meetings is brought under notice, the state of their respective monthly meetings should claim their solid consideration, more especially with a view to the extending of the necessary help to those monthly meetings which may be in a weak or reduced condition, and may stand in need of assistance; and if any quarterly meetings find that they require the help of this meeting, they are encouraged to represent the same in brotherly openness. 1827.

MEETINGS.

This meeting having considered the case of ministers who have to apply to their quarterly meetings for concurrence in their concerns to travel in religious service, concludes that the said meetings are at liberty to enter upon the consideration of such concerns in a joint quarterly meeting of men and women friends, if they should think it men and wodesirable to pursue such a course. 1830.

Concerns of ministers may be laid before the joint quarterly meeting of men friends.

The several quarterly meetings are to transmit annually in the Spring to the meeting for sufferings, information of any meetings which have been settled, discontinued, or united in the course of the year, in order be reported that such information may be duly communicated to this meeting. 1833.

MONTHLY MEETINGS.

Division of monthly meetings.

Agreed, that no monthly meeting shall be allowed to divide itself into two separate monthly meetings, without the consent or concurrence of the quarterly meeting. 1715.

Union of monthly meetings.

Wheresoever it appears that any monthly meetings, through the smallness of the number of friends attending them, are not sufficiently qualified for carrying on the discipline of the church, we wish that such small meetings might join some other neighbouring monthly meetings; that by such union they might be assisted and strengthened. 1752. W. E.

Establishment or discontinuance of meetings for worship, and preparative meetings.

It is the judgment of this meeting, when any monthly meeting thinks it right to establish any new meeting for worship or any preparative meeting, or to discontinue, either wholly, or in part, any such meeting already settled, that the same be reported to the quarterly meeting for its approbation, before it be carried into effect. 1822.

The care of small meetings for worship recommended.

This meeting being of the judgment that it would be an acceptable and useful service, if friends were occasionally to attend the smaller meetings for worship, held on first days, and on other days of the week, in the districts in which they reside, recommends the subject to the attention of quarterly and monthly meetings. Such an intercourse would enable friends to enter more closely into the peculiar circumstances of their brethren; and would, we believe, tend to strengthen the precious bond of Christian fellowship. 1826.

It is the judgment of this meeting that our meeting-houses be not lent for the purposes of worship to those who make use of modes and forms, from which we are religiously restrained. On this account, it is the further judgment of this meeting that the meeting-houses of on lending meeting. other societies should be very cautiously applied for, or accepted; and it is recommended that on such occasions, when unavoidable, friends do endeavour, in meekness and wisdom, to inform such as are free to offer their meeting-houses, of the reasons by which we are restrained from reciprocally granting our own. As the considerations which apply to meeting-houses in use do not altogether attach to those that are disused, this meeting leaves the subject of their appropriation to the dis-

MONTHLY

We earnestly desire the increase of true gospel labourers amongst us, for the edification of our own body, and the spreading of the truth Acknowledgment of milas it is in Jesus. At the same time, let us remember the apostolic nisters. advice, "Lay hands suddenly on no man;" for we have cause to believe that injudicious encouragement hath tended to promote an unsound ministry in some places. It is therefore recommended, that the ministers and elders, in the several monthly meetings, would tenderly advise those who come forth in public testimony, to wait patiently under a deep consideration of their state of infancy and childhood: and when their fruits afford sufficient evidence of their qualifications for so important a service, that such young ministers be reported to their monthly meetings; which, upon solid and deliberate consideration, may, as in the wisdom of truth shall seem meet, recommend them to the meetings of ministers and elders, in order to their becoming members of those meetings. 1773. W. E.—1833.

This meeting recommends to ministers and elders, when they may deem it proper to submit to the monthly meetings to which they belong, the propriety of acknowledging a friend as a minister, that previously to doing so they should apply to, and have the advice of, the quarterly meeting of ministers and elders of which they form a part. No record of such cases is to be made in any meeting of ministers and elders. 1830.

This meeting recommends, when a proposition for acknowledging a minister is about to be made to a monthly meeting, as pointed out by the two last preceding rules, or if the case originate in the meeting itself, that the same be brought forward in the men's monthly meeting, previously to its entering upon any other business. The men's meeting on receiving it, is either then, or at a more suitable time, to proceed, in conjunction with the members of the women's monthly meeting, to the consideration and conclusion of the case. 1810.—1822.—1833.

Concerns of ministers to travel on religious service:

It is the judgment of this meeting, when either men or women friends have a concern to travel in the work of the ministry, and have occasion to apply to their monthly meeting for a written testimonial of its concurrence, that they communicate their views to men and women friends collectively assembled, on notice being given at the close of the preceding meeting for worship, for the women friends to remain until the men's meeting is regularly constituted; when, on the concern of the individual being communicated, it is to be made the subject of joint deliberation and conclusion; after which, if the concern be united with, a certificate or other written testimonial of concurrence, is to be prepared, and signed in the men's and women's meetings separately. Nevertheless the friends thus collectively assembled are at liberty to postpone the decision, or refer the subject to a committee for consideration, whenever they may apprehend such delay or reference desirable; and any committee so appointed, is to make report at another joint conference, previously to the ordering or granting of a certificate. 1811. —1816.—1822.

10 Ireland: Ministers under a concern to visit the meetings of friends in the nation of Ireland, should have the concurrence of, and certificates from, not only the monthly, but also the quarterly meeting to which they belong, when it can be had with conveniency. 1763.

This meeting is of the judgment, that ministering friends who have a concern to travel in Scotland, or on the islands adjacent to that nation, with a view of holding meetings among those of other religious societies, should have the concurrence and unity of their quarterly meetings, in addition to that of their monthly meetings, when the same can be had with convenience; apprehending that such procedure will be of considerable advantage to friends under an exercise of so important a nature. Nevertheless, it is not meant, that this rule shall apply to friends travelling in the work of the ministry, whose concern is chiefly to the members of our own society.

MONTHLY MEETINGS. 11 in Scotland.

This meeting recommends, when monthly meetings liberate friends to travel in the work of the ministry, and the places at which their la- Expenses on these occabours are likely to commence are at a considerable distance from their sions. respective residences, as may particularly occur in the case of visits to Ireland and Scotland, that such meetings provide for the discharge of the necessary travelling expenses of such friends, and of a guide where needful, until they enter upon their service, in like manner as if the distance were less; and that similar expenses of any friends so travelling and returning home from a place considerably remote, be defrayed by any monthly meeting in Great Britain in the compass of which their service may terminate.

If in any of the cases which may come within the preceding recommendation, neither the monthly meeting, nor the quarterly meeting of which it forms a part, should be in a situation suitably to bear the expenses so incurred, it is agreed that the latter shall be at liberty to apply to the meeting for sufferings; which meeting may, in its discretion, reimburse the whole or any part thereof out of the national stock. 1827.

If this shall not take effect, then let complaint be made of such person to the monthly meeting to which he or she may belong; in order that proceeding thereon may be had accordingly, and the affair settled with all possible expedition. 1723.

14 Readmission into membership does not reinstate as a minister. If any one who has been a public minister, shall be guilty of such practices as may justly deserve public censure, and shall be publicly censured and disowned, and afterwards, upon tokens of repentance, be again admitted into membership; such readmission is not to be considered as reinstating him or her as a public minister. 1737. W. E.

15 Testimonies concerning deceased friends. When monthly meetings judge it proper to draw up testimonies respecting the religious lives and services of deceased ministers, they are desired to exercise due care therein; but to include, as far as may be expedient, the remarkable dying-sayings of such friends, and to mention the age, place of abode, time of decease, and place of burial, also how long they had been ministers: and it is desired that these testimonies or accounts may be drawn up with sufficient regard to conciseness, and be revised and recorded by the quarterly meetings, previously to their being sent to this meeting.

Where no particular account concerning a deceased minister is judged necessary, information is nevertheless to be transmitted to this meeting, of the name, age, place of abode, time of decease, and place of burial of such friend, and it is also to be noted, how long he or she had been a minister. 1710.—1713.—1740.—1743.—1791.—1801.

On considering the subject of admitting testimonies concerning deceased friends, other than ministers, it is concluded best to make no alteration of the former practice of this meeting: nevertheless any friend who may have in possession any instructive communications from friends near the close of life, is encouraged to send up the same to the clerk of the meeting for sufferings in London, to be laid before that meeting for its disposal. 1795.—1833.

Monthly meetings are desired to appoint some serious, discreet, and judicious friends, who are not ministers, tenderly to encourage and help young ministers, and advise others, as they in the wisdom of God see occasion; and where there are meetings of ministering friends, the friends so appointed are to be admitted as members of such meetings of ministers, and to act therein for the good purposes aforesaid. 1727.

Appointment

In the appointment of elders, age or wealth is not to be an inducement in the choice; but let such be appointed as fear God, and love his truth in sincerity, who, being sound in Christian doctrine, and of clean hands, may comfort the feeble-minded and reprove the unruly, with proper weight. 1761.—1833.

In order to assist in a suitable choice, when an appointment of elders appears to a monthly meeting to be desirable, application is to be made to the quarterly meeting for the assistance of a few friends; and the quarterly meeting of women friends is to have the opportunity of appointing some of its number. Monthly meetings are to appoint a few judicious men and women friends, prior to this application, who, with those appointed by the quarterly meeting, are to form a committee for judging of the gifts and qualifications of such as may be then proposed for this important station. Their report is to be presented to the monthly meeting for its consideration. Such friends as may be thus nominated, if approved by the monthly meeting, are to be appointed to the station of elder. Information thereof is to be conveyed to the meeting of ministers and elders; as from the period of their appointment they become members of the said meeting. 1784.—1796.—1812.—1833.

Monthly meetings are at liberty, after the exercise of due care and admonition, to displace from the appointment, such elders as appear to be either incompetent to their station or unfaithful in it. 1772.—1776.—1801.

20 Displacing of elders. MONTHLY MEETINGS.

21 Change of residence of elders. Doubts having arisen, whether a friend appointed to the station of elder in any monthly meeting retains that station, if removed into another monthly meeting; it is the judgment of this meeting that such station is not lost, provided such removal be within the same quarterly meeting; but in case the removal of an elder be out of the limits of the quarterly meeting to which he or she belongs, such elder shall not be continued in that station, unless a reappointment be made, pursuant to the rules for the choice of elders. 1801.

22 Appointment of overseers. To the end that effectual care be taken in all cases wherein the testimony of truth is concerned, we advise you to appoint some faithful friends of your respective meetings to see how well such things are observed; and tenderly to admonish those, in brotherly love, that shall decline the same. 1698. P. E.

We desire, pursuant to former advices, that meetings would appoint suitable friends as overseers of the flock; who are intreated to enter into and discharge this labour with a ready mind. And, dear friends, we earnestly recommend, that in all your meetings, in the choice of elders, or overseers of the flock, you be especially careful to choose such as are themselves of upright and unblamable conversation; that the advice which they shall occasionally administer to other friends may be the better received, and carry with it the greater weight and force on the minds of those whom they shall be concerned to admonish. 1752. W. E.

When an appointment of overseers is necessary, the matter is to be referred to a committee of judicious friends; who are to report to the monthly meeting, for its approbation, the names of such friends as are thought suitable for that service. 1789.—1801.

It is the judgment of this meeting that, as far as circumstances will admit, at least two men and two women friends be appointed as overseers in each particular meeting. Where this is not the case, monthly meetings are desired in answering the fourteenth query briefly to represent to the quarterly meeting the particular situation in this respect of any such constituent meeting. 1833.

MEETINGS.

This meeting apprehends that considerable advantage would arise from each monthly meeting keeping an alphabetical list of its members, Lists of members to be exand examining such list at least once in the year; and recommends amined annuthe different quarterly meetings to take measures for the adoption of this practice. 1812.

On the subject of the right of children to membership in the society, this meeting considers it proper to define, that such right is to be understood as extending to any child born of parents in membership, such parents having been married in a manner agreeable to, or not in violation of the rules of the society; also to any child, either the father or mother of whom is at the time of its birth a member, provided such father and mother were married in a manner agreeable to, or not in violation of the said rules. Children who are the offspring of marriages contrary to such rules, unless born after the parents are severally, either by acceptance of acknowledgment, by reinstatement, or by admission, members in unity, are not to be considered as having a right to membership: yet it is the judgment of this meeting, that monthly meetings in which they reside, ought to extend a tender care over such born in membership to be children, and that it should be in the discretion of such meetings to admit them into membership, (either in their infancy or more advanced years,) according to circumstances. 1820.—1833.

Right of children to membership.

Children not born in mem cared for:

Children born after the disownment of their parents, and who duly attend our meetings for worship, being also of an orderly conversation, should be tenderly regarded; and when the meeting wherein they reside, apprehends they have attained sufficient judgment to choose for themselves, they should be visited, and if they express a desire to be esteemed members of our society, they ought to be admitted, at the discretion of the monthly meeting. 1767.

29 and also their parents. This meeting has derived satisfaction from the attention which has been paid in the respective quarterly meetings, to the children of parents not in affluence, not members of our society, which children are brought up in the attendance of our religious meetings; and wishes to encourage friends of the respective quarterly and monthly meetings to continue to extend a friendly care and interest towards the parents of such children, and towards the children themselves as regards their moral and religious education. 1829.—1833.

30 Finding places for boys as apprentices. This meeting having taken into consideration the loss which youth sustain for want of suitable places being timely known, wherein they may be placed out as apprentices, agrees that each monthly meeting be desired to inquire, (at least as often as at the monthly meeting which occurs before every quarterly meeting,) whether any masters want apprentices, or any boys want places; and if the inquiry should not supply the respective wants, to transmit an account of those which are unsupplied to the quarterly meeting. 1806.

31 Annual appointment to collect accounts of sufferings. This meeting recommends to general practice what hath been found of great use in many places, viz. an annual appointment in each monthly meeting of a suitable number of friends, to apply for an account of sufferings once a year to each of their members liable to priests' demands, tithes, or those called church-rates, also demands on account of the militia, and things of that nature; and, where weakness or unfaithfulness appears in any, to administer such advice and admonition as may be necessary for their help: and the monthly meetings are requested to take due care, that those appointed for this service be faithful and judicious friends. 1780.

32 To advise to the annual inspection of affairs, &c. This meeting directs that monthly meetings do annually make appointments of suitable friends to communicate to their members individually, whom it may concern, the advice to be imparted as to their keeping clear and correct accounts, and as regards a careful inspection into the state of their affairs once in the year. In the discharge of this service, opportunities are afforded for a kind and brotherly intercourse, which without intruding into the private affairs of individuals, may be productive of real benefit. 1793.—1833.

In the love of Christ, we earnestly exhort you to watch diligently over the flock, and deal in due time, and in a spirit of Christian love Exercise of the discipline and tenderness, with all such as walk disorderly amongst you, in order in cases of delinquency. to reclaim and restore them by brotherly counsel and admonition; and when, after patient waiting, you find that your Christian labour of love hath not its desired effect, neglect not to testify against and disown such persons, and thereby prevent the reproach and dishonour that may be brought upon our holy profession through their means; that the end and design of our wholesome discipline may be answered.

The want of due care in this respect, hath, as we apprehend, brought great difficulties on some meetings; for we think it both unseasonable and dishonourable, when persons apply to monthly meetings on account of marriage, or for relief in case of necessity, or any similar occasion, then to object to them such offences as the meeting, through neglect of its own duty, hath suffered long to pass by, unreproved, and unnoticed. 1743. W. E.

When any one of our members commits an offence, and after due private labour it has been communicated to the monthly meeting, that meeting shall appoint some well qualified friends to visit the offending member, and in Christian love to inquire carefully into the matter, and labour for the restoration of the brother or sister who may have been overtaken in a fault. The friends appointed are to report as early as convenient to the monthly meeting.

In the case of delinquency by a friend who is not a member of the meeting in which he resides, care should be taken, after due inquiry and private labour, that the meeting to which he belongs be informed of the case. The meeting of which he is a member is then to proceed to visit and deal with him, unless by reason of distance it be not conMONTHLY MEETINGS.

venient; in which case, it is to apply to the monthly meeting in which the offender resides, to act for it and visit him, and report its proceedings to the meeting of which he is a member; which meeting is to receive his acknowledgment, or disown him, as in its judgment the case shall require, reporting either conclusion to the other meeting. If a testimony of disownment be issued, a copy thereof is to be sent to the meeting in the compass of which the offender resides, which is to acquaint him therewith, and acknowledge the receipt thereof to the meeting that sent it.

If the offender remove after dealing be commenced, the meeting that had him under its care, shall continue the same, if he be equally within its reach, or otherwise is at liberty to write to the meeting into the compass of which he is removed; which meeting is to proceed therein, and report to the meeting of which he is a member, which shall receive his acknowledgment, or proceed to disown him as aforesaid.

In case offenders shall remove to places not within the acknowledged limits of any monthly meeting, it is agreed that they may be placed under the care of the meeting to which they are the nearest situated.

If an offender cannot be found, the meeting to which he belongs, shall issue a testimony against him; if the nature of the case require it. Information of disownments is to be sent to the women's monthly meeting; and also to the preparative meeting (if there be one) to which the disowned person belonged: and in all cases a copy is to be delivered to the person disowned, if access can be had to him. 1782.—1801.—1833.

35 Papers of condemnation from delinquents.

Forasmuch as some persons, who by their ill-conduct, have justly deserved and come under the censure of the meetings to which they belong, have thought to get from under the weight of that judgment, by signing a paper of condemnation, and thereby have supposed themselves discharged; it is therefore recommended to friends' consideration, that they be careful not to admit such persons too early into fellowship, or give them cause to think they are accepted, before the meeting or meetings are satisfied of their repentance and amendment; notwithstanding such paper be given. 1708. P. E.

MONTHLY MEETINGS.

Should any person having been disowned, coming to a just sense of his misconduct, be desirous of readmission into the society, he is to apply to the monthly meeting which disowned him; which, if it think proper, is to visit him, or to apply to the meeting wherein he resides, to do it, and make report. The meeting which disowned him is then to proceed to accept or reject his acknowledgment, as it may see meet: and, if readmitted, he is to become a member in the meeting to which he formerly belonged. The same course is to be pursued in the case of a friend who may have resigned his membership, and apply for readmission into the society. 1782.—1801.—1833.

36 Readmission of members.

If there be any such gross errors, false doctrines, or mistakes, held by any professing truth, as are either against the validity of Christ's sufferings, blood, resurrection, ascension, or glory in the heavens, according as they are set forth in the scriptures; or any ways tending to the denial of the heavenly man Christ; such persons ought to be diligently instructed and admonished by faithful friends, and not to be exposed by any to public reproach; and where the error proceeds from ignorance and darkness of their understanding, they ought the more meekly and gently to be informed: but if any shall wilfully persist in error in point of faith, after being duly informed, then such to be further dealt with according to gospel order, that the truth, church, or body of Christ, may not suffer by any particular pretended member that is so corrupt. 1694. W. E.

37 Unsoundness of doctrine.

Persons professing with us, who absent themselves from our religious meetings, and disregard the repeated advice and endeavours of friends meetings for to stir them up to this necessary duty, are to be dealt with by the monthly meeting to which they belong, even to disowning, if the case require it. 1770.

Illegal dealings in the public stocks.

This meeting has been deeply affected with the reproach brought on truth and friends, by the misconduct of some under our name, who through an evil covetousness, have engaged in illegal dealings in the public stocks, or government securities; which is a species of gaming, and altogether inconsistent with our religious principles. In order therefore to prevent, as much as may be, such disgraceful practices, we do advise, that where any member of our society is found to be guilty thereof, either as principal, agent, or broker, monthly meetings do not fail tenderly to advise and deal with such; and if they cannot bring him to a sense of his misconduct, and induce him to relinquish the practice, to testify against and disown him. 1788.

PREPARATIVE MEETINGS.

It is the judgment of this meeting, that the holding of preparative meetings, under suitable regulations, may be of real advantage, where monthly meetings consist of two or more particular meetings; and that the proper business of such meetings is

Preparative meetings recommended:

To read and consider the queries, as settled by the yearly meeting, and conclude on answers in writing, if convenient, to the first ten, the twelfth, and the fore part of the thirteenth:

To appoint representatives to the monthly meeting. 1794.—1833.

This meeting is of the judgment, that men and women should not be at liberty to sit together, in transacting the business of preparative meetings; except at the discretion of the quarterly meeting, in consideration of the smallness of the number and manifest weakness. The men's queries then to be considered to be the queries of the preparative meeting, and the answers to be sent from thence to the men's and, as far as circumstances require it, to the women's monthly meeting; and representatives appointed to each, as far as practicable. 1799.—1833.

This meeting is of the judgment that when a preparative meeting is omitted to be held, information of the same should be sent from the when omitted quarterly monthly to the quarterly meeting; but that it is not necessary for such be informed: information to be transmitted to this meeting. 1828.

It is suggested that advantage might be derived from occasionally reading in preparative meetings portions of the counsel issued by this of Extracts. meeting, contained in the Book of Extracts.

WOMEN'S MEETINGS.

Women's meetings recommended. It is our tender and christian advice that you do encourage faithful women's meetings, and the settling of them where they are wanting, and may with convenience be settled; knowing their service, and what need there is also of their godly care in the church of Christ, in divers weighty respects proper to them. 1691. P. E.

- Our women's meetings being set up and approved in the love of God, and by his wisdom and power; and being of manifest service, and helpful in the church; it is the earnest desire and advice of this meeting, that they may be upheld and encouraged, where they are settled, by monthly and quarterly meetings; and that in counties and places where they are not, it be the care of the quarterly meetings to endeavour that they be set up and encouraged in proper and convenient places, where they may be most serviceable and helpful. 1707. P. E.
 - Advised, that friends in all places encourage the service of the meetings of faithful women, and that quarterly meetings would help and assist such women friends in setting up monthly meetings; wherein they may wait for divine wisdom to give proper advice to those of their own sex; and that proceedings in relation to marriage be laid before such meetings, and the clearness of the persons concerned be inquired into by them; which method, we apprehend, will render our grave and solid women helpmeets to the brotherhood in the discipline, and conduce to the edification of the church. 1745.

Proceedings in marriage to be laid before them.

This meeting agrees, that the meeting of women friends held annually in this city, be at liberty to correspond in writing, with the quarterly meetings of women friends; to receive accounts from them, and to issue such advice as, in the wisdom of truth, may from time to time and duties of appear necessary, and conducive to their mutual edification. The several quarterly meetings of women friends are at liberty to appoint two or more of their members to meet in London, at the time of holding this meeting; nevertheless so that the number from any women's quarterly meeting, do not exceed that of the representatives allowed to be appointed by the men's quarterly meeting for the same district; which meeting of women so appointed shall be denominated the Yearly Meeting of Women Friends held in London. And this meeting is further of the judgment, that the several women's quarterly meetings should annually send to their yearly meeting, answers in writing to the queries proper for the women friends. But the said yearly meeting is not at liberty to make or alter any rules of discipline, or queries. 1784.—1790.

WOMEN'S MEETINGS. Constitution the women's yearly meet-

On considering the nature and extent of the discipline committed to women friends, it is our judgment, that its nature is, as expressed by Extent of discipline comthe minutes of the yearly meeting, to come up to the help of their mitted to women friends. brethren in the discipline of the church.

As to its extent,

- I. They are to inspect and relieve the wants of the poor of their own sex; and to apply to the men's meeting for the means, and for its concurrence, as cases shall require.
- II. They are to take cognizance of proposals for marriage, conformably to the rules on that subject.
- III. They are to join in certificates of removal for women friends, when they are about to be recommended with their husbands. In such cases the women's monthly meeting, on notice from the men's meeting, is to appoint one or two of its members to make the necessary inquiry, and to report the result thereof to the friend or friends appointed to inquire by the men's meeting. But when it may appear proper to issue a certificate of removal on behalf of a woman friend other than as above, the men's meeting on receiving such information shall make a record of the same, and then request the women's meeting to appoint two of its members to make the needful inquiry. If no obstruction arise, the friends so appointed are to prepare a certificate agreeably to the second and third rules for Removals and Settlements; which, after being read and approved in the women's meeting, is to be sent into the men's meeting for its approbation and signature in the usual manner, and is then to be returned to the women's meeting to receive the signature of its clerk.

IV. They are also, on receiving from the men's meeting certificates for women friends, to make appointments to visit the persons removed into the compass of the monthly meeting.¹

V. They are to have overseers, agreeably to their tenth query. In order to which, when it is necessary that women overseers be appointed, the women's monthly meeting is to appoint a committee, which is to join a committee to be appointed by the men's monthly meeting. The joint committee is to nominate the overseers, and the names of the women then nominated are to be reported to the women's monthly meeting, and, if approved by the said meeting, sent to the men's meeting for confirmation.

VI. The women's monthly meeting, at the desire of the men's monthly meeting, should make appointments to join the men in visiting such women as apply for admission, or reinstatement, into membership; and the report of the committee is to be made to the men's monthly meeting, which is to inform the women's meeting of the conclusion.

VII. In cases of delinquency of women friends, when, after due exercise of private labour, the women's monthly meeting believes it necessary to record any of its members as delinquents, it is to inform the men's meeting thereof. If the men do not take up the matter exclusively, the women are then to proceed to deal with the delinquent, and report the result of their labours to the men's meeting; but if the men's meeting should see it expedient to join them in the dealing, the report of the joint committee is to be made to the men's meeting, which, in either case, is to inform the women's meeting of its determination. No proceedings of the women only, are to be a sufficient ground for a testimony of disownment; unless, after mature deliberation, and from any peculiar circumstances which may attach to the case, the men's meeting, feeling satisfied that the discipline has been fully exercised by the labour of the women friends, shall be convinced that it is not its place to make any appointment on the case of delinquency. 1792.—1801.—1822.

WOMEN'S

If a quarterly meeting of women friends should apprehend itself unable to give to its monthly meetings such assistance as the place of women's the one, and the state of the other require, it is desired to lay the case before its men's quarterly meeting for advice and assistance, previously to expressing such inability in its answer to the query on that subject, to the yearly meeting. And the quarterly meetings of men friends are desired to attend to such applications as may be thus made, and give to their women's meetings all the assistance they may be enabled to render them. 1803.

MEETINGS FOR WORSHIP.

I Counsel to faithfulness in the duty of public worship.

As it hath been our care and practice from the beginning, that an open testimony for the Lord should be borne, and a public standard for truth and righteousness upheld, in the power and spirit of God, by our open and known meetings, against the spirit of persecution, that in all ages hath sought to lay waste God's heritage; and as only through faithfulness, constancy, and patience, victory hath been and is obtained; so it is our advice and judgment, that all friends, gathered in the name of Jesus, keep up these public testimonies in their respective places; and do not decline, forsake, or remove their public assemblies, because of times of suffering; as worldly, fearful, and politic professors have done, because of informers and the like persecutors: for such practices are not consistent with the nobility of the truth, and therefore not to be owned in the church of Christ. 1675. W. E.

Dear friends and brethren, keep in the pure and peaceable wisdom of Jesus, that you may be in all things ordered to the Lord's glory, and your mutual peace and refreshment. Friends, though the enemy be near to betray with fair pretences, the Lord is nearer to preserve his heritage and water his plants; therefore let none wax cold, let none murmur. Be noble and valiant for the truth on earth, look to the Lord God of your life, and keep your eye steadfastly to Him; and be of an universal spirit, and by how much the more it is a day of trial, and an hour of temptation, forsake ye not the assembling of yourselves together: but by so much the more be zealous, and diligent in keeping all your meetings in the Lord's everlasting power, by which they were set up: and as you are found diligent and steadfast in the work of the Lord, the God of peace will suddenly tread down Satan under your feet, and plentifully reward your patience and perseverance with the durable blessings, peace, and joy of that kingdom which was before the world began, and that never shall have an end. 1678. W. E.

Let every one be watchful against an earthly spirit, for that will choke the good seed, and bring forth a slighting or neglecting of your Against an earthly spirit. testimony in your first-day, and week-day meetings, and bring a decay of your strength and zeal for God, and his truth, and bring a weakness upon you, by reason whereof you will not be able to stand in an hour of temptation. 1689. P. E.

Advised, that friends keep their children to a constant, seasonable, and orderly frequenting, as well of week-day, as of first-day meetings; instructing them to have their minds stayed in the divine gift, to wait upon the Lord therein to receive a portion of his spiritual favour; that they, from the tendering virtue of the Holy Spirit, may be engaged in heart and mind to walk worthy of so great grace; and in a holy zeal to honour God, submit to bear the cross, endure the shame, and become witnesses for him amongst the sons of men. 1723. P. E.

Respecting children.

Advised, that friends, though meetings are sometimes held in silence, would not neglect their attendance; for the hungry soul will labour for bread, and the thirsty for the water of life; and the diligent hand will make rich in that treasure which is of an enduring substance. 1724. P. E.

5 Silent meetings.

In your religious meetings for the worship of God, both on the first and other days of the week, be diligent to wait on him, whereby you may Exhortation renew your strength, and witness him your sufficient help; for surely waiting upon many of us have cause thankfully to remember his early visitations in our meetings. the assemblies of his people; where he broke in upon our hearts with his power and love, and did, in the needful time, administer help, comfort, and counsel; whereby, in the renewings thereof, we have been upheld in a faithful testimony, and in the discharge of our duty to 1725. P. E. him.

to diligence in

7 Counsel to ministers and hearers.

The Spirit of God being the foundation of all true knowledge and experience, both in ministers and hearers, we earnestly exhort that all would diligently wait upon and mind it: ministers in their public services, especially, ought always to attend closely to their several and peculiar gifts, and minister the word faithfully as it is manifested and revealed to them, observing a decent and modest behaviour in the exercise of their ministry; and not entangling themselves with the affairs of this life, that they may the better answer the holy warfare in which they are engaged. And let the hearers be watchful over their own spirits, and not forwardly judge or censure the testimonies which may be delivered amongst them; for if they be not very careful and diligent in attending upon the Lord in meetings, they are liable to mistake in the judgment they may pass on the ministry. Now this being a matter of great moment, for the preservation of love and concord in the churches; and knowing the danger and ill consequences which attend a hasty and censorious judging of the ministry; we think it necessary to caution friends, not to let their own spirits sway them, but to let the Spirit of God rule and reign in their hearts; for this will preserve all in sweetness and tenderness one towards another: the due observance of which will be a great help to ministers in the discharge of their duty, and the service to which they are called. 1731. W. E.

The evils of lukewarmness and indifference.

In all your meetings appointed for religious worship, wait with reverence and devotion of heart and soul for the power and life-giving presence of God, which is the crown and diadem of our assemblies. Take care, we beseech you, in this day of ease and liberty, lest lukewarmness and indifference prevail over you, to the stopping up of the streams of the water of life, and rendering you like the barren heath in the desert, which knoweth not when good comes. We intreat you to be especially watchful in this behalf, that an indolent and sluggish disposition appear not among you, to the stumbling of such serious inquirers as may attend our meetings, in expectation of that life and power, to which the observation of your indifference and unconcernedness may give them too just cause to suspect that ye yourselves are strangers. 1741. P. E.

In all your meetings for the worship of Almighty God, let your deportment be such as may demonstrate, that you are in earnest in the great duty of waiting upon and worshipping God in spirit; that serious and tender-hearted inquirers may be encouraged to come and partake, in your assemblies, of that inward and spiritual consolation and refreshment, which the Lord is graciously pleased to impart to the souls of such as are humbled in his sight, and approach his holy presence with reverence and fear. 1744. P. E.

Deportment in meetings.

Dear Friends, although the labours of such as are called forth by the Spirit of Christ, and instructed thereby rightly to divide the word of counsel to single depentruth, are highly serviceable in the church; yet the aim and design dence upon God in religiof every true gospel minister, is to direct the minds of all to the divine teachings of the Holy Spirit, and to wait upon, and have their whole trust and expectation on the Lord alone. And as the religious strength and communion, both of preachers and hearers, consist in their united dependence on the power and Spirit of Christ, their guide and leader; so where any part of that dependence is broken off from Him, the Holy Head, and placed on any instrument or member of the body, it hath been sometimes experienced to become a weight or burden on such instrument, and a real impediment to its present service. Wherefore, brethren, we beseech you, that in all your assemblies for the worship of God, your eye be single unto him, your expectation fixed on him alone, and your faith standing in his power and Spirit; thus may you grow and be established therein, and be made one another's strength in the Lord. 1753. P. E.

We tenderly exhort such as, through fear of neglecting their temporal concerns, or other considerations, are kept from a due attendance to diligence, of meetings for worship, seriously to consider that gracious promise considering the zeal of left upon record: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righte- our early friends. "ousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Some of us have to testify, that our outward affairs have not suffered, by giving up our time, the few hours set apart for religious worship; but, on the contrary, our minds have been thereby greatly strengthened to come up with propriety in the duties we owe to God, to our families, and to all mankind. Let us call to remembrance the zeal of our honourable predecessors, who when they had great reason to expect they should be driven into noisome and pestilential prisons, sent into banishment, or subjected to other grievous sufferings, for meeting together on no other account than to worship God according to their consciences; yet, in the strength of that holy faith and love which supported them in suffering, failed not constantly to keep up their meetings at the hazard of all; and expense of many of their lives, liberties, and properties. 1758. P. E.

12 A right engagement of mind in meetings to be cultivated. When gathered in your religious assemblies, be truly concerned to retire to the divine and heavenly gift; which will minister to every state and condition, though you may have no outward teaching; and will direct you to wait without being restless or uneasy, till it be a proper time to break up your meetings with that decency and solemnity, which should attend our minds in such service; for want of which, some forward spirits, who have been destitute of the right and true feeling in which such service should be performed, have broken up meetings in an unbecoming manner, to the sorrow and pain of mind of such as have been truly concerned for the good and prosperity of Sion. 1755.

13 The paramount obligation not to neglect meetings for worship. "Where two or three," saith our Lord, "are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." In these words, he, by implication, invites us not only to meet one with another, but in so doing, with Himself also. Shall the King of kings, and Lord of lords, condescend to offer his divine presence for our good, and shall we, his dependent creatures, set so light by his inestimable kindness, as, either wilfully or negligently, to let slip those precious seasons, wherein we might receive his blessed assistance so necessary to our help and salvation? Shall the poor, perishing gratifications of sense and self-love. or any inconveniences of a trivial nature, be suffered to prevent our dutiful attendance upon Him, in whom alone stands our everlasting interest? Shall a cloudy sky, a little wet, a little cold, a little ease to the flesh, a view to a little earthly gain, or any common incident, furnish an excuse for declining this duty, and thereby depriving ourselves of the blessed advantage, often vouchsafed to the faithful, of enjoying heavenly communion together in spirit, with the Lord of life and glory? 1765. P. E.

We are concerned at this time to press upon your consideration the awful duty of pure and spiritual worship. It is not enough that, after The duty of pure and spiritual worship. the example of our forefathers, we meet together in one place, in out-ship. ward silence; rejecting those forms and ceremonies which were invented by the wisdom, as well as that worship which is performed only in the will, of man; it is not enough that, with a commendable diligence, we attend all our religious meetings; unless also like them we wait in humble reverence, for spiritual ability to worship acceptably the Lord of heaven and earth. Wait therefore, dear friends, humbly and diligently wait, in the spirit of your minds, for the coming of Him who told his disciples, "Without me ye can do nothing;" that ye may happily experience the influence of his Spirit to enlighten and quicken the soul to a true sight and sense of its condition; that, feeling the spirit of supplication, ye may approach the throne of grace, and, under a renewed sense of the Father's mercy and goodness, may be enabled to offer the sacrifice of praise. This living and spiritual worship is ever acceptable, and draws down his favour on those who are thus humbly exercised before him. 1789. P. E.

They who are obedient to this universal injunction of our Saviour, "Watch," are prepared for the due fulfilling of every duty; and eminently so, for that most essential one of worship. How many feel themselves languid, when assembled for this solemn purpose, for want of a previous preparation of heart! The mind, crowded with thoughts on outward things, in approaching the place for public worship, and resuming them with avidity on its return, is not likely to fill up the interval to profit; and to such, their meeting together may prove a form as empty, as any of those out of which, we believe, truth called our forefathers, and still calls us. 1800. P. E.

16 Diligent attendance enjoined.

That the assembling of ourselves for the purpose of expressing our sense of dependence on our great Creator is a duty, most if not all of us acknowledge, by stated or occasional attendance at some of the times appointed for worship. But too many content themselves with an attendance once in the week, on the day when business is suspended; and even of that day, the greater part is devoted to what is called relaxation. Thus, little as it is which is meant for sacrifice, that little has cost them nothing. And how many—how many even of those who are far removed above indigence—seldom, if ever, leave their outward pursuits, to join with their brethren, on other days of the week! The want of a due and diligent attendance at the usual times, is productive of many evils. It often deprives the mind of opportunities of instruction and consolation; and thus leaves it more liable to be drawn aside from the right way, by the spirit of the world; it leads naturally to the neglect of other religious duties; and it tends to occasion indifference in those to whom the influence reaches, by its baneful example. But the habitual neglect of religious meetings, in any of our members, as it is thus the cause of many evils, hath also itself a cause. This, dear friends, we should search out, if we wish to have the remedy applied. And to what cause can we ascribe it, but to a want of hunger and thirst for that spiritual refreshment, which is yet, blessed be the Lord, to be known in the meetings of his humble and dependent servants? Now, if we feel not this hunger and thirst, is there not reason for us to be alarmed; and may we not justly fear, that we are spiritually sick? And truly, notwithstanding the excuses of such as yet acknowledge public worship to be essential, and the specious semblances of reasoning, of such as attempt to set aside a constant obligation to it, experience has taught us, that a neglect of meetings both indicates and produces indisposition of mind; and tends to lay waste religious society. Wherefore we once more beseech the remiss of the present day to lay these things to heart, and strive for amendment; and we again press it upon such as are themselves diligent, that they do not neglect any gentle intimation of duty, to admonish a brother or a sister for whose remissness they may feel concern. 1803. P. E.

Great are the benefits which result from a right performance of public worship. The tendency of our practice is to direct the mind unto God; and if it be pursued with sincerity and earnestness, our hopes of public worship. will be ultimately fixed on Him, the unfailing source of help. We shall then be led from an undue dependence on outward ministry, and come to experience that state in which we can "worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the How circumspect, how reverent, and how watchful, ought we then to be in our religious meetings! But we fear that too many do not maintain a waiting, dependent state of mind in these assemblies; that they do not enough seek for strength to abstract their attention from wandering thoughts and earthly cares. Hence it arises, that they do not so fully partake of that evidence of Divine superintending regard, of those consolations, which the Lord in mercy grants to such as hunger and thirst after righteousness. This unwatchfulness, we apprehend to be a principal cause that so many are found to neglect our first-day afternoon meetings. And we intreat those who are thus deficient, to consider whether they are not preferring ease, and an indulgence in the pleasures of life, to the obligations of religious duty, and the possession of spiritual riches. 1818. P. E.

A punctual attendance at the hour appointed for public worship is a matter of no small importance. If we hurry away from our out-Observance of the time ward occupations to the meeting-house, thinking that, by the delay of appointed.

18

a few minutes, we shall not be long behind our brethren, we are in great danger of having our thoughts employed on that in which we have been engaged, and of interrupting that holy silence, which, it is believed, would often prevail, if all the members of a meeting were assembled not only in one place, but at one time, with one and the same great object in view. 1821.

19 General advice.

One of the evidences of our dependence upon God, and that we do indeed acknowledge him, is the diligent attendance of our meetings for public worship. We are pained on hearing that numerous omissions in the right performance of this indispensable duty still exist. We would gladly persuade you, beloved friends, who are remiss in this important part of our Christian practice, closely to examine yourselves, and to strive to ascertain the cause of this neglect. Is it that you are not concerned for the salvation of your souls? Is it that you are disregarding the divine injunction, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might?"1 Has lukewarmness, or unconcern in regard to religious duties, taken possession of your minds? or has the love of this world, or its deceitful allurements, the pursuit of its riches and its pleasures, the ascendancy in your hearts? Be aroused, we beseech you, in the love of the Gospel, to a close searching of the motives of your conduct. You are not in the habitual neglect of all our meetings for worship. Be earnest in spirit before the Lord, when you do attend: wait patiently upon him, ask for the assistance of his grace, that he may incline his ear unto you, and hear your cry: come before him under a sense of your past transgressions, and of the natural depravity of your own hearts; for if this conviction prevail not, your state is truly alarming: apply in faith unto him, through Jesus Christ the righteous, our advocate with the Father. If an evidence of the love of God to your souls be not immediately granted, persevere and faint not. Then will you become careful to omit no opportunity of presenting yourselves before the Lord from time to time with your assembled brethren and sisters.

Many are the instances, furnished in the history of our society, of the Christian attainments of those who have duly attended our religious meetings, seeking, in deep prostration of soul, to draw nigh unto God, and to worship him in spirit and in truth. They have been favoured unitedly to partake of that meat which endureth unto everlasting life; and have returned from their silent assemblies with a humbling sense of the spiritual favours which they had received immediately from Him who is the way, the truth, and the life. Instrumental ministry in the life and power of the Gospel is a great favour to the church; but the distinguishing excellence of the Christian dispensation is the immediate communication with our Heavenly Father, through the inward revelation of the Spirit of Christ. Let us, therefore, submit to the baptizing operations of the Holy Spirit, which purify the soul and produce the capacity for communion with God. Earnestly beseech the Lord, to grant you, in his mercy, the communion of the Holy Ghost; at the same time pray that you may be preserved in reverent humility, steadfastly looking unto the Lord Jesus. Live in the pure and holy fear of God, striving to keep all his commandments. Then will at times be granted an inward persuasion, that Christ is indeed your Shepherd, and that you are of those who hear his voice: faith and hope in the Gospel, which give stability to the soul, will be experienced; and being weaned from all inferior dependence, you may at times reverently apply the language, "Lo, this is our God: we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation." 1832. P.E.

MINISTERS AND ELDERS, AND THEIR MEETINGS.

- Counsel to ministers and elders.
- This meeting desires, that you whom the Lord hath gifted with a public testimony for his name and truth, will, in this day of liberty, be diligent to visit the heritage of God in their meetings, and more especially those least frequented. 1695. P. E.
- Advised, to have a godly care of judging or contradicting one another in public meetings; or shewing any marks or signs of division therein, amongst ministers or others; it being of a very pernicious consequence to bring blame or contempt upon the ministry, and a great hurt to our youth and others. 1716. P. E.
- Advised, that ministers, as well as elders and others, in all their preaching, writing, and conversing about the things of God, do keep to the form of sound words, or scripture terms; and that none pretend to be wise above what is there written, and in such pretended wisdom go about to explain the things of God, in the words which man's wisdom teaches. 1728. P. E.
- We earnestly request, that the elders in monthly and quarterly meetings would be ready to help and inform the weak, when suitable opportunities present; that, both ministers and hearers pursuing one and the same end, namely, the glory of God and the good and welfare one of another, the church may be edified, increase, and flourish, to the consolation of the faithful.

On the other hand, we advise ministers to have it very much at heart, to maintain a perfect harmony and good understanding with the Counsel to monthly meetings to which they belong; and that as the said meetings elders. may sometimes find themselves concerned to advise them, respecting their conduct in meetings, or otherwise, they show themselves ready to hear and receive advice, as well as to teach and instruct.

We further advise all monthly meetings, to take great care in giving certificates to those who travel; to prevent the uneasiness which sometimes falls on the church, from a weak and unskilful ministry: and let the elders, when they see occasion, advise ministers to be very prudent in their conduct, not as busy-bodies, nor meddling with family or personal affairs, in which they are not concerned, or required to be assisting; and to be very tender of one another's reputation, and of that of friends among whom they travel; neither giving ear to, nor spreading, reports tending to raise in the minds of others, a lessening or disesteem of any of the brotherhood; and, as soon as their service in the ministry is over, to return to their habitations, and there take a reasonable and prudent care of their own business, household, and family. 1731. W.E.

As the Lord in his mercy is breathing afresh on several of our youth, of both sexes, and fitting them for his service, we recommend it to the elders in every meeting, that they tenderly watch over all young ministers, and advise and help them, as they in the wisdom of truth may be opened thereunto; nourishing that which is right, and which comes forth in the savour of life, and discouraging every thing that is unbecoming the ministry. 1736. W. E.

We further intreat you, that in all your religious meetings appointed for the worship of Almighty God, you wait in humble reverence for the influence of the Word of life. Be cautious not to move, in acts of devotion, in your own will; set not forward self to work, but patiently attend and wait for the gift and enlivening power of the Divine Spirit; without which your performances will be unacceptable, and like those of old, of which it was said, "Who hath required this at your hand?" 1742. P. E.

7 Counsel to ministers and elders. In much love we caution those friends who are rightly concerned in the work of the ministry, to watch over their own spirits, and not to be over hasty or censorious in passing judgment respecting the state of those who hear them; but to manifest that, in the exercise of their ministry, they are led by the love of God, and that their principal aim is, that they may be instrumental to administer spiritual consolation and strength to the churches where they come. 1745. W. E.

As to the elders among you, and those whom God, having endued with knowledge, and experience of the cleansing operations of his Spirit, hath concerned to minister unto others, let them adorn the doctrine of the gospel, by showing, out of a good conversation, their works with meekness of wisdom. Such as these being clothed with humility, and exemplary to the flock, are worthy of double honour, and to be highly esteemed in the church of Christ. 1751. P. E.

We tenderly, and with earnestness, advise all friends who travel in the work of the ministry, as well as others, that they not only shut their ears against all private informations of persons and things, tending to the defamation of particular persons or families, and to stir up disputes and contentions in meetings for discipline; but also rebuke and reprove the person or persons, who shall attempt to prejudice their minds with any private informations of that nature; which are often false, and attended with baneful consequences to the reputation of the persons or families who are so unkindly and unjustly dealt by; and may tend to lead such ministers or others as shall give ear to the same, in a wrong line of judgment. 1752. W. E.

As the Lord is graciously pleased effectually to touch the hearts of many of the youth, and prepare them for the reception of his heavenly gifts, whereby many are called to the work of the ministry; and well knowing it is a due attention to the gift, and waiting for the heavenly power and life, to discharge themselves therein, which has ever proved a blessing to the individual and the churches in general; we earnestly recommend, that the elders, and sensible solid friends do watch over counsel to such in a holy concern for their, and the church's good; that the weak elders. and tender may be encouraged in a faithful discharge of their duty; and, where a forward spirit appears that would lead into many words out of the power and life, such may be properly admonished in the meekness of wisdom, that each may speak by the ability which the Lord only gives; and that the monthly meetings do not encourage any to travel and appoint meetings too soon, for many have been hurt thereby. 1753. W. E.

Being favoured in the several sittings of this meeting with our Heavenly Father's tender regard renewed to us, whereby our souls have been deeply humbled before him; and looking into the state of this part of the society which stands in a more conspicuous point of view than the more private members; the necessity of their being ensamples to the flock appears exceedingly great: particularly in a diligent attendance of all our meetings for solemn worship, and the discipline of the church; and being therein very deep and weighty in spirit, labouring with an ardour of soul suited to the occasion, for the arising of the ancient spring of life. This, of a truth, is the crown of our assemblies, and the ground of our joy and rejoicing in the Lord, and one in another; it being this alone which preserves living, fresh, and active members in the church of Christ. 1770.

We are fully persuaded, that the ministry of the gospel is not received of man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ, according to that apostolical direction: "As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God: if any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth; that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ." And as this ministry is divine, the motives and inducements thereunto are perfectly disinterested, and no way mercenary and lucrative, but concurrent with the precept Christ gave to his apostles and immediate followers: "Freely ye have received, freely give." 1771. P. E.

- This meeting recommends to ministers on all occasions, and more especially when about to leave home in the service of the Gospel, to take care that their outward affairs are so conducted and arranged as to prevent any dishonour being brought on our religious profession, through any neglect on the one hand, or on the other through their being immersed in the cares of the present life. 1833.
- This meeting feeling the importance of extending care and counsel, as well as manifesting due sympathy towards those who are liberated to travel in the work of the ministry, wishes to encourage friends under the appointment of elder, to be willing, as way may open, to accompany ministers when thus travelling, believing that their cordial union in such service may be a strength to the minister. And it is the judgment of this meeting, that when such companions, or other friends who may travel in a similar character, are likely to go far from home, or to be absent for a length of time, they be furnished with a minute of the approbation of the monthly meeting to which they belong, when the same can suitably be obtained. 1833.

15 Care in regard to ministers and elders. Where friends in any county are really dissatisfied, or burthened, with any that take upon them to preach among them, let them first be duly admonished in their own county, with the assistance of the faithful, approved ministers and elders of the same meeting and county, or adjacent county or counties, if need be; and if afterwards they will persist to impose upon and burthen friends, then to be publicly testified against where they so impose. If any such, after due admonition, will travel abroad to minister, out of unity with friends of their own Care in recounty, the friends of those other counties where they travel, should gard to ministers and have due notice of them from friends who have had them under admonition. 1698.

Recommended to the several monthly and quarterly meetings, that they take care to advise that those friends who go forth with a public testimony be such as are well approved at home, by their own respective monthly or quarterly meetings, and are sound in doctrine, of good conversation, and in unity with their own meetings. And if any faithful friends, or meetings, be burthened with the contrary, let them tenderly clear their consciences privately to the parties concerned, according to gospel order; and if they do not receive admonition, the meeting to which they belong should be acquainted therewith. 1699.

16

It is recommended to monthly and quarterly meetings, to see that friends, who travel in the work of the ministry, do go in the unity of the meetings to which they belong, and with certificates therefrom; and further, that it may become the tender care of the said meetings, to watch over such as may be young in the ministry, to see that they walk humbly and wisely: that as on the one hand, nothing truly tending to the glory of God, and the edification of his church and people, may be discouraged: so on the other, where any thing appears which may make advice necessary, the elders of the church, both ministers and others, do, in the wisdom of God, give their advice thereupon, with due regard to the state of weakness and childhood that such may be in. 1720. P. E.

17

This meeting advises friends every where to avoid public opposition to a minister not disowned as such, by the monthly or quarterly meeting to which he or she shall belong, by keeping on their hats in time of prayer, or any other tokens of disunion. 1723.

19 Care in regard to ministers and elders. Divers of the answers received from the quarterly meetings of ministers and elders have deeply affected our minds, in consideration of the loss sustained by the deficiency of many of the appointed elders, in not duly attending meetings for worship and discipline, and being also remiss in some other respects; it is therefore become our care and concern, to recommend to the several quarterly and monthly meetings, to make due inquiry whether such non-attendance or other remissness proceeds from bodily infirmity or other unavoidable necessity, or from manifest neglect; in order that suitable endeavours may be used to remove the causes of complaint. And it is the sense of this meeting, where such deficiencies appear to be the consequence of lukewarmness, and an over attachment to the world and its concerns, and such elders disregard the admonition of friends, that they be desired to withdraw from that important station. 1772.

20 Meetings of ministers and elders. It is agreed, that, as far as can suitably be done, there be held in each monthly meeting, a meeting of ministers and elders once in three months, some time previous to those monthly meetings which immediately precede the quarterly meeting; in which meetings of ministers and elders, after some time spent in solid retirement, the queries are to be read and considered, and answered in writing, according to the directions of this meeting in that behalf. Opportunity also may here be given for tender advice and assistance, as the nature of any case may require: and representatives, taken from the members in either station, are to be appointed to attend the quarterly meeting of ministers and elders, constituted of such representatives, and of the other approved ministers and elders of the quarterly meeting. A list of the names of all the ministers and elders in the several monthly meetings, is to be taken to the quarterly meeting of ministers and elders, to be kept there on record, and annually revised.

At the quarterly meeting of ministers and elders, the queries are also to be read, and the answers thereto from the meetings of ministers and elders in the several monthly meetings: to which latter meetings Meetings of ministers and of ministers and elders such advice is to be extended as circumstances elders. may require. At the quarterly meeting of ministers and elders next preceding the yearly meeting, a general answer is to be drawn up to the queries, to be sent by representatives, appointed from among the ministers and elders indiscriminately, to the yearly meeting of ministers and elders. The names of the representatives are to be reported to the quarterly meeting for discipline; and the said representatives are to be furnished with a copy of the afore-mentioned answers to the queries, to be in readiness in case it should be called for by the said quarterly meeting for discipline: to which also an account is to be given, in writing, as to the due holding of the quarterly meetings of ministers and elders, throughout the year.

It is the sense and judgment of this meeting, that it is of advantage to the society to hold a yearly meeting of ministers and elders, in London, preceding the yearly meeting, to be continued by adjournments, so that such adjournments do not interfere with the sittings of this meeting, and that such meeting do not in any wise take upon it, or interfere with, any part of the discipline of the church, belonging either to this meeting, or any subordinate meeting.

That the morning meeting of ministers and elders in London, do adjourn itself to Ten, in the forenoon, on the Second-day preceding the sitting of this meeting; and that the several quarterly meetings of ministers and elders in Great Britain, do appoint at least two of their members as representatives; and that the yearly meeting of ministers and elders of Ireland do also appoint some of its members, as may be convenient: the whole to form, together with such approved ministers and appointed elders as may be in London, the said yearly meeting of ministers and elders.

The yearly meeting of ministers and elders is to receive and read the answers to the queries from the quarterly meetings of like kind, by which an opportunity will be given of imparting such advice as shall be necessary; and after having informed itself, by means of the anMeetings of ministers and elders. swers received, of the state of the ministers and elders in the several quarterly meetings, it is to lay annually before this meeting a summary, yet clear, account thereof. The said meeting is also to desire all friends in the station of elder then in London from the country, together with those who are under a similar appointment in the quarterly meeting of London and Middlesex, to meet at the close of the different meetings for worship in the city and its vicinity, which they may attend during the time of holding this meeting. And it is to be considered the proper business of the friends thus met to communicate such advices and in such manner as they, in the wisdom of truth may find needful, and to make a general report to some adjournment of the said meeting.

It is desired, that the names of the representatives to the yearly meeting of ministers and elders, be given, previously to the sitting thereof, to the clerk of the morning meeting, who is to attend on the Second-day morning, until the time of the gathering of the meeting; and if any friends be unavoidably prevented from entering their names as aforesaid, that the same be delivered in at the table in writing. 1753.—1754.—1757.—1758.—1780.—1784.—1786.—1790.—1797.—1801.—1833.

The morning meeting of ministers and elders held in London, and every other meeting of ministers and elders, may, as they see meet in the wisdom of truth, advise, exhort, and rebuke any of their members, or any one who may travel in the work of the ministry, as occasion may require, without being accountable for the same to any monthly or quarterly meeting.

But if any member of the said meetings, or any other minister, should at any time be overtaken with a fault, and the same be under the cognizance of the morning meeting or any other meeting of ministers and elders, and the monthly meeting to which such person belongs shall also deal with him or her for the same; then, on notice from such monthly meeting, that they have taken the case under their care, all proceedings of the morning meeting or other meeting of ministers and Meetings of ministers and ministers and elders, against such minister or elder shall be stopped.

Neither the morning meeting, nor any other meeting of ministers and elders, has power to disown any minister, or other person, in any capacity whatsoever; this power solely belonging to the monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, or yearly meetings. 1735.—1833.

It being weightily under the consideration of this meeting, the necessity for acknowledged ministers who find themselves under an engagement of mind to travel in the service of the gospel in foreign parts, to have the full concurrence and unity of their brethren; it is the sense and judgment of this meeting, that, for the future, friends under such concern submit the same not only to the monthly meeting to which they belong, but also to their quarterly meeting, and to the meeting of ministers and elders in London, in order to be favoured with the concurrent testimonies of the said meetings, to strengthen them in so great and weighty engagements. 1763.

The several meetings of ministers and elders, are desired to be clear and explicit in their answers to the queries peculiar to meetings of ministers and elders; to keep as much as possible to the words of the queries, carefully avoiding all ambiguous expressions; and, where any remissness is remarked in the answers, to report what care is taken to advise in such cases. 1769.—1833.

This meeting agrees that certificates from the yearly meeting of 24 ministers and elders be signed by the clerk only. 1792.

ADVICES TO MINISTERS AND ELDERS.

Advices to ministers and elders, to be read at least once in the year in the quarterly and monthly meetings of ministers and elders.

Let ministers and elders be constant in their endeavours to live under the government of Christ, through the power of the Holy Spirit.

Let ministers and elders be frequent in reading the Holy Scriptures, diligent in meditating upon them, and careful not to misquote or misapply them. In preaching, writing, or conversing about the things of God, let them keep to the form of sound words or to Scripture terms.

Let all be careful faithfully to occupy the spiritual gifts entrusted to them to the honour of God.

Let all be careful, in the exercise of their gifts in the ministry, to wait for the renewed putting forth of the Holy Spirit, and be earnestly concerned that they proceed and conclude in the life and power of the Gospel; and they are advised to be careful on all occasions not to exceed the measure of their gift.

Let them be cautious of laying too great stress on the authority of their ministry, by too positively asserting a divine motion; the baptizing power of the Spirit of Truth accompanying the words, being the true evidence.

Let ministers be careful how they enter upon disputed points in their testimony; or make such objections as they do not clearly answer; or give repeated expectations of coming to a conclusion.

Let all be cautious of using unnecessary preambles, or hurting meetings by additions towards the conclusion, when the meeting was left well before.

Let ministers and elders be especially careful, whilst diligent when engaged in business, not to become entangled with the cares of this world; let them guard against the snare of accumulating wealth, and be examples of Christian moderation and contentment in all things.

Let ministers at all times be tender of each other's reputation; and let them be watchful not to hurt each other's service in religious meetings, but let every one have a tender regard for others. Let nothing be done or offered with a view to popularity, but in humility and in the fear of the Lord.

Let ministers avoid all unbecoming tones, sounds, gestures, and all affectation; these not being agreeable to Christian gravity. Let them be careful, when they travel in the service of truth, not to make their visits burthensome, or the Gospel chargeable. Men and women are cautioned against travelling together as companions in the work of the ministry, to avoid all occasions of offence.

Let none presume to prophesy in their own spirits against any nation, town, people, or person.

Let all beware of too much familiarity, which, biassing the judgment and producing an undue attachment, tends to hurt.

Let ministers and elders be careful to adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things, keeping their whole conversation unspotted, and being examples of meekness, temperance, patience, and charity.

Let the elders cherish a deep religious interest on behalf of those who are called to the ministry. Let them watch especially over the young and inexperienced with tender Christian concern, encouraging them in the right way of the Lord.

And lastly, as prayer and thanksgiving are an especial part of worship, they must be performed in spirit and in truth, with a right understanding seasoned with grace. Therefore let ministers be careful how and what they offer in prayer, avoiding many words and repetitions; and let all be cautious of too often repeating the high and holy name of God, or his attributes, by a long conclusion; neither let prayer be in a formal and customary way to conclude a meeting; nor without an awful sense of Divine influence. 1775.—1792.—1833.

MORNING MEETING OF MINISTERS AND ELDERS.

THE meeting which is held monthly in London, under the denomination of the Morning Meeting, first established in the year 1672, is considered by this meeting as constituted of the acknowledged ministers and appointed elders of the quarterly meeting of London and Middlesex, together with all other friends in those stations who incline to attend. 1833.

2 Duties. This meeting considers, that, agreeably to the established usage of the society, it is the duty of the morning meeting to exercise a tender Christian care over those ministers who may from time to time visit the city of London and its vicinity.

It is also the office of that meeting to judge of the religious concerns of such ministers as may have been liberated by their monthly and quarterly meetings to travel in the service of the Gospel in foreign parts, when great inconvenience would ensue from their waiting for the occurrence of the yearly meeting of ministers and elders: the said meeting is also left at liberty to grant certificates to ministering friends returning to America under similar circumstances. On all such occasions the morning meeting is to inform the yearly meeting of ministers and elders of its proceedings. 1833.

Care in regard to publications.

This meeting recommends to friends generally, the observance of the ancient and approved practice of our religious society, of submitting manuscripts which relate to our Christian principles and practices to the morning meeting in London.

The said meeting is annually to appoint a committee, with whom those who are concerned to publish works of the above description may consult and advise. And the friends of the said committee are encouraged in brotherly openness to communicate and confer with such authors. The manuscripts thus submitted are to be first presented to the meeting, but not read there; and the committee are to make report of the result of their judgment. Authors are at liberty to sit with committees so appointed, if they incline to do so. 1801.—1833.

NATIONAL FASTS, AND TIMES OF PUBLIC REJOICING.

- Advised that friends keep to their wonted example and testimony, against the superstitious observance of days. 1691. P. E.
- 2 Illumination of windows.

There being some disagreement in the conduct of friends, respecting the illumination of the windows of their houses, upon what are called rejoicing nights; which increases the weight of the sufferings of such friends as are conscientiously concerned to maintain inviolably our ancient and Christian testimony in these respects; it is desired and advised by this meeting, that wherever a defection of this kind appears, some friends treat with the unfaithful herein, in a spirit of love and tenderness, in order that such may be awakened to a serious consideration of their duty, and encouraged to a faithful discharge thereof. 1759.—1801.—1833.

3 Public rejoicings. As the merciful visitations of the God of all grace are still renewed, through Jesus Christ our Lord, by him to reconcile all things unto himself, let us receive with meekness the ingrafted word, which is able to save our souls; that we may experience an advancement in the work of redemption from the lusts of this world, and our minds be established in peace. And as we are preserved in a constant sense of his justice, wisdom, and mercy, we shall fear always, and therein fast acceptably to the Lord; and being enabled to wash our hands in innocency, may compass the altar of God; and, under these necessary qualifications, pour forth our souls before him, for the enlargement of his kingdom on earth, and the increase of that righteousness which exalts a nation. A humble and grateful sense of the mercies of our heavenly Father, every way extended, will also remain with us, and fill our hearts with thanksgiving and praise to himself; a tribute ever due to him from all his people, and to be acknowledged with the deepest solemnity; not with those tumultuous demonstrations of joy, which are often attended with rioting and drunkenness; and instead of being acceptable to a holy, pure God, rather tend to increase the weight of national transgressions.

Let us therefore be found worshippers within the temple, and be cautious how any of us give occasion of additional suffering to the truly conscientious amongst us, by any compliance with such observances, as our worthy ancestors were rightly concerned to bear testimony against. 1759. P. E.

We believe that at times the Lord is pleased, in an especial manner, to visit nations by his judgments, and that they call for deep humili- National fasts and other apation before him, and for that repentance which includes a real turning pointed observances. away from all our evil works. This was the great feature of that memorable fast which obtained the divine favour for Nineveh, after the prophet had been sent to pronounce its destruction.

The true and acceptable fast to the Lord was declared, by the prophet Isaiah, to be, not the bowing of the head for a day, but the right performance of acts of justice and mercy. How loudly then are we, as Christians, called upon to beware of depending upon any temporary or external performances, and to observe that daily and continual fast, which consists in the obedient homage of the soul to its Almighty Creator and Redeemer.

We have thought it right, as a society, to abstain from the observance of days set apart, without a divine direction, for the religious commemoration of particular events, or for national humiliation under peculiar trials. We consider the dictation, by man, of specific acts of worship, as opposed to those views of the spirituality of true worship, which it is our duty and privilege to hold. The public commemoration of important events in the church, on certain specific days, arose and increased as the simplicity of Christianity declined; and though they bore the semblance of piety, and have doubtless often been observed with sincerity, yet they tended greatly to draw men from the constant duties and simple worship which Christianity enjoined; and led to a dependence on occasional exercises and imposing services.

The appointment of days for national humiliation, by the civil government, we consider to be liable to the preceding, and to other objections.

The imposition of religious exercises by the civil government, we conceive to be an infringement of the rights of conscience, and an intrusion on His province whose right it is to rule there. When we consider that the orders for such observances in this country are issued under the authority of the King, as head of the church of England, and that a form of prayer is commanded to be used under certain outward penalties, we feel additionally bound, with meekness, to refuse compliance with such orders, and thereby to testify against that usurpation which we believe to be anti-christian.

Whilst supporting these our views of the liberty of the gospel, let us be careful to prove, by our conduct and conversation, that we walk in the fear of God, and do indeed believe that He rules in the kingdoms of men. May we increasingly cherish that true love of our country which would lead us frequently to the throne of grace on its behalf; that so, whilst we cannot lift up the sword in its defence, our prayers and intercessions may ascend availingly to Him in whose hand are the prosperity of nations, and the issues of life and death. 1833.

Sufferings on these occasions to be reported. This meeting having weightily considered the propriety of receiving and recording the sufferings of friends, for not illuminating their houses, and not shutting up their shops, on public occasions, is of the judgment that friends should send up an account of such sufferings, from time to time, to this meeting. 1789.

NATIONAL STOCK.

AGREED, that a collection be occasionally made in the several counties and places for defraying the expenses of the society, as printing and distributing books for the service of truth, the passage of ministering friends who are called into the service of the Lord beyond sea, the salary of a clerk, and house-rent for keeping records, with other incidental charges; to be sent up to the correspondents of the several counties and places, and paid to the cashiers. 1672.—1676.

l Origin and design.

Disbursements out of the national stock to be such only, as shall be agreed to and directed by the meeting for sufferings in London. 1679.

2 Control of payments.

It being represented to this meeting, that friends in some places have sent, as their contributions to the general stock, a certain stated sum taken from their meeting's stock; this meeting recommends to such places in future, to raise their contributions towards the general stock, by a separate, free, and liberal collection for the purpose, in a proportion adequate to the occasion. 1771.

3 Mode of collection.

It is agreed, that in future the cash of this meeting be kept at the bankers' in the names of six friends, under the denomination of trustees, to be appointed by the meeting for sufferings, and renewed from time to time, whenever by death, a desire to be excused, or any other reasonable cause, the trust shall be reduced to three; for which purpose, the names of the trustees shall be called over in the meeting for sufferings previous to the yearly meeting; and that the drafts be in future signed in the meeting by three of the members present, and afterwards countersigned by one or more of the trustees. 1793.

4 Trustees. 5 Objects of appropriation. The original objects of the national stock appear to have been the defraying of the necessary expenses of friends called to labour in the Gospel in foreign parts; and the charge for books for distribution on our religious principles both in our own and in foreign languages.

The printing of epistles and other papers issued on behalf of the society, as well as the providing of birth and burial notes, and marriage registers for the use of friends generally, have long formed a part of the expenditure.

An annual payment is also incurred of the remaining annuities on the money borrowed to supply the deficiency in the subscription raised to purchase the ground, and to erect thereon the meeting-houses for the use of the yearly meeting. A considerable charge is necessarily incurred in keeping in repair the said buildings, and the various offices connected with them, which are the property of the society at large.

A large proportion of the salary of the clerk in London, whose time is much occupied in the service of the society, is also paid out of the national stock.

In addition to the before-mentioned objects, numerous incidental expenses are constantly incurred; and there are some other annual charges of a smaller amount, which the meeting for sufferings has been authorized by this meeting to pay. 1833.

This meeting agrees that the national stock may be employed in defraying the expenses of ministering friends from other countries, who may be returning from visits to any part of Great Britain, although such visits may not have been general: such expenses having been examined and allowed by the quarterly meeting in which the same shall have been incurred. The said fund may also be expended in defraying the charges of ministers who may be called to travel in any foreign country, in which there are not any friends, or none suitable to bear such charges. 1793.

This meeting agrees that the expenses of ministering friends travelling to and on any of the islands adjacent to Great Britain, or on the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, and also of their necessary guides from the residence of friends to and at the ports whence they may embark, and at the ports where they may disembark, and from thence to the residence of any neighbouring friends, except the expense occasioned by the holding of any public meetings, not held on the islands; and also that similar expenses incurred in such parts of Wales and Scotland as are out of the acknowledged limits of any monthly meeting, may be defrayed out of the national stock. The said expenses are to be previously examined and allowed by the quarterly or general meeting. It is further agreed, that the general meetings of Scotland and of Herefordshire, Worcestershire and Wales, may be at liberty, when they think proper, to apply for reimbursement out of the national stock, of the whole or part of any similar expenses arising within the limits of the several meetings in Wales and Scotland. 1799.—1800.—1833.

This meeting agrees, that any expenses incurred by the general meeting of Dorsetshire and Hampshire, in its care of the members of our society on the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, may be applied for by that general meeting, and paid at the discretion of the meeting for sufferings. 1817.—1833.

OATHS AND AFFIRMATION.

I Ground of our testimony. Advised, that our Christian testimony be faithfully maintained against the burthen and imposition of oaths, according to the express prohibition of Christ, and also of the apostle James: "Ye have "heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not for-"swear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths; but I say "unto you, Swear not at all; neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; "nor by the earth, for it is his footstool; neither by Jerusalem, for it is "the city of the great King; neither shalt thou swear by thy head, be-"cause thou canst not make one hair white or black: but let your com-"munication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay; for whatsoever is more than "these, cometh of evil."

"But above all things, my brethren, swear not; neither by hea-"ven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath; but let your "yea be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation." 1693. P. E.—1782.

2 Enactments.

We cannot but with great humility acknowledge the goodness of God, in disposing the legislature to grant us, the last session of parliament, such form of affirmation, as, by accounts received, we find very satisfactory to all the brethren: for which we are truly thankful to God, and those in authority. 1722. P. E.

1 Matthew, v. 33-37.

² James, v. 12.

The meeting for sufferings, in inserting in the present edition of the Book of Extracts, the subjoined Act of Parliament, which has passed since our late yearly meeting, has apprehended that it might be suitable to prefix the following introductory paragraph, and also to revive the appropriate counsel contained in the concluding paragraph. The latter is principally extracted from an epistle of caution, issued by the meeting for sufferings, in 1721, on the passing of the Affirmation Act of 8th George 1st, which epistle was earnestly recommended to the attention of friends by the yearly meeting of 1722.

In the course of the late session of parliament, an act, of which the following is a copy, was passed, giving, in all cases, to the affirmation of friends, the legal force and effect of an oath. Thus has this testimony of our religious society against all swearing, been, through progressive steps, recognised by the legislature, until at length in this respect every obstacle is removed to a full participation with our fellowcountrymen in all civil duties and privileges. We cannot but regard this important result, although not solicited by us, as happily indicating more enlarged and enlightened views, than have heretofore prevailed, in regard to Christian liberty and the rights of conscience. It is probable however that some of our dear friends may, in consequence of the recent enactment, be subjected to trying and even to painful circumstances; yet we trust, that, as they are engaged to watch unto prayer for the guidance and help of the Holy Spirit in all their conduct, they will be preserved from evil; and, by faithfulness in the support of our various religious testimonies, be made instrumental in advancing still further those views of Christian truth which our religious society has, in accordance with Holy Scripture, maintained from the beginning.

3rd and 4th William the 4th, Chapter 49.

"An Act to allow Quakers and Moravians to make Affirmation in all Cases where an Oath is or shall be required: 28th August, 1833.

"Whereas it is expedient and reasonable that the solemn affirmation of persons of the persuasion of the people called Quakers, and of Moravians, should be allowed in all cases where an oath is or shall be required; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That every person of the persuasion of the people called Quakers, and every Moravian, be permitted to make his or her solemn affirmation or declaration, instead of taking an oath, in all places and for all purposes whatsoever where an oath is or shall be required either by the common law or by any act of parliament already made or hereafter to be made, which said affirmation or declaration shall be of the same force and effect as if he or she had taken an oath in the usual form; and if any such person making such solemn affirmation or declaration shall be lawfully convicted wilfully, falsely, and corruptly to have affirmed or declared any matter or thing, which if the same had been in the usual form would have amounted to wilful and corrupt perjury, he or she shall incur the same penalties and forfeitures as by the laws and statutes of this realm are enacted against persons convicted of wilful and corrupt perjury, any law, statute, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, that every such affirmation or declaration shall be in the words following; (that is to say,)

"IA. B. being one of the people called Quakers [or one of the persuasion of the people called Quakers, or of the United Brethren called Moravians, as the case may be,] do solemnly, sincerely, and truly declare and affirm.

"II. And whereas some doubts may arise as to the form of the affirmation to be taken in lieu of the oath of abjuration by persons of the persuasion of the people called Quakers; be it therefore enacted, That instead of the form of affirmation prescribed in lieu of the abjuration oath by an act of the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the First, intituled An Act for granting the People called Quakers such Forms of Affirmation or Declaration as may remove the Difficulties which many of them lie under, and instead of the form of the oath of abjuration prescribed by an act of the sixth year of the reign of his late majesty King George the Third, intituled An Act for altering the Oath of Abjuration and the Assurance, and for amending so much of an Act of the Seventh Year of Her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled 'An Act for the Improvement of the Union of the Two Kingdoms,' as after the Time therein limited requires the Delivery of certain Lists and Copies therein mentioned to Persons indicted of High Treason or Misprision of Treason, every person of the persuasion of the people called Quakers shall be permitted to make his or her solemn affirmation in the following words; (videlicet,)

"I A.B. being one of the people called Quakers, [or one of the persuasion of the people called Quakers, or of the United Brethren called Moravians, as the case may be,] do solemnly, sincerely, and truly acknowledge, profess, testify, and declare, that King William is lawful and rightful king of this realm, and of all other his dominions and countries thereunto belonging: And I do solemnly and sincerely declare, That I do believe that not any of the descendants of the person who pretended to be Prince of Wales during the life of the late King James the Second, and since his decease pretended to be and took upon himself the style and title of king of England by the name of James the Third, or of Scotland by the name of James the Eighth, or the style and title of King of Great Britain, hath any right or title whatsoever to the crown of this realm, or any other the dominions thereunto belonging; and I do renounce and refuse any allegiance or obedience to any of them: And I do solemnly promise, That I will be true and faithful and bear true allegiance to King William, and to him will be faithful against all traitorous conspiracies and attempts whatsoever which shall be made against his person, crown, or dignity; and I will do my best endeavour to disclose and make known to King William and his successors all treasons and traitorous conspiracies which I shall know to be made against him or any of them; and I will be true and faithful to the succession of the crown, against the descendants of the said James, and against all other persons whatsoever, which succession by an Act, intituled An act for the further Limitation of the Crown and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, is and stands limited to the Princess Sophia Electoress and Duchess Dowager of Hanover, and the heirs of her body, being Protestants: And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge, promise, and declare, according to these express words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever: And I do make this recognition, acknowledgment, renunciation, and promise heartily, willingly, and truly."

Although the evidence of friends upon their affirmation was, previously to the passing of the foregoing act, admissible on all occasions; yet, as it is probable that, in consequence of this further acknowledgment of their civil rights, they may be more frequently called upon, than heretofore, publicly to make their solemn affirmation, we desire, in the language of this meeting on a former similar occasion, to remind our dear friends of the saying of our blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; "A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid;" and in every age, as many as do walk in obedience to his Gospel, must unavoidably be so; for the daily cross and self-denial which he doth enjoin, are public marks, which are easily seen and readily observed by those with whom we have occasion of business or converse; and our transacting hereof with uprightness, justice, and moderation, will show that we have an awful regard to our Lord Jesus Christ, whom we acknowledge and declare to be our great lawgiver and example. It is the effect of that grace and truth which are come by Jesus Christ, to draw men into obedience to his law written in the heart, by which only the inside can be made clean, and, according to the degrees of obedience to this divine law, which the apostle calls "the law of the spirit of life in "Christ Jesus," the proper result thereof will appear; that is, the outside will be clean also: hereby truth, justice, righteousness, and charity will shine forth in the words and actions of such. We do therefore intreat, that when any friend has occasion to make an affirmation, he be very considerate and sure of the truth of what he is about to affirm, remembering that "a false witness shall not be unpunished, "and he that speaketh lies shall not escape," and that that command. "thou shalt not bear false witness," is as well in the Gospel as in the law; and that "all liars shall have their part in the lake which burn-"eth with fire and brimstone." If this awful sense of the obligation to truth-speaking adequately rest upon the mind, its effect will be manifest even in the deportment of those who are giving evidence. Let it also be considered, that the ground of this testimony of our religious society is a conscientious scruple: how infamous, therefore, would it be, for any who profess a scruple against swearing at all, to be at the same time guilty of false affirming, and, while they pretend to a great degree of purity, to fall short in common honesty. It would, indeed, be among the highest degrees of hypocrisy, a crime abhorred in the sight of God and man.

Meeting for Sufferings, 1st of 11th mo. 1833.

OVERSIGHT.

IF any weakness, shortness, failure, or unfaithfulness appear in any professing the same truth with us, we hope faithful friends and overbrethren will continue their Christian care for their help, instruction, and admonition, in the love and power of the Lord, as in his wisdom they shall see cause, still aiming at their good, their inward peace of conscience, and salvation in Christ Jesus. 1701. P. E.

We intreat the elders amongst you to abide in that power that gives dominion over all corrupt spirits; and in meekness and condescension to seek to recover that which is strayed; that when the great Shepherd shall appear, you may receive your reward. 1751. W.E.

You that are elders and overseers in the church, and concerned in the maintenance of good order, and the preservation of the discipline, keep your own hands clean, and garments unspotted; that you may rebuke with authority, and being clothed with the meekness and gentleness of the Lamb, may steadfastly persevere in the discharge of the duty committed to you; that when the great Shepherd shall appear, you may receive the reward of "Well done, good and faithful servant;" "enter "thou into the joy of thy Lord." 1753. W. E.

We especially intreat those appointed as elders and overseers to be diligent in the discharge of their extensive and important duties; that the ignorant may be informed, the weak strengthened, the tender encouraged, the scattered sought out, the unwary cautioned, the unruly warned; and that such as act in opposition to the testimonies required of us by the Spirit and doctrines of Truth, may be treated with in love and meekness, yet with holy firmness: that the cause of truth may not be suffered to fall, through the remissness of those who are placed as watchmen on the walls of Zion. 1780. P. E.

The duty of private admonition.

This meeting feels a lively concern to recommend elders, overseers, and other concerned friends, to discharge their duty in Christian love, by faithfully and early administering private counsel when necessary. By this means the hands of those concerned in the further exercise of the discipline will not be weakened by a consciousness of their having themselves departed from the true order of the Gospel. Where private labour may prove ineffectual, or the nature of a case of delinquency may require it, such cases are to be reported in due time to the monthly meeting. 1787.—1801.—1833.

This meeting is desirous of encouraging not only overseers, but all well concerned friends, to be diligent in discharging the duty of private admonition. And we desire that the care and love of friends, in this respect, may be manifested not only towards parents and heads of families, but that, where any of our dear young friends stand in need of counsel, it may not be withheld; trusting that a hint in kindness to such would often be well received. The exercise of Christian care in this private way is an important feature in our discipline: it tends, when the counsel is administered in love, to strengthen the bands of fellowship, and is useful both to those who give, and to those who receive it. 1821.

On providing suitable situations for young men.

It appears from information received by this meeting, that young men, members of our society, who have removed to London from various parts of the country, are frequently, from the want of proper superintendence and suitable employment, placed in circumstances of great difficulty and danger. This meeting has been painfully affected on this subject; and whilst we feel a tender sympathy with such individuals, we believe it right earnestly to impress on the attention of friends, in our several quarterly and monthly meetings, the very great peril which young men cannot fail to incur, who come, or are sent by their parents, to this great metropolis, without any definite prospect of protection or employment; it is but too evident that such a proceeding may lead even to their ruin. We believe that much may be effected by the kind endeavours of friends, in procuring for our young men situations in the country; and if these endeavours were diligently used immediately on the return of lads from school, it would often be the means of preventing future difficulties. It is also of great importance to forward certificates on behalf of such young persons, as early as possible after their removal; and to place them even before the sending of their certificates, under the kind notice of friends.

In reference to this subject, which has thus engaged our attention, we are again concerned earnestly to advise friends, in their choice of servants, apprentices, and assistants, to prefer the members of our society: a preference which seems to form an essential part of the care which we owe to our religious body.

We have been brought into a feeling of sympathy with such of our members as are engaged in the sea-faring line, and recommend Respecting friends in the that friends in the several meetings to which persons of this description sea-faring line. belong, extend a tender and watchful care towards them; and when they know of any of their members, so circumstanced, likely to sail to, or frequent a port or ports, at or near to which any of our society reside, that they take early care that such sea-faring persons may obtain the kind oversight of friends during the time they remain in port. 1822.

We have in this meeting been led to the reflection, that one of the great benefits of religious society is, that it places us under the care one of another, and that we are called upon to watch over each other for good. When we see any of our brethren or sisters overtaken with a fault, or neglecting an important duty, we ought to cherish a solicitude for their improvement; and, in that love which would lead them to Christ, to offer such counsel or encouragement as we may think best calculated to help them. Much depends on the manner in which advice is offered, and on our embracing the right opportunity to convey it. If it should not immediately have a salutary effect, we are not to be too much discouraged; we ought to take heed that we become not impatient or discomposed, but repeat our efforts in a spirit of love and forbearance.—The result of this Christian concern for our friends is often greater than is at the time apparent.

In the exercise of this duty, it becomes those who have the earliest opportunity of knowing the faults of others, seriously to consider on all occasions, whether they ought not to endeavour to reclaim them before they disclose the matter to another. At the same time we believe it has often happened, that the lengthened concealment of the errors of our friends from those who were best qualified to advise them, has been productive of serious injury, which might have been prevented by an early, yet prudent disclosure to those of greater experience. 1827. P. E.

10 The early settlement of disputes. This meeting being deeply impressed with the great importance of the preservation of love amongst us, and with the advantage of an early and timely settlement of disputes, recommends to all friends when they see their brethren in danger of being involved in this way, to be prompt and persevering, in the spirit of love and meekness, in their endeavours to bring such differences to a safe and amicable termination. 1828.

11 General exhortation. We are afresh engaged to encourage all friends to watch over one another for good. We greatly desire the increase of true overseers amongst us, under whatever name they may stand in the church. We exhort ministers, elders, and overseers, to take the oversight of the flock, not by constraint, but willingly, and of a ready mind. May those who are called to minister in word and doctrine, be diligent in the exercise of their gifts in the fear of the Lord, and in humble dependence on the ability which he giveth. And may the elders not consider themselves solely appointed to the care of the ministry; but maintain a lively concern that all the members of their respective meetings may walk in the paths of safety, and be led into the pastures of life. We earnestly desire that every appearance of good may be cherished; that counsel and encouragement may be extended to the young and inexperienced, and a parental care exercised over those who appear to be in danger of wandering from the fold of Christ. May the body be thus edified in love, and the fellowship of the Gospel increase amongst us. 1833.

This meeting earnestly recommends to all friends who are concerned for the prosperity of the truth, to exercise a tender care over the be especial younger members of our society, bearing in mind the exposed situation objects of care. of many of them and their critical period of life. We would encourage friends to cultivate an acquaintance with such, to call upon them at their places of abode, and to manifest, by the general tenour of their conduct towards them, a kind interest in their welfare and preservation from harm, and a solicitude that they may be established on the right foundation, in the faith and hope of the Gospel. We believe this feeling of regard, if cherished, will induce friends, when any are not diligent in attending our religious meetings, to press upon them the advantage and importance of this primary duty. It will lead them also to encourage our young people to read the Holy Scriptures daily, with desires that the Lord may bless these invaluable writings to their spiritual instruction. And we intreat friends to promote, especially among the younger part of our body, an acquaintance with the writings of our approved authors, in which are set forth the grounds of our religious testimonies, the persecutions suffered by our faithful predecessors in the support of them, and many instances of the visitations of divine love so often mercifully granted in early life.

In order to bring our members, and more especially our younger Lists of memfriends, under notice, with reference to the foregoing advice, this meet-bers to be read over. ing recommends to monthly meetings, that provision be made for the reading, at least once in the year, of their respective lists of members, either by the elders and overseers, or by the said friends, together with any other well-concerned men and women friends of the monthly meeting, whom it may think proper to unite with them. Monthly meetings are left at liberty, in the performance of this service, if preferable, to read their lists of members when collectively met. 1833.

PARENTS AND EDUCATION.

WE do intreat and desire all you dear friends that are parents and governors of families, that ye diligently lay to heart your work and calling in your generation, for the Lord, and the charge committed to you; not only in being good examples to the younger sort, but also to use your power in your own families in educating your children and servants in modesty, sobriety, and in the fear of God, curbing the extravagant humour in the young ones when it doth appear; and not to indulge or allow of it: for you are set in your families as judges for God, and it is you that must give an account of the power committed to you. And when you see a libertine and wanton spirit appear in your children and servants, that lusteth after the vain customs and fashions of the world, either in habit or outward adorning, and craves your assistance and allowance, without which it cannot get forward while they are under your government; O then look to yourselves, and discharge your trust for God, and for the good of their souls, exhorting in meekness, and commanding in wisdom; that so you may minister and reach to the witness, and help them over their temptations, in the authority of God's power; and when they feel themselves helped and delivered, their souls will bless God for you, and you will reap the comfort of your labour. 1688. P. E.

It is our Christian and earnest advice and counsel to all friends concerned, to provide school-masters and mistresses who are faithful school-masfriends, to teach and instruct their children; and not to send them to ters and mistresses. schools where they are taught the corrupt ways, manners, fashions, and language of the world; and of the heathen in their authors; tending greatly to corrupt and alienate the minds of children into an averse-ness or opposition against the truth, and the simplicity of it. But take care that you train up your children in the good nurture, admonition, and fear of the Lord, in that plainness and language which become truth. 1690. P. E.

- Advised, that school-masters and mistresses who are faithful friends, and well qualified, be encouraged in all counties, cities, great towns, or other places where there may be need: and that care be taken, that poor friends' children may freely partake of such education as may tend to their benefit and advantage, in order to apprenticeship. 1695. P. E.
- Apprentices. It being under consideration how friends' children might be disposed of, that are trained up in the way of truth, and fit to be put forth apprentices; it is the advice and counsel of friends, that special care be taken to put them apprentices to honest friends, that they may be preserved in the way of truth. 1697.
- This meeting doth earnestly recommend that friends of all degrees take due care to breed up their children in some useful and necessary employments, that they may not spend their precious time in idleness; which is of evil example, and tends much to their hurt. 1703. P. E.
- As touching the education of friends' children, for which this meeting hath often found a concern, we think it our duty to recommend unto you, that no opportunity be omitted, nor any endeavours wanting, to instruct them concerning the principle of truth which we profess: and there being times and seasons, wherein their spirits are, more than at others, disposed to have such things impressed upon them, so we desire that all parents, and others concerned in the oversight of youth, may wait in the fear of God to know themselves qualified for that service; that in his wisdom they may make use of every such opportunity which the Lord shall put into their hands. 1717. P. E.

We tenderly recommend to all parents, and such as may have the care of children, that they do, as far as in them lies, carefully inspect, and narrowly inquire into, the manner of their conversation; that where counsel or reproof may be wanted, it may in the spirit of love and in sound judgment be given. 1724. P.E.

And you who are parents of children, labour fervently in spirit, with secret supplication unto the Lord, that he may give them an inheritance in the truth, wherein they may be enabled to stand up in their generation after you, to his praise and glory, rather than labour to get inheritances for them in this world, which has proved a snare and temptation to some to shun the cross, and embrace the glory of this present world. But let those to whom God hath given riches, take the apostle's advice, That they be not highminded, but fear, and trust not in uncertain riches; but therewith be rich in good works, willing to communicate, ready to distribute, and therein be a good example to their children. 1725. P. E.

We earnestly and tenderly advise, that mothers of children (as well as fathers), as they have frequently the best opportunities, would take Children to be trained in a particular care to instruct them in the knowledge of religion, and the knowledge of Holy Scrip-Holy Scriptures; because it has been found by experience, that good impressions, early made on the tender minds of children, have proved lasting means of preserving them in a religious life and conversation. When parents or guardians are deficient in such their care, we recommend to monthly meetings, that they stir them up thereto, either by visiting them in their families, or in such manner as in the wisdom of God they may see meet; that so the doctrines of the Gospel, and a conversation agreeable thereto, may be maintained unto all generations. 1731. P. E.

And, as it hath been frequently the care and concern of the meeting to advise parents, and all who have the tuition and education of children, to bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, we are still sensible that there is occasion to repeat our tender advice and exhortation that you would lay this matter closely to heart; for it is certain that the preservation of your offspring in the way of true religion and godliness, is of much greater moment to their happiness, both in this life and in that which is to come, than any thing else you are capable of doing for them. We therefore renew our advice, that you be diligently exercised in such a godly care, waiting upon God for wisdom from him, first to walk wisely and circumspectly before them yourselves, and then you may, with more weight and authority, in the meekness of that wisdom, instruct, advise, exhort, and rebuke, as you shall see occasion. And we think it will contribute very much to your success in these endeavours, if you put them frequently, in a solemn manner, upon reading the Holy Scriptures, especially such parts of them as relate to the great doctrines and precepts of the Christian religion, and then wait upon God with them, that you may become instruments to open their understandings; and, in the sense of his power and wisdom, press them closely to the practice of what they read. Such an exercise as this, begun early and frequently repeated, we recommend as the indispensable duty of all concerned, and the most likely means for the preservation and improvement of children in the way of truth; and, through the Lord's blessing, to secure them from being prevailed upon by the many false, deceitful spirits that are gone forth into the world, tending to subvert the Christian faith, and a practice and conversation agreeable thereto. 1735. P. E.

I I Instruction in modern languages. It has been the concern of this meeting, from the relation given of truth's spreading in foreign countries, that friends who are of ability, and have the prosperity of truth at heart, would in the education of their children take care, as suitable opportunities and occasions may offer, to let them be instructed in some modern tongues, as French, High and Low Dutch, Danish, &c. that so when they are grown up, they may reap the benefit thereof; and, as it shall please the Lord to dispose and incline them, may be of service to the church. 1737. W. E.

We do with earnestness recommend to all such parents as have experienced the gracious dealings of the Lord with their own souls, to take all proper opportunities of instilling into the minds of their children just sentiments respecting the vanity and emptiness of fading and transitory enjoyments; and to direct them to seek after that solid peace and serenity of mind, which attend the sincere practice of true religion and virtue. 1745. P. E.

12 Parents, &c.

We desire that your several monthly and quarterly meetings, where any school-masters or mistresses of our profession may reside, may ters and mis not be wanting to admonish them, to bring up the children of friends, committed to their care, as much as in them lies, in plainness of speech, behaviour, and apparel, agreeable to our profession: and that such of them as have boarders in their families, would frequently call them together, and accustom them to a solemn reading of the Holy Scriptures, and press and excite them to the observance of the Christian precepts therein contained: and that they themselves walk before the scholars as ensamples of that plainness and simplicity which they re-1745. P. E. commend.

As the want of proper persons amongst friends qualified for schoolmasters hath been the occasion of great damage to the society in many places, as thereby well-disposed friends are deprived of opportunities for the education of their children in a manner consistent with a religious concern for their welfare, and have been necessitated to send them to those of other persuasions; whereby the tender minds of such children have been in great danger of being leavened into the language, customs, and habits of the world, from whence it is difficult afterwards to reclaim them; we desire friends would attend to this important point, and in their monthly meetings assist young men of low circumstances, whose genius and conduct may be suitable for that office, with the means requisite to obtain the proper qualifications; and, when so qualified, afford them the necessary encouragement for their support. 1751. W. E.

15 Parents, &c. It has been the frequent concern of this meeting, by former advices, to press all parents, guardians, and heads of families, to a strict watch over the conduct and behaviour of their children, servants, and the youth under their care; and, in order that they themselves may be properly qualified to discharge so great and necessary a duty, we earnestly recommend, that in whatsoever relation they stand to the rising generation, they be very circumspect and exemplary in every particular of their own conduct, and be fully given up in faithful obedience to the manifestations of light and grace received: whereby they will be enabled to advise and reprove with proper authority, and to restrain those under them from all superfluous and hurtful things, which it may be in their power to prevent. 1758. P. E.

As the right education of children, and the nurture of youth, is of very great consequence to them, and to the succeeding generation, we pressingly exhort all parents and heads of families, to procure such useful learning for their children, as their abilities will admit; and to encourage them, as well by example as precept, to the frequent reading of the Holy Scriptures; and that they begin, as early as possible, to instil into their tender minds the principles of truth and virtue; and instruct them in the nature and necessity of being born from above, without which, our Lord declared, no man shall see the kingdom of God; and, in order hereunto, that they labour to bring them acquainted with the holy seed, which is sown by the divine hand in every heart for that gracious end.

The importance of an early instruction in the law of God, is set forth with peculiar strength, clearness, and solemnity: "Hear, O "Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord "thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all "thy might: and these words which I command thee this day, shall be "in thine heart; and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, "and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou "walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou "risest up." It is requisite also that restraint be added to instruction, it being much easier, as well as more prudent, to exercise it upon the first appearances of an inclination to dangerous or hurtful liberties, than afterwards; for where children, through the prevalence of fond affection, have been accustomed to improper indulgences, when they are grown to such a dangerous degree of ripeness, that the exertion of authority hath become absolutely necessary, the strength of their passions so habituated, hath often proved unconquerable, or very difficult to overcome; to the great hurt of the unhappy youth, and the unspeakable grief of the imprudently indulgent parents. 1760. P. E.

To all masters and tutors of children, we affectionately address ourselves; that in a particular manner it may be your care to caution, and as much as in you lies to guard, the youth committed to your charge, against the dangers and allurements of evil communications, and the reading of profane and immoral writings, (those powerful engines of Satan), whether they be such as directly tend to defile the affections, or, with a more specious appearance, to subvert the doctrines of Christianity, by a presumptuous abuse of human reason, and by vain and subtle disputations, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ. 1766. P. E.

17 Masters and tutors.

As, next to our own souls, our offspring are the most immediate objects of our care and concern, it is earnestly recommended to all parents and guardians of children, that the most early opportunities be taken, in their tender years, to impress upon them a sense of the Divine Being, his wisdom, power, and omnipresence, so as to beget a reverent awe and fear of him in their hearts; and, as their capacities enlarge, to acquaint them with the Holy Scriptures, by frequent and diligent reading therein, instructing them in the great love of God to mankind through Jesus Christ, the work of salvation by him, and sanctification through his blessed Spirit. For though virtue descendeth not by lineal succession, nor piety by inheritance; yet we trust the Almighty doth graciously regard the sincere endeavours of those parents, whose early and constant care is over their offspring for good;

18 Parents, &c. who labour to instruct them in the fear of the Lord, and in a humble waiting for, and feeling after, those secret and tender visitations of divine love, which are afforded for the help and direction of all. ye therefore excited to a faithful discharge of your duty. Be examples to them, in your meetings, your families, and your employments, of a diligent, humble watchfulness, and steady regard to that holy principle in yourselves, which you recommend to their observance. Be careful not to indulge them in any thing of an evil tendency. Keep them, while young, out of the vain fashions, the corrupt customs, and unprofitable conversation of the world; guard them against the reading of plays, romances, and other licentious publications, of a nature prejudicial to the promotion of true Christianity; likewise against the public pastimes, and pernicious diversions of the age: all which are the inventions of degenerate and corrupt spirits, and strongly tend to draw the incautious mind from a sense of religious duty, to bring it into a state of alienation from the life of God, and to deprive it of that inexpressible comfort and delight, which attend the daily exercise of religion and virtue. 1767. P. E.

19 The offspring of friends in straitened circumstances. It is the renewed concern of this meeting, to recommend a care for the offspring of parents whose income or earnings are so small, as to render them incapable of giving their children a suitable and guarded education, and that especially from home. They may be exposed to mix with others not of our religious persuasion, which so often leads into hurtful habits, from which they are not afterwards easily reclaimed: and as some of our members may incautiously permit their offspring to suffer this great loss, rather than apply for assistance from their monthly meetings, it is recommended to friends in every monthly meeting to seek out such of their members as may be thus straitened, and administer to their help; and it is desired that such will receive the salutary aid with a willing mind, and thankfulness to the great Author of all good. 1777.

20 Parents, &c. And ye parents, be ye solicitous to discharge your important and awful duty, with scrupulous attention. It is often too late to warn the youthful mind of danger, when your own negligence, or indulgence, hath suffered your offspring to deviate from that path of simplicity, in which you have thought yourselves bound to walk, and in which you have found peace. If you fail to suppress the early beginnings of undue liberty, how can you expect a blessing on your endeavours, when further deviations at length arouse your attention? and how, having failed to rule your own houses well, can you expect duly to "take care of the church of God," by performing that too much neglected duty of private admonition therein? There were of old those who brought children to Christ, in the days of his flesh; and now the religious parent can breathe no better aspiration for them, than when he spiritually commends his tender offspring to the protection of his Lord. But see, friends, that you encourage no propensities in them which prevent a union with Him. Restrain them, we beseech you, from associating with those whose influence and example lead away from his law; and be especially careful that you introduce not among them, publications, which are either wholly or in part, repugnant to the faith as it is in Jesus. Let it be your own daily care to endeavour after closer communion with him, and to walk in meek submission to his commands: so may you gain, over the minds of the youth providentially placed under your care, that ascendency which arises from the united effects of sound judgment, truest love, and a good example, 1800. P.E.

Dear friends, you know our annual inquiry, 'Do friends endeavour, by example and precept, to train up their children, servants, and Application of the 4th query. those under their care, in a religious life and conversation, consistent with our Christian profession?' The query then descends to particulars, all of them indeed important, but we now hint at them only to observe, that, important and indispensable as we believe they are for us, they are not to be made the sole criterion for judging whether religious education has been duly and successfully given. Consider, dear friends, what subjection of spirit, what care of conduct, and what self-restraint go to make up a good example; tempered as it should be with sweetness of manner, seconded by holy firmness, and recommended by its being manifest that yourselves are "seeking first "the kingdom of God, and his righteousness." These are truly great, but they are attainable objects; and equally the duty of every one who lays claim to the Christian character; for though all are not called to the same stations in the militant church, all are invited to heaven; and the general terms of invitation are alike to all. O friends, did we all thus seek and attain to the things that are excellent, precept, impressive precept, would not be withheld. Love would inspire it, prudence would direct it, both as to season and quantity, and what reason have we not for hoping that the Lord himself would render it availing by his blessing? 1807. P. E.

22 Dress and address. Among some of the most irksome restraints to the lively dispositions of youth, are often those which relate to speech and dress. But as we know that the ground of our dissent from the world in these things, is Christian simplicity; so we know by experience, that they are often the means of defence against temptation to mingle in the company of such as are unsuitable examples for our youth to observe and to follow. And when by the gentle intimations of the Spirit of Truth in their ripening understandings, they are entered on a course of self-denial, they will feel you doubly dear to them, for having led them on in the way they should go, and will bless the Lord on your behalf. 1808. P. E.

23 Attendance of week-day meetings.

The habit of a constant attendance of meetings for divine worship, forms an important branch of the religious education of our youth; we are therefore desirous of impressing on the minds of those to whom they are intrusted, and who themselves may be diligent, to beware how they deprive their children of such opportunities on the week-day, even for the sake of their attendance at school. 1815. P. E.

24 Parents, &c. We observe with pleasure the increasing desire manifested by friends to obtain a guarded and useful education for their children. The reports concerning the schools under the notice of this meeting prove that religious care and good order prevail in them, and have yielded us Parents, &c. great satisfaction. The improvement of the understanding, and the communication of that knowledge by which it may be more extensively prepared for the service of Him to whom we must all render our account, are duties not to be neglected. We desire however to impress upon all, whether parents, or those to whom they intrust their tender offspring, the supreme importance of inculcating the first of duties, the fear and love of God.

A watchful parent will at no time be more alive to the welfare of his children, than when they are passing from the age to which we have just adverted, to the succeeding stage of life. The situations in which they are then placed, and the companions with whom they associate, may have a decided influence on their future character. We would therefore encourage both parents and masters, not to relax at this critical period, either in care or counsel, or in proper restraint tempered with kindness. Here we would advert to the importance of good example, and to the great blessing which will attend the labours of those whom we are now addressing, as they seek to become preachers of righteousness, in life and conduct, to those around them. How inviting, how instructive, it is, to behold such as by the purity of their lives, by the meekness of their spirits, and by the benevolence of their characters, are adorning their profession! 1816. P. E.

Dear friends, who fill the important station of parents, permit us to express the warm interest which we have felt on your account, and on that of your offspring. It has often been the concern of this meeting to recommend, (and again feeling its importance we desire to enforce the advice,) that your interesting charge may, from very early life, be brought up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Let it be your earnest and tender care to subject their wills, and thus prepare them to bear the cross of Christ. Cultivate in their minds, a strict regard to truth and integrity. Neglect no endeavours to preserve them in the paths of virtue, and let them be early habituated to simplicity of dress and manner, and to restraints from indulgences inconsistent with our Christian profession.

Parents, as they watch the opening capacities of their beloved offspring, may instil into them, during their very early years, (a period when prejudice and worldly temptations present but little obstruction to the work,) the first principles of religion. It is their indispensable duty to seek opportunities for this purpose; that they may impress upon their children the fear and the love of God; and point their early affections to the blessed Jesus, who laid down his life for them, and who has, in a peculiar manner, called them unto himself.—" Suffer "little children to come unto me, and forbid them not."

A highly important means for promoting these objects, is instruction in the Holy Scriptures. No study is more interesting to children when it is judiciously presented to their attention. It is a pleasant and most useful employment to store their tender minds with a knowledge of those sacred histories which so beautifully display the wisdom and love of God; to make them acquainted with the types and prophecies which represented beforehand the coming and character of Christ; and to point out to them those essential truths which were fully brought to light by the gospel. In the course of such instruction, their minds ought to be directed to those parts of Scripture which elucidate our peculiar religious testimonies. Thus, as they advance in life, they will know on what grounds their profession rests. An increasing attachment to that profession will also be promoted in them, by their being led to peruse the history of our society, and especially the interesting lives of our early predecessors.

As friends are thus concerned to communicate to their tender charge a knowledge of Christian truth, we believe that they will themselves often derive instruction as well as comfort from the work. In prosecuting this work, however, let us always remember that we cannot, of ourselves, produce religion in the mind. On this principle, we must make it our chief object to direct the early and constant attention of our offspring to the Spirit of Christ within them, from which alone can spring the fruits of righteousness: we must wait upon that Spirit ourselves, for ability to perform our parental duties; and we must seek the Lord, in prayer, for his blessing upon all our efforts. Teach them, dear friends, that of themselves they can do nothing; let them be accustomed, in early life, to religious retirement; and tenderly advise Parents, &c. them to lift up their hearts, morning by morning, and evening by evening, to the Author of all their mercies. Thus they will experience preservation, and as they increase in stature, will increase also in favour with God and man.

But, never forget, that it should be your care to set that example of a humble Christian, which so beautifully enforces the pure precepts of the gospel; your own minds must be seasoned with grace; and your labours will only be effectual as they are carried on and blessed by the power of the Spirit of Christ. If, in the discharge of this duty, discouragements should arise, let not these become a cause of dismay. Even these may teach the important lesson, highly necessary to be learned, that it is only as fresh supplies of holy aid are granted, that we can safely labour in this work. The evidence which will at times in mercy be afforded, that Divine Goodness views such efforts with acceptance, and the cheering trust that the continued care of a tender parent may, if not at the time, yet at a future day, be rewarded, are powerful incitements to persevere in the way of well-doing. 1818.

In the earliest periods of life, much of the care of children rests with mothers, and we desire that in all cases their pious endeavours may be strengthened by the co-operation of the fathers. ful mind is very soon susceptible of serious impressions; and we believe that if parents are careful to watch the most favourable opportunities, they may instil religious truths, lay a foundation for correct principles, and give a right bias to the affections, which may be greatly blessed at a future day. The safe ground on which parents can proceed, is so to live and so to wait before the throne of grace, as to be enabled to pour forth their secret prayers for the blessing of the Most High. Then, instead of looking back with bitter regret, if their beloved offspring should deviate from the path of Christian virtue, they may commit their cause with conscious integrity to Him whom they have desired to serve. 1821. P. E.

27 Parents, &c.

Much of the undue liberty indulged in by the youth, is often occasioned by the early indulgence granted to them by the parent: wherefore this meeting tenderly, affectionately, yet earnestly, intreats such as are parents, or have the care of children, that they be very early and firm in endeavouring to habituate them to a due subjection of their will; that, having maturely weighed the injunctions which they find necessary to impose, they suffer them not to be disregarded and The habit of obedience, which may thus be induced, will render the relation of parent and child additionally endearing; and as it will prepare the infant mind for a more ready reception of the necessary restraints of the cross, it may be considered, in part, as preparing the way of the Lord: whilst those who neglect to bend the tender minds of their children to parental authority, and connive at their early tendencies to hurtful gratifications, are, more or less, making way for the enemy and destroyer. 1822.

In contemplating the temptations incident to human life, our thoughts are again turned to the responsible situation of parents, and others who have the care of children. Much depends, under the divine blessing, upon the early formation of character. We therefore earnestly recommend to all who have the charge of youth, to embrace the first opportunities to instil into their tender and susceptible minds correct principles of piety and virtue; in reverent fear to speak to them of Him who made them, and of Him who died for them; and to turn their attention to the discoveries of the Spirit of Truth. It is of great importance that every endeavour should be used, in love to check the evil propensities of their nature, to control their will, to induce habitual reverence for God, and for the solemn truths of the Gospel, and to lay the foundation of that humble faith in redemption through Christ, and in the teachings of the Holy Spirit, which we believe to be the basis of the Christian edifice.

Calmness and firmness on such occasions, and indeed in the daily occurrences of life—precept enforced by consistent example—are well calculated to command respect, and to give the most beneficial effect both to restraint and counsel. When true parental love, regulated by the love of Christ abiding in the heart, is thus exercised, it often produces obedience and corresponding love in the child. In this parental love, a watchful care is maintained with regard to his associates; and this dangerous avenue to evil is sedulously guarded. On the same principle, the attentive parent will exercise a diligent care, that the minds of his offspring be not contaminated by perusing such books as would induce a disregard for the tendering visitations of divine love; or a disrelish either for the truths of Holy Scripture, for the society of good men, or for the narratives of those who, through the power of redeeming love, have been prepared to enter into eternal rest. Thus we may see that that which is of the world leadeth unto the world, whilst that which is of God leadeth unto God. 1824. P. E.

The importance of endeavouring to train up children in the right way of the Lord is so great, that it is no cause for surprise that the minds of faithful brethren are, from year to year, as has been the case at the present time, exercised on the subject in this meeting. Our Christian profession leads to a religious life and conversation of great purity, both in example and precept. It forbids worldly-mindedness: it enforces the necessity of habits of Christian love and gentleness: it enjoins a watchful, guarded demeanour: it allows of no compromise of principle for any system of expediency. Thus the life of a pious parent will show forth a steady endeavour to follow the light of Christ, and to imitate his pure and holy example.

Such parents will often watch for favourable opportunities to imbue the susceptible minds of their youthful charge with the true filial fear and love of the Almighty; to turn their attention to "the Lamb of God, "which taketh away the sin of the world;" and to instruct them in the precious truths of Holy Scripture. They will frequently feel the vast importance of doing their utmost to cultivate in their tender offspring, Parents, &c. a humble obedience to the teachings of the Lord's Spirit; and, as they advance in years, to establish in them a firm belief in the allsufficiency of this holy guide. When precept and example are thus happily combined, they most effectually prepare the way for the adoption of those testimonies and practices in regard to speech, behaviour, and apparel, which accord with our views of Christian simplicity. These we believe to have their origin in that pure and perfect law of the Lord, from whence spring our more important views of Christian doctrine and practice. And we desire that none of our dear friends may be discouraged in contemplating that high standard of parental duty, which we are concerned to hold up. All should be endeavouring to perform their part with entire consistency; and if we are sincere in these attempts, we have abundant cause to believe that the blessing of the Most High will not be withheld. 1826. P. E.

We affectionately exhort parents, and all who have the care of children and young persons, constantly to bear in remembrance the great value of a tender conscience; and to turn their attention to the secret instructions of Divine Grace, reproving for evil, and bringing peace for doing well. Be concerned, dear friends of this class, early to subject the wills of those entrusted to your charge; encourage them to fix their affections on things which are eternal; set before them the necessity of being converted from the evil of their own hearts, and kept clean from the sin which abounds in the world; impress them with a sense of the holiness and purity of God, and of his righteous law: and whilst we would exhort you to continue to instruct them in the invaluable truths of the Bible, may you lead them to seek after the practical application of these precepts and doctrines under the influence of the Holy Spirit. By such a course of religious care and Christian instruction, carried on, in simple, humble dependence upon God, you will perform the great duty of bringing them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. 1830. P. E.

205

The reports which we have at this time received, of the state of our public schools have been satisfactory to us; we believe that they have been rendered a great blessing to our society. Our sympathy and esteem are peculiarly due to those who are conscientiously occupied in discharging the responsible duties attached to the care of youth. the right fulfilment of your trust, dear friends, our hopes of a succeeding generation are intimately connected. Your calling is arduous, but of eminent utility; and one in which you have abundant opportunity to serve the Lord. You have especial need to seek for the wisdom which is from above; but if, through heavenly help, you have been made instrumental in establishing correct moral habits and sound religious principles, however limited your sphere, you may hope to partake of the blessing of those who turn many to righteousness. We are religiously concerned that our young people of every class, whilst they are receiving that education which will fit them for usefulness in after life, may continue to be trained up in the knowledge and love of the Holy Scriptures; and that they may, in humility and the fear of the Lord, examine for themselves the external evidences of the Christian religion. May they ever be preserved in that teachable, watchful, and tender state of mind in which they will be alive to the perceptible influence of the Holy Spirit, and in which the Lord will be pleased to grant them a right understanding of the way of life and salvation. 1833. P. E.

PLAINNESS AND MODERATION.

Exhortations to Christian simplicity and self-denial. It is much upon us to put friends in remembrance to keep to the ancient testimony, truth begat in our hearts in the beginning, against the spirit of this world; for which many have suffered cruel mockings, beating, stoning, &c. particularly as to the corrupt fashions, dealings, and language of the world, their over-reachings and vain jestings; that the cross of Christ in all things may be kept to, which preserves friends blameless, and honours the Lord's name and truth in the earth. 1675. W. E.

- It is our tender and Christian advice that friends take care to keep to truth and plainness, in language, habit, deportment, and behaviour; that the simplicity of truth in these things may not wear out or be lost in our days, nor in those of our posterity; and to avoid pride and immodesty in apparel, and all vain and superfluous fashions of the world. 1691. P. E.
- This meeting, under a deep sense that pride, and the vain customs and fashions of the world prevail over some of our profession, particularly in the excess of apparel and furniture, doth earnestly recommend, that all who make profession with us take care to be exemplary in what they wear, and what they use, so as to avoid the vain customs of the world, and all extravagancy in colour and fashion; and keep themselves, in respect thereof, spotless and blameless, adorning their profession in all modesty and sobriety: and that all parents be watchful over their children, and careful not to suffer them to get up into pride and excess, but keep them to that decent plainness which becomes the people of God; that their children may not be exposed to ruin by their parents' neglect. 1703. P. E.

Let all be examples to their children, in wisdom, moderation, and plainness in language and habit; and not examples only, but also Exhortations to Christian restrain them from any thing that might be to their hurt, either in-simplicity and self-denial. wardly or outwardly: neither providing for them costly and gaudy attire unbecoming godliness, nor letting them have money to gratify themselves therein. 1709. P. E.

We exhort all such as are professors of the truth, faithfully to obey the same, in keeping to the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the several testimonies thereof; so that none may despise the day of small things, or turn aside from the plainness, simplicity, and life of the truth, into the words, ways, customs, and fashions of the world, which are vain, and will perish with the using; God having redeemed his people out of the same, through his righteous judgments in their inward parts: knowing, that whatsoever hath been condemned, and overturned thereby, is never to be built up again, by any who are lovers of the truth as it is in Jesus. 1712. P. E.

Advised, that all friends, both male and female, be careful that their adorning be that "of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of "God of great price;" even as the holy men and women of old, professing godliness, were adorned. O that our young men and women would follow their example! but to our great grief we find too many of our young men, instead of observing that gospel exhortation to be soberminded, have given way to lightness and vanity; the pernicious effects whereof have led them into pride, and such extravagances as those who are not of our profession observe, as marks of declension from our primitive plainness. And O that our young women, likewise, would cease from all unseemly and immodest appearance in their apparel! Certainly both males and females who take such undue measures, fly from the cross of Christ; and if they do not repent and return, they will thereby suffer great loss. 1715. W. E.

Forasmuch as a true Christian practice, and every branch of it, is the fruit and effect of the inward sanctification of the heart, by the simplicity and Spirit of Christ, for which we are frequently to wait on him in all humility and lowliness of mind; we tenderly advise, that every thing tending to obstruct, or divert the minds of children, or those of more advanced years, from this good exercise, may be carefully avoided and taken out of the way. And it being evident, that the glory and vanity of the world, and the pleasures and diversions of it, are of this nature and tendency; we therefore advise that all parents and masters, in the first place, be good examples to their children and families, in a humble and circumspect walking, and with all plainness of habit and speech; and also, that they be very careful not to indulge their children in the use and practice of things contrary thereunto. For we are sensible that, by such habits, of how little moment soever some may think them, the tender minds of children, while very young, being lifted up, and drawn aside from the simplicity of the truth, a foundation is early laid for those undue liberties, so justly complained of; for a love and delight in such things, imprudently indulged at first, grows up with them, and becomes strengthened more and more into confirmed habits; and thus some have become enemies to the cross of Christ, and forsaken and opposed the way of truth; which possibly might have been prevented by parents doing their duty, in being good examples, and not cherishing the seeds of vanity and folly in their children, but, on the contrary, prudently discouraging every appearance of evil in them: which necessary duty we earnestly recommend to their serious consideration and practice. 1735. P. E.

It is also our concern to exhort all friends, both men and women, to watch against the growing sin of pride, and to beware of adorning themselves in a manner disagreeable to the plainness and simplicity of the truth we make profession of. O that they would duly consider that reproof which the Lord, by the mouth of his prophet, pronounced against the haughty daughters of Zion, where he describes even the particularities of their dressings and ornaments, so displeasing to the Lord, and drawing down his judgments upon them!1

"I will," saith the apostle Paul, "that women adorn themselves in mo- Exhortations dest apparel, with shaine-facedness and sobriety; not with broidered simplicity and self-denial. "hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array; but, which becometh women "professing godliness, with good works:" plainly shewing, that such adornings are contrary to the profession of godliness. The apostle Peter also is very full in his exhortations on this subject: "Whose adorning," saith he, "let it not be that outward adorning, of plaiting the hair, "and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the "hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the orna-"ment of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great "price; for after this manner, in the old time, the holy women also who "trusted in God, adorned themselves:"2 plainly intimating, that those who of old were holy, and did trust in God, placed not their delight in such ornaments. O that ye would weigh and consider these things! "Let your moderation be known unto all men," and, "grieve not the "Holy Spirit of God;" but, be ye followers of Him, as dear children; walking "circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, "because the days are evil." 1739. P. E.

The example of our blessed Saviour and his followers, and of virtuous and holy men in all ages, ought to make a due impression on every considerate mind; and especially on such as have had the advantage of an education in a plainness agreeable to such example.

Let not any such as degenerate in these respects excuse their own weakness, under a pretence of the misconduct of some, who have appeared outwardly plain; an objection of very little weight: for did they rightly consider, they would clearly see, that the very reason why deceivers sometimes put on plain apparel, is, because true men have been accustomed to wear it. We also tenderly advise, that friends take heed, especially those who should be exemplary to others under their care, that they exercise plainness of speech without respect of persons, in all their converse among men; and not balk their testi9

mony by a cowardly compliance, varying their language according simplicity and to their company: a practice of very ill example to our observing youth, and rendering those who use it contemptible, and looked upon as a kind of hypocrites, even by those with whom they so comply. 1743. W. E.

It is matter of exceeding grief and concern to many of the faithful 10 among us, to observe, how far that exemplary plainness of habit, speech, and deportment, which distinguished our forefathers, and for which they patiently underwent reproach and contradiction, is now departed from, by too many under our name. A declension from the simplicity of truth herein, hath been, and we fear is, attended with pernicious consequences, in opening the way of some, the more easily and unobservedly, to attend the places of public resort, for the exercise of sports, plays, and other hurtful and destructive diversions of the age; from which truth taught our faithful elders, and still teaches us, wholly to refrain; and indeed the Christian gravity of their lives and actions carried with it a severe reproof, and manifest opposition to the wantonness and levity of such dangerous and sinful pastimes.

Wherefore, we beseech you, be not deceived, nor led aside by false notions of imaginary pleasures, to partake of works of darkness, but "watch and be sober," and, as becometh children of the light and of the day, "abstain from all appearance of evil."1 1753. P. E.

11 Against worldly gran-deur and expensive ha-bits.

We find it necessary to remind you, that our worthy ancestors, having their eye directed towards an enduring inheritance, and their affections established upon things above, sought not after greatness in this world; but passed the time of their sojourning here in fear, and in great simplicity of heart, as well as of outward demeanour; endeavouring thereby to reach the divine witness in every mind, and promote the love of truth and righteousness amongst mankind.

In minds thus bent upon seeking a more glorious inheritance than ¹ 1 Thes. v. 6, 22.

temporals can afford, the love of this world had little influence. were shining examples of temperance, justice, and truth. A defection from this simplicity of heart and heavenly-mindedness, into the love and pursuit of this fading world, hath obviously prevailed with too many amongst us, and produced the fruits of pride and ambition. These have brought in many wants, from which the simplicity and integrity of our ancestors preserved them. To satisfy these wants, divers have been excited to enter into a larger extension of trade and commerce, than they had stock and ability to conduct. Vain ambition, and evil emulation, have led into higher living, and greater expenses, than their income would admit. Reduced by these means in their circumstances, yet unwilling to lessen their appearance in the world, they have made use of indirect methods to procure a temporary support, which have ended in failures and bankruptcies.

This lamentable defection in some under our name, hath occasioned great reproach, and grievous suffering in the property of many, almost to the ruin of individuals, who placed more confidence in them on account of the self-denying profession they made to the world. 1767. P. E.

Now, dear friends, we would mention one subject which at this time has been under our notice; a caution to all, to use moderation in their Advice as to moderation in manner of living; and in this way to seek relief from the increasing the manner of living: expense of the times in which we live, rather than by engaging in more extensive, and often hazardous schemes in trade. By these latter means the mind becomes encumbered, and unfitted for religious service, yea, often for religious thought, and for breathing daily after the spiritual riches, which are to be enjoyed in close communion with God. And let us beseech you to consider, how distant from the state which endeavours to stand resigned to give up all, if required, is that state which indulges itself in ease to the full extent of its power, or is endeavouring by multiplied adventures in trade, to acquire that power which it covets for the purpose of worldly enjoyment. 1810. P. E.

and to simplicity in the furniture of houses:

A fear has prevailed amongst us, at this time, that not a few elder friends, and even some who take part in our discipline, have not been sufficiently exemplary with regard to plainness; particularly in the furniture of their houses. It seems, therefore, right to caution all against giving way, in this respect, to the varying, and often costly, fashions of the age. Though it is a weakness which does not seem to savour so much of personal pride, as does vain attire; yet it bespeaks a mind engaged with trifles, and a fondness for show which is inconsistent with the Christian character; and it disqualifies for duly advising such as may rush into further degrees of extravagance. 1809. P. E.

Moderation in personal and domestic expense, every way becomes the followers of a Saviour, who was "lowly in heart." We are therefore engaged to press it upon our young friends, just setting out in life, to beware of needless expense in the furniture of their houses, and in their general domestic habits. Even those who think their property may entitle them to abundance or to elegance, by indulging in costly habits are setting but an ill example to those of more contracted means; and as we are but too apt to copy that which coincides with our natural disposition, our want of circumspection may prove an incitement to extravagance in others, and prompt them to use exertions for supporting an appearance, which may divert them from the true business of life,—the daily study to be approved in the sight of God. 1812. P. E.

15 and in dress and address.

The love of the world operates in various ways to turn us aside from the path of holiness. We believe that it leads many to gratify themselves in dress and language, in a way inconsistent with Christian simplicity. We are convinced that this departure from our well-known testimony, is an inlet to greater temptations, and we believe that where this salutary restraint is found to be irksome, a desire to throw it off tends to retard the spiritual growth. We therefore affectionately intreat those who may be thus disposed, that they would consider well the motives for their conduct, and reflect whether by this unwillingness to take up the cross to their natural inclinations, they are not so far declining to become the disciples of Christ. 1820. P. E.

It ought to be the frequent concern of every one who professes the name of Christ, by watchfulness unto prayer, (a duty often enjoined, but which cannot be too deeply impressed,) to follow the example of our blessed Saviour, and to obey his sacred precepts. If thus concerned he will be anxious by an honest examination to ascertain, whether, by a daily course of self-denial, he is evincing his sense of the marvellous love displayed by the coming in the flesh, and as a sacrifice for sin, of the Son of God, who is "the light of the world."

We are persuaded, beloved friends, that if these solemn subjects have their due place in the mind, you will become fearful lest the love of the world should dispossess you of the love of God. In this day of comparative outward ease, and of exemption from great suffering in the support of our views of the pure and spiritual nature of the Gospel, it especially behoves us to be on our guard that we be not gradually drawn aside from the simplicity of the truth as it is in Jesus. It is upon this principle of simplicity that our testimony to plainness in speech, behaviour, and apparel rests. And, believing as we do, that nothing ought to be esteemed little, that forms a part of our Christian duty, we would exhort all our members to an entire consistency on these points. But we would remind you, dear friends, that this simplicity includes something more; and that it is also incumbent upon us to consider, whether we are not in danger of following the vain fashions of the world in the decoration of our houses; and whether, whilst given to hospitality, we are sufficiently careful to observe due moderation in our manner of living. 1825. P. E.

POOR.

Support and education to be provided.

With respect to the poor among us, it ought to be considered, that the poor, both parents and children, are of our family, and ought not to be turned off to any others for their support or education; and although some may think the poor a burthen, yet be it remembered, when our poor are well provided for, and walk orderly, they are an ornament to our society; and the rich should consider, "It is more blessed to give than to re"ceive." "He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord; and "that which he hath given will He pay him again." 1718. P. E.—1833.

Advised, that where friends want ability in the world, their monthly and quarterly meetings assist them, that the children of the poor may have due help of education, instruction, and necessary learning; and that the children both of the rich and the poor may be early provided with useful employments, that they may not grow up in idleness, looseness, and vice; but that, being seasoned with the truth, taught our holy self-denying way, and sanctified of God, they may become a repuinstrumental to the glory of God, and to the good of the succeeding generations. 1709. P. E.

As mercy, eompassion, and charity are eminently required in this new-covenant dispensation which we are under; so, respecting the poor and indigent among us, it is the advice of this meeting that all poor friends be taken due care of, and none of them sent to the parish to be relieved; and that nothing be wanting for their necessary supply; according to our ancient practice and testimony. 1720. We have ever esteemed the duty of ministering to the wants of the poor This duty ought to be exercised cheer- cheerfully as one of primary obligation. fully and without grudging, and in assisting our poorer brethren, care should be taken not to wound their feelings. It highly becomes a people professing to be united in the faith and hope of the Gospel, to provide for the relief of their own poor. The care of the poor was one of the earliest evidences which Christianity afforded to the Gentiles, of the superiority and divine character of its principles; and a similar provision for those who are united with us in religious fellowship, appears to have been one of the earliest occasions of our meetings for discipline.

Poor to be

The provision made for its poor by our society, is however, it should but to use be remembered, entirely a voluntary one; and its only ground is Chris-maintain tian charity. Whilst enjoining the duty of charity on those who are of ability to extend it, we would remind our poor friends, that it is their duty, by frugality and industry, to use their strenuous endeavours to maintain themselves and their families; and by small savings in time of health, to provide for sickness and old age, so as not to be dependent on others.

We would also observe, that the provision of the society was never children to designed to contract the duty of charity between individual friends; or parents. to lessen the claims which near relations, in times of necessity, have upon each other. In an especial manner, we esteem it the privilege and the duty of the children of persons who are destitute, to minister to the wants and comforts of their parents with an affectionate cheerfulness, and not to throw the care of them on others.

QUERIES.

I Their object. This meeting feels a lively concern to remind our members, that the intention of directing sundry queries to be answered, relative to the conduct of individuals in the several branches of our Christian profession, is not only to be informed of the state of our meetings, but also to impress on the minds of friends a profitable examination of themselves, how far they act consistently with their religious principles. We would therefore earnestly recommend to every one of our members, more especially when the answers are drawn up, to examine whether he himself is coming up in that life of self-denial and devotedness unto God which so highly becomes all who make profession of the name of Christ. 1787.—1833.

2 Directions as to answering them. The answers to the queries are to be drawn up in writing in the respective meetings, under a serious consideration of the state of the meeting. The answers to the queries from the men's meeting are intended to refer to the state and conduct of the whole body of men and women friends. 1787.—1819.—1833.

In those queries which consist of several particulars, the answers, if there be any deficiency, should show in what particulars it consists. If, in answering the third query, any difference should exist between members of two preparative or monthly meetings, each meeting is to report the said difference, and also whether the same is under due care. On all occasions, the words of the query are, as much as may be, to be kept to in the answers; and when deficiency is acknowledged, report is to be made in the answer whether due admonition and care have been extended. 1798.—1833.

MEN'S QUERIES.

The following are the queries for the men's meetings: the first twelve are to be answered in writing to the Spring quarterly meetings, and from thence to this meeting; the first, third, tenth, thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth are to be answered in writing to the quarterly meetings in Autumn; and the first and third to the quarterly meetings in Winter.

- I. Are meetings for worship and discipline kept up, and do friends attend them duly, and at the time appointed; and do they avoid all unbecoming behaviour therein?
 - II. Is there among you any growth in the truth?
- III. Are friends preserved in love one towards another; if differences arise, is due care taken speedily to end them; and are friends careful to avoid and discourage tale-bearing and detraction?
- IV. Do friends endeavour by example and precept to train up their children, servants, and those under their care, in a religious life and conversation, consistent with our Christian profession; and in plainness of speech, behaviour, and apparel?
- V. Is it the care of all friends to be frequent in reading the Holy Scriptures; and do those who have children, servants, and others under their care, train them up in the practice of this religious duty?
- VI. Are friends just in their dealings, and punctual in fulfilling their engagements?
- VII. Do friends avoid all vain sports, and places of diversion, gaming, all unnecessary frequenting of taverns and other public-houses, excess in drinking, and other intemperance?
- VIII. Are friends faithful in bearing our Christian testimony against receiving and paying tithes, priests' demands, and those called church-rates?

IX. Are friends faithful in our testimony against bearing arms, and being in any manner concerned in the militia, in privateers, or armed vessels, or dealing in prize-goods?

X. Are the necessities of the poor among you properly inspected and relieved; and is good care taken of the education of their offspring?

XI. Is due care taken, when any thing appears to require it, that the rules of our discipline be timely and impartially put in practice?

XII. Is there any appearance of convincement among you, and have any been joined to our society on that ground since last year?

XIII. Is care taken early to admonish such as appear inclined to marry in a manner contrary to the rules of our society; and in due time to deal with such as persist in refusing to take counsel?

XIV. Have you two or more faithful friends, appointed by the monthly meeting, as overseers in each particular meeting; are the rules respecting removals duly observed; are the general advices read as directed; and are the lists of your members revised and corrected once in the year?

XV. Are friends annually advised to keep correct and clear accounts, and carefully to inspect the state of their affairs once in the year?

XVI. Are friends clear of defrauding the king of his customs, duties, and excise, and of using or dealing in goods suspected to be run?

XVII. Do you keep a record of the prosecutions and sufferings of your members; is due care taken to register all marriages, births, and burials; are the titles of your meeting-houses, burial-grounds, &c. duly preserved and recorded; are the rules respecting registers and trust property observed; and are all legacies and donations properly secured and recorded, and duly applied?

WOMEN'S QUERIES.

It is agreed, that the following be the queries for the women's meetings; and that they be answered in writing to the women's quarterly meetings in the Spring, and, with the exception of the last two clauses of the sixth query, from thence to their yearly meeting; also that the first, second, ninth, and tenth be answered in writing to the quarterly meetings in Autumn, and the first and second to the quarterly meetings in Winter.

- I. Do friends attend meetings for worship and discipline duly, and at the time appointed; and do they avoid all unbecoming behaviour therein?
- II. Are friends preserved in love one towards another; and are they careful to avoid and discourage tale-bearing and detraction?
- III. Do friends endeavour by example and precept to train up their children, servants, and those under their care, in a religious life and conversation, consistent with our Christian profession; and in plainness of speech, behaviour, and apparel?
- IV. Is it the care of all friends to be frequent in reading the Holy Scriptures; and do those who have children, servants, and others under their care, train them up in the practice of this religious duty?
- V. Are friends faithful in bearing our Christian testimony against receiving and paying tithes, priests' demands, and those called church-rates?
- VI. Do friends avoid all vain sports and places of diversion, gaming, excess in drinking, and other intemperance?
- VII. Are friends just in their dealings, and punctual in fulfilling their engagements?
- VIII. Is care taken early to admonish such as appear inclined to marry in a manner contrary to the rules of our society; and to report such as persist in refusing to take counsel to the men's meeting in due time?

- IX. Are the necessities of the poor among you properly inspected and relieved; and is good care taken of the education of their offspring?
- X. Have you two or more faithful friends, appointed by the monthly meeting, as overseers in each particular meeting: and is the part of the discipline committed to your care, timely and impartially exercised?

QUERY TO QUARTERLY MEETINGS ONLY.

The following query is to be read every quarter in the quarterly meetings of men and of women friends, and an answer sent from the Spring quarterly meeting to the yearly meeting:

Are you careful to give to your monthly meetings such assistance as your place in the body and their state require?

QUERIES FOR MEETINGS OF MINISTERS AND ELDERS.

- It is agreed, that the following be the queries for the meetings of ministers and elders; and that they be answered in writing to the quarterly meetings of ministers and elders in the Spring, and from thence, with the exception of the seventh, to the yearly meeting of ministers and elders; also that in Autumn the first six, and in Summer and Winter the second and fourth, be answered in like manner to the quarterly meetings of ministers and elders, and that the rest be then read.
 - I. Do any friends travel from or among you in the work of the ministry without certificates from the monthly meetings to which they belong, or against their advice?

- II. Are ministers and elders diligent in attending their meetings for worship, and in bringing their families with them? Are they also diligent in attending their meetings for discipline, and careful to promote the attendance of their families?
- III. Do any overcharge themselves with trade or other outward engagements to the hinderance of their service?
- IV. Are ministers and elders preserved in love, and in unity one with another, endeavouring in harmony to promote the advancement and spreading of the truth?
- V. Are ministers and elders careful to rule their own houses well, and to bring up their families in plainness of speech, behaviour, and apparel, and in other respects consistently with our Christian profession; also to be good examples therein themselves?
- VI. Are they careful tenderly to admonish, should inconsistency appear in ministry or conduct?
- VII. Are the advices of the yearly meeting to ministers and elders, read at least once every year, in your monthly and quarterly meetings?

REGISTERS.

Two registers of every marriage, agreeable to the following form, are to be signed at a convenient time on the day of marriage, by the parties themselves, and by three witnesses. These registers are to be delivered to the monthly meeting, next occurring, to which the woman belongs, and to be there carefully examined. One of them is to be securely preserved in the book kept for that purpose, belonging to the monthly meeting, and the other is to be taken to the quarterly meeting, to be fixed in its marriage register book and indexed.

This Note to be delivered by the Grave-Maker, as soon as may be, to the person who signed it, or to be forwarded to the proper meeting, for the purpose of making the registry.

In every monthly meeting, a suitable friend is to be appointed as registrar of marriages, births, and burials. The registers of births and burials are to be made agreeably to the following plans; and they are to be entered by the friend appointed as registrar, from the birth notes and burial notes, after they have passed the monthly meeting.

No mistake that happens to be made in a register, is to be erased, but to be corrected by drawing a line through the same, so as to leave it legible; and what should have been written, is to be inserted near it, and to be authenticated by the registrar's signing the initials of his name thereto. No contractions are to be used either in filling up any of the foregoing forms, or in the registers, except that in the latter, dates may be expressed by figures.

Burials are to be registered in the monthly meeting in which the burial ground is situated; and if the deceased were not a member of such monthly meeting, the burial note is to be afterwards forwarded to the monthly meeting to which such deceased person did belong, to be there also registered, and sent from that meeting only to the quarterly meeting. But seeing that the burial grounds in the six monthly meetings of London are the joint property of those meetings, it shall suffice that burials in those grounds of members of any of the said meetings, be registered in the monthly meeting to which the deceased did belong, and the burial notes taken thence to the quarterly meeting.

General regulations.

registered upon application made for that purpose. Burials of persons, not members of our religious society, may also take place in our burial grounds, provided they be, in all respects, conducted as the burials of friends are conducted; but no meeting for worship is to be appointed on any such occasion. In both instances it is to be stated on the notes and in the register, that the individuals are not in membership with us. Friends are to exercise discretion in complying with any application that may be made in the before-mentioned cases.

Monthly meetings are in all cases to make a record on their minutes, of the names of those for whom birth and burial notes, or marriage registers have been produced; and when the record is of the birth or burial of any one who was not a member of our religious society, the same is to be briefly noticed in the minute. The friend who gives out the birth or burial note, is to notice such cases as are last described in the check which he keeps, and also to take care that the monthly meeting is informed of the circumstance when the note is produced.

In the case of any witness not being able to write, the affixing of his or her mark is to be attested by the signature of another person.

11 Examination of registers. Monthly meetings are, previously to the Spring quarterly meeting in every year, to appoint a committee to examine the registers of marriages, births, and burials: which committee is to ascertain by examination of the monthly meeting minutes, and of the check margins of the notes, that all birth and burial notes given out by the friends appointed to that service have been delivered in to the monthly meeting; and also by a comparison of the marriage registers, and of the birth and burial notes, as recorded on the minutes of the monthly meeting, with the register books, to ascertain that all marriages, births, and burials, have been duly and correctly registered; and also that the indexes at the ends of the respective register books are regularly kept up. The committee is also to make out a list of the said notes and registers, which list is to be signed on their behalf, and to be transmitted, together with the birth and burial notes and marriage registers enumerated in it, to the Spring quarterly meeting.

The quarterly meeting is to deliver the said notes and marriage registers, to its registrar for preservation; and it is annually to appoint a committee to ascertain by an examination of its registers, that all marriage registers and birth and burial notes, enumerated in the lists sent in from the respective monthly meetings, are duly entered in the said registers, and that the indexes at the ends of the respective register books are kept up.

Quarterly and monthly meetings are also to exercise a proper care that the indexes of all register books of former times are so complete that there may be a ready reference to them in case of need. 1767.—1774.—1801.—1832.—1833.

REMOVALS AND SETTLEMENTS.

Caution with regard to a change of residence.

WE feel it our concern to caution friends to be very circumspect, how they remove themselves and their families, from the places of their residence; it having been observed that the dissolving of old, and the forming of new connexions, have in many instances been attended with effects prejudicial to a growth in the truth, and the service thereof, both in the heads and younger branches of families; especially where the inclination to such removals hath originated in worldly motives. And as the growth and establishment of children in a religious life and conversation, being the most interesting, ought to be the principal engagement of the minds of parents, we desire that in putting them forward in a way of life, the probable effect it may have on their minds be the chief object in view. We recommend friends, both young and old, in these cases to give close attention to the pointings of divine wisdom, and also timely to consult experienced friends, previously to their fixing a resolution of changing their situation. 1784. P. E.—1833.

With respect to the commencement of the following rules, it was agreed that they should take place immediately after the end of the 8th month, 1820; but with this provision, that under any certificate issued before that time, (although such certificate might have a subsequent indorsement,) the gaining of settlement should be governed by the old rules; except in cases to which the eleventh of the present rules might be applicable; which eleventh rule, it was added, should be considered as wholly superseding from the above-mentioned period, the eleventh of the old rules.

Rules respecting Removals and Settlements.

I. All friends removing from one monthly meeting to another, are to have certificates from the monthly meeting of which they are members, recommending them to that into the compass of which they are removed: and it is considered as obviously of importance, that such recommendation should take place without any unnecessary delay, in order that the individuals may come under the early notice and oversight of the meeting within the district of which they are residing. If on removal any friend does not himself apply for a certificate, the monthly meeting from which he is removed, is to recommend him without such application. In case this should be omitted for the space of three months, the monthly meeting into which such friend is removed, is at liberty to apply for a certificate; and any monthly meeting to which an application of this kind shall be made, is to comply therewith, or assign sufficient reasons for not doing so.

II. Before issuing a certificate of removal, monthly meetings are, except in the case of a young person under, or about, the age of sixteen years, to make a suitable appointment of friends, for the purpose of inquiry respecting the conduct of the person removing. Such inquiry is also to extend to the situation of the party with respect to pecuniary circumstances, so that care may be effectually taken not to proceed to a recommendation, if the individual removing has disreputably omitted to discharge, or to make proper arrangements relative to, his just debts; and, in preparing the certificate, care is likewise to be had, correctly to comply with the provisions, which hereafter occur in these rules, with regard to notice of relief received, or of recorded insolvency.

If a friend on whose behalf a certificate is issued, is an acknowledged minister, information thereof is to be included in the certificate; and in the case of a woman friend in the station of a minister removed by marriage, information of her being in that station, is to be communicated by minute.

REMOVALS.

The same course is to be pursued in the case of an elder, if the removal be into another monthly meeting within the limits of the same quarterly meeting.

III. After inquiry made agreeably to the last preceding rule, and report thereon, the monthly meeting shall, unless any thing appear in the conduct (including that which relates to pecuniary engagements) of the party removing, to require its notice of him as a delinquent, proceed to issue a certificate of removal on his behalf. In all cases, the individual who forwards the certificate is to accompany it with the address of a friend to whom the acknowledgment of its acceptance may be transmitted. Such certificates* are to be in one or other of the following forms:—

^{*} Although the manner in which certificates are to be expressed, is thus pointed out, the use of printed forms is not to be introduced.

A wife is to be included in the same certificate as her husband, children under the age of sixteen years, or about that age, (at the discretion of monthly meetings,) are, on removal with their parents, to be also recommended without separate certificates.

In the case of a wife, and of children as thus pointed out, the certificate is to assume this form:

- A. B., and C. his Wife, members of this meeting, have removed to (d) in the compass of yours, and upon inquiry made relative to their conduct and respecting debts, nothing appears to prevent the issuing of a certificate on their behalf, (e) we therefore recommend them to your Christian care, with their children. D., E., F., &c. and remain, &c.
 - (d) Here insert the residence of the party removed.
 - (e) Add, if the occasion requires it:—under the 8th [or 9th as the case may be] Rule for Removals and Settlements.

For a young person under the age of sixteen years, or about that age, (at the discretion of monthly meetings,) who in consequence of separately removing, or from any other cause, is the sole subject of a certificate, the following form may suffice:—

A. B., a minor, a member of this Meeting, has removed to , in the compass of yours, and nothing appears to prevent the issuing of a certificate on his behalf, we therefore recommend him to your Christian care, and remain, &c.

The signature of three friends besides the clerk or clerks, as pointed out in the preceding general form, and implied of course with regard to the others, is to be considered as sufficiently authenticating a certificate. If the certificate be addressed to any monthly meeting in America, it is to be countersigned by one of our correspondents in London for the yearly meeting of which the said monthly meeting forms a part.

REMOVALS.

IV. On receiving certificates, monthly meetings are to appoint a few friends to visit the persons recommended. This, it should be borne in mind, will furnish occasion for encouraging the appearances of good, as well as of advising against those of a contrary tendency; and may be the introduction to an acquaintance fruitful of future advantage: an advantage which may in an especial manner prove a blessing to such of the younger part of our society as are placed in exposed situations, if they should thus obtain the kind and watchful care and counsel of judicious friends.

V. On accepting a certificate, either upon receiving the report of such a visit or previously, an acknowledgment is to be transmitted to the monthly meeting which issued it, in the following form:—

VI. If a monthly meeting to which a certificate is delivered, shall find that the party is not resident within its district, it may forward the certificate to any other monthly meeting within the compass of which he does reside, informing the recommending monthly meeting thereof. But if this be not done, or if, on any other ground than non-residence, the monthly meeting to which a certificate is delivered, shall deem the same improper to be accepted, it shall return such certificate to the monthly meeting issuing it, and state the reason. Such return and statement to be made, at the latest, from the second monthly meeting after that at which the certificate has been delivered; or, acceptance at such second monthly meeting to be inferred.

VII. Upon the acceptance of a certificate, either by acknowledgment or inference as aforesaid, a friend becomes a member of the accepting monthly meeting in all respects, except that, as to relief, regard is to be had to the provisions in these rules that relate to Settlement; or, (in other words,) that point out the monthly meeting which is liable to the charge of affording the necessary assistance.

The settlement of a person admitted into the society, is in the monthly meeting admitting, until another settlement be gained elsewhere.

The settlement of a married woman is uniformly the same as that of her husband, if the husband be a member of the society.

Children who have a birth-right in the society, have by birth the same settlement as that of their father or mother at the time of such birth; and on removal and recommendation with their parents, or either parent, any fresh settlement acquired in consequence of such recommendation by such parents or parent, is also acquired by the children; but, except in this case, and in that of the separate recommendation of such children, placed out from home, as are recommendable without reference to either the eighth or ninth of these rules, no fresh settlement can be gained by young persons under the age of sixteen years.

VIII. If within one year previously to the issuing of a certificate, the party has received relief, the circumstance is to be noticed in that document, either expressly, or by reference to this rule. In the case of so having received relief, as also in the case of reverting for relief under the last provision but one in Rule X. a friend does not gain a new settlement, except as hereafter provided (Rule XI.) If in the intervening time he is recommended from one monthly meeting to another, notice either expressly, or by reference as above mentioned, is to be included in any certificate concerning him.

IX. If the person recommended has been, at any time previously, in the due course of the discipline of the society, reported to his monthly meeting, and recorded as insolvent, and has not subsequently made full payment to his creditors, such circumstance is to be noticed in the certificate either expressly, or by reference to the present Rule. Under such form of recommendation, or where such ought to have been the form, a friend does not gain a settlement in the accepting monthly meeting, except as hereafter provided (Rule XI.) And this regulation with respect to recommendation, and the effect of it, shall extend to the wife of any such person (whether such person continue in membership or not) during the husband's life, and for one year after his decease: and also to the children of any such person, whether such person continue in membership or not, such children being respectively under the age of sixteen years.

The wife as well as children of a person who, not being a member of the society, openly fails in the payment of his just debts, (such wife and children being in this, as well as in the former case, themselves entitled to membership,) shall be in the same situation with regard to recommendation and settlement, as if such person had been a member, and been recorded as insolvent.

As instances may occur in which the proper procedure in a recommending monthly meeting usually consequent on insolvency, may happen to be omitted, it is deemed expedient to provide, as is hereby done, that in the cases which admit of being easily ascertained, such as bankruptcy, or assignment of effects to, or composition with, creditors, a person so omitted to be recorded as insolvent, shall nevertheless for the purposes of any of these rules be considered as thus recorded.

X. Persons not coming under the provisions of either of the two last preceding rules, uniformly begin to acquire a settlement in the accepting monthly meeting, from the time of the acceptance of their respective certificates. Such settlement shall not, however, be complete, and consequently the accepting monthly meeting shall not be ultimately liable to any charge for relief, if any one or more of the three following circumstances occur:—

- 1. Ceasing to be a member of the accepting monthly meeting, within two years from the time of acceptance:
- 2. Receiving relief within the like period:
- 3. Being, in the regular course of the exercise of the discipline, recorded, within four years immediately subsequent to the acceptance, as insolvent, either by the accepting or any other monthly meeting of which the party may be at the time a member.

XI. It being proper, in reference to the situation of persons who are placed, by these rules, under certain restrictions as to the acquisition of settlement, to provide for the removal of such restrictions,—it is agreed that a settlement shall be gained, in any monthly meeting of which the party shall have been two years a member, in any of the five following cases:

- 1. By a person previously in any monthly meeting recorded as insolvent, if he shall have fully discharged his debts, and shall not be receiving relief:
- 2. By the widow of any person so recorded, if such widow shall have survived her husband not less than one year, and shall not have fallen into necessitous circumstances so as to have received relief:
- 3. By a person having received relief from any monthly meeting, who shall have been for three years without the repetition of any such assistance:
- 4. By the widow of a person having within one year before his decease received relief from any monthly meeting, who shall have been for two years after the decease of the husband without receiving relief herself.
- 5. By any child of any person so recorded, or of any person having received relief from any monthly meeting, if such children shall have respectively attained the age of sixteen years, and not be themselves in the receipt of relief.

Also, and as of course, such settlement shall be gained by the wife and children under sixteen years of age, of any person so recorded, or so relieved, on his acquiring himself the right; without respect to the length of time during which such wife and children may have been members of the monthly meeting.

XII. In order to prevent any delay of relief, it shall be incumbent on a monthly meeting within the compass of which a friend resides at the time of his becoming necessitous, whether he be a member thereof or not, to see that suitable relief be extended. If such meeting be not the meeting in which the settlement of the friend is, any expense which the

Whenever a case of relief is taken up by one meeting on behalf of another, notice is to be conveyed without any unnecessary delay to the meeting on which the charge devolves.

A monthly meeting on which the charge of relief devolves, shall have the option of taking upon itself to administer such relief, although the party may be, and continue to be, a member of another monthly meeting, and consequently in all other respects under its care.

When the understanding between two meetings is, that relief shall be handed by one on behalf of the other, it is recommended that an arrangement be effected for reimbursement in a direct manner, without unnecessarily making any other monthly meeting of which the party may have been intermediately a member, the channel of communication.

XIII. In cases of removal from one monthly meeting in London to another, a minute of recommendation delivered by one or two members of the former meeting to the latter, in the manner that has been long practised in that city, shall operate in all respects as a certificate; provided such minute of recommendation contain the requisites of a certificate, as pointed out in these rules. If such minute is accepted when delivered, a report by the friend or friends attending with it, shall be considered sufficient, without the acknowledgment prescribed by Rule V.

XIV. It is to be understood that every provision in these rules, applicable to both sexes, extends equally to each; although for the sake of brevity, not particularly so expressed: also, that the term relief or relieved uniformly implies relief from a monthly or other meeting, (or from funds under the direction of any such meeting,) to families or individuals as proper subjects of relief from a monthly meeting.

XV. It is agreed with reference to the case of friends who, after being recommended from a monthly meeting in Great Britain to one out of the limits of this yearly meeting, return to this island, and are in consequence recommended from abroad to any monthly meeting in it, that, with respect to the rules of settlement, the time between the granting of a certificate for any such individuals on going out, and the receipt of a certificate for them on their return, shall be wholly disregarded; so that any monthly meeting in this country of which they may be members upon or after such return, shall have the same claim upon any other monthly meeting here, as if no interval whatever had taken place between the occurrence of the two above-mentioned circumstances.

SETTLE-

XVI. With a view to remove every impediment from the efforts of monthly or other meetings, to promote the right education of children, it is concluded that any expenditure hereafter made by a monthly or other meeting for the education of a child, at a school approved by the monthly or other meeting of which such child is a member, or the payment by a monthly or other meeting of any annual sum in lieu of an apprentice fee, or for the clothing or pocket-money of an apprentice, shall not be considered as "relief" within the meaning of the rules for removals and settlements, and shall not render such child or its parents liable to any of the consequences attached under the said rules to the "relief" of members of our society by the monthly or other meeting to which they belong, and that such assistance shall not in any way be alluded to in certificates of removal. 1737.—1761.—1769.—1782.—1786.— 1789.—1801.—1820.—1822.—1824.—1831.—1833.

No proposal for altering the rules for removals and settlements of friends, shall be received by this meeting, unless such proposal be signed proposals for in and by order of a quarterly meeting, or some other meeting which altering rules. doth directly correspond with this meeting. 1740.—1801.—1833.

SCRIPTURES.

Children to be early instructed in the Holy Scriptures.

WE recommend it as an incumbent duty on friends, to cause their children to be frequent in reading the Holy Scriptures, and to observe to them the examples of such children as in scripture are recorded to have early learned the fear of the Lord, and hearkened to his counsel: instructing them in the fear and dread of the Lord, planting upon their spirits impressions of reverence towards God, from whom they have their daily support; showing them they ought not to offend Him, but love, serve, and honour Him, in whose hands all blessings are. 1709. P. E.

It is also seriously advised, that no friends suffer romances, play-books, or other vain and idle pamphlets, in their houses or families, which tend to corrupt the minds of youth: but that they excite them to the reading of the Holy Scriptures, and religious books. Let the Holy Scriptures be early taught our youth, and diligently searched, and seriously read by friends, with due regard to the Holy Spirit from whence they came, and by which they are truly opened. 1720. P. E.

On the importance of the Scriptures, and on the operations of the Holy Spirit.

And, dear friends, inasmuch as the Holy Scriptures are the means of conveying and preserving to us, an account of the things most surely to be believed concerning the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ in the flesh, and the fulfilling of the prophecies relating thereto; we therefore recommend to all friends, especially elders in the church, and masters of families, that they would, both by example and advice, impress on the minds of the younger a reverent esteem of those sacred writings, and advise them to a frequent reading and meditating therein; —and that you would, at proper times and seasons, when you find your minds rightly disposed thereunto, give the youth to understand, that the same good experience of the work of sanctification, through the On the imoperations of the Spirit of God, which the Holy Scriptures plentifully the Scriptures, and on bear testimony to, is to be witnessed by believers in all generations, as the operations well as by those in the first ages of Christianity; in which case, some spirit. account of your own experience may be helpful to them. And this we recommend as the most effectual means of begetting and establishing in their minds a firm belief of the Christian doctrine in general, as well as of the necessity of the aid and help of the operations of the Holy Spirit of God in the hearts of men in particular, contained in the Bible; and of preserving them from being defiled with the many pernicious notions and principles, contrary to sound doctrine, which are at this time industriously dispersed in the nation, to the reproach of the Christian profession in general. 1728. P. E.

And, dear friends, we tenderly and earnestly advise and exhort all parents, and masters of families, that they exert themselves in the wisdom of God, and in the strength of his love, to instruct their children and families in the doctrines and precepts of the Christian religion contained in the Holy Scriptures; and that they excite them to the diligent reading of those sacred writings, which plainly set forth the miraculous conception, birth, holy life, wonderful works, blessed example, meritorious death, and glorious resurrection, ascension, and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and to educate their children in the belief of those important truths, as well as in the belief of the inward manifestation and operation of the Spirit of God on their own minds, that they may reap the benefit and advantage thereof, for their own peace and everlasting happiness, which is infinitely preferable to all other considerations. We therefore exhort, in the most earnest manner, that all be very careful in this respect; a neglect herein being, in our judgment, very blame-worthy. And further, where any deficiency of this sort appears, we recommend to monthly and quarterly meetings, that they stir up those whom it may concern to their duty therein. 1732. P. E.

Family reading of the Holy Scriptures recommended.

And, dear friends, as much as in you lies, encourage a frequent and diligent reading of the Holy Scriptures in your families. In them are contained the promises of eternal life and salvation. For as a steady trust and belief in the promises of God, and a frequent meditation in the law of the Lord, was the preservation of a remnant in old time, so it is even to this day; and as a distrust and disbelief of the promises of God, and a neglect of his holy law, was the occasion of the complaints made against the Jews, the posterity of Abraham, even so we have reason to fear, that the apparent decline in our time of true piety and godly zeal, in many places, is too much owing to a disregard of the doctrines of the Holy Scriptures, and the promises of the Holy Spirit in them recorded. Wherefore it greatly behoves every one, who would be united to Christ, and a member of his church, to believe in the promises of God and Christ, and wait to know the fulfilling of them in his own heart. It was by this the primitive believers became of "one heart, and of one soul." It was by one Spirit, namely, the Spirit promised by Christ, that they were "all baptized into one body."2 Having therefore, dearly beloved, such great and precious promises, and being encompassed with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us run with cheerfulness in the ways of the Lord; "Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."3 1740. P. E.

We believe there is an increased attention in friends in various parts, not only to promote in their families the frequent reading of the Holy Scriptures, but to make it the employment of a portion of time daily. We commend this practice, and we believe that if the heads of families are careful in cultivating the seed of Truth in themselves, there will be so little danger of the custom becoming formal, that it will not unfrequently be the means of quickening the minds of those concerned in it: more especially if a subsequent pause be allowed; in order that the sacred truths which have been read may have time to make their due impression on the mind; or that the mind may have time to rise in secret aspiration after a blessing. 1807. P. E.

Amongst the numerous benevolent undertakings, which now interest the minds of our countrymen, we contemplate, with much satisfaction, Counsel to those engaged the general circulation of the Holy Scriptures. Our sense of that in circulating the Bible. inestimable treasure has been frequently acknowledged; and we feel ourselves engaged to call the attention of such of our members as may be employed in this salutary work, to the supreme importance of giving heed to that Divine Word, to which the Scriptures bear testimony. This Word is Christ; the "Bread of Life," and the "Light of men;" that "Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world."2 If we are earnest to obey the teachings of this unerring guide, we shall be led to cry to the Lord, that he would preserve us from self-exaltation; from attributing to ourselves or others, that honour which is due to Him alone: we shall be on our guard lest we should mistake our proper sphere of usefulness, or suffer any pursuit, however laudable in itself, to divert us from our true allotment of labour in the church. This watchfulness unto prayer can alone ensure our growth in religious experience, and our establishment in every good word and work. 1813. P. E.

It has afforded us much satisfaction to believe, that the Christian practice of daily reading in families a portion of Holy Scripture, with Advice to heads of families a subsequent pause for retirement and reflection, is increasing amongst We conceive that it is both the duty and the interest of those who believe in the doctrines of the Gospel, and who possess the invaluable treasure of the sacred records, frequently to recur to them for instruction and consolation. We are desirous that this wholesome domestic regulation may be adopted every where. Heads of families, who have themselves experienced the benefit of religious instruction, will do well to consider whether, in this respect, they have not a duty to discharge to their servants and others of their household. Parents looking sincerely for help to Him of whom these Scriptures testify, may not unfrequently, on such occasions, feel themselves enabled and engaged to open to the minds of their interesting charge, the great truths of Christian duty, and Christian redemption. 1815. P. E.

9 General exhortation.

The practice of frequent retirement in spirit greatly assists us on our way to the kingdom of heaven. If an impartial review of our conduct then takes place, and if the sincere and secret petition is raised for Almighty help, we are led from an undue attachment to the things of this life, and our hopes and dependence are increasingly placed upon our Holy Redeemer. The sacred truths of the Bible are often at such times brought to remembrance with consolation and strength. It is one among the many evidences of the divine authority of Holy Scripture, that, in the various ages of the Christian church, its invaluable contents have produced in true believers a harmonizing sense of their blessed effects. If in humility, and in reliance upon the Spirit which gave them forth, we are diligent in reading these sacred writings, we become increasingly sensible of their value. We are then prepared from our own experience to say that they are able to make us wise unto salvation through faith in Christ Jesus; we readily subscribe to the truth of the position, that in order to the accomplishment of this great end they need no human comment: and we are anxious that our fellow-men, in every region of the globe, may possess and may be able to read the volume of inspiration. 1825. P.E.

10 The private reading of the sacred volume enforced.

We are glad to know that the daily reading of the Holy Scriptures in the families of friends, is so prevalent as it is, and we earnestly desire that this practice may be observed by all our members, and that those who neglect the performance of it, would seriously consider the great injury which they and their families suffer by such omission. The more we rightly know and comprehend the truths of the Bible, the more we shall find that they contribute, under the power of the Holy Spirit, by their practical application to our moral and religious conduct, to lead us forward in the way of life and salvation. We therefore earnestly recommend to all, the diligent private reading of the sacred volume, in addition to the practice already alluded to. 1828. P. E.

In addition to the practice of the family-reading of the Holy Scriptures, the importance of which we deeply feel, be encouraged often to Advice to abstain from read them in private: cherish a humble and sincere desire to receive speculations on unfulfilled them in their genuine import; and at the same time, dear friends, prophecy, avoid all vain speculations upon unfulfilled prophecy. Forbear from presumptuously endeavouring to determine the mode of the future government of the world, or of the church of Christ. lightened sense of the various delusions of our common enemy, to which we are all liable; ask of God that your meditations upon and to seek the sacred writings may be under the influence of the Holy Spirit; the Holy Spitheir effect, when thus read, is to promote an increase of practical rit in reading the Scrippiety, and the right performance of all our civil and religious duties, and not to encourage vain and fruitless investigations. Remember, dear friends, that they are "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." And, whilst we fully acknowledge that "all scripture is given by inspiration of God," a view supported by sound and undeniable rational evidence, let us ever bear in mind, that it is only through faith which is in Christ Jesus that they are able to make wise unto salvation. 2 As this precious faith is sought for and prevails, the evidence of the Spirit of God in our hearts most satisfactorily confirms our belief in the divine authority of these inestimable writings, and increases our gratitude for the possession of them, and for the knowledge of that redemption which comes by the Lord Jesus. 1832. P. E.

SLAVE-TRADE AND SLAVERY.

Slave-trade discounte-nanced.

It is the sense of this meeting, that the importing of negroes from their native country and relations by friends, is not a commendable nor allowed practice, and is therefore censured by this meeting. 1727.

2 Friends to keep clear of the unrighteous gain of oppression.

We fervently warn all in profession with us, that they be careful to avoid being any way concerned in reaping the unrighteous profits arising from the iniquitous practice of dealing in negroes, and other slaves; whereby, in the original purchase, one man selleth another, as he doth the beast that perisheth, without any better pretension to a property in him, than that of superior force; in direct violation of the Gospel rule, which teacheth all to do as they would be done by, and to do good to all; being the reverse of that covetous disposition, which furnisheth encouragement to those poor ignorant people to perpetuate their savage wars, in order to supply the demands of this most unnatural traffic, whereby great numbers of mankind, free by nature, are subjected to inextricable bondage; and which hath often been observed to fill their possessors with haughtiness, tyranny, luxury, and barbarity, corrupting the minds and debasing the morals of their children, to the unspeakable prejudice of religion and virtue, and the exclusion of that holy spirit of universal love, meekness, and charity, which is the unchangeable nature, and the glory, of true Christianity.

We therefore can do no less, than, with the greatest earnestness, impress it upon friends every where, that they endeavour to keep their hands clear of this unrighteous gain of oppression. 1758. P. E.

This meeting having reason to apprehend, that divers under our name are concerned in the unchristian traffic in negroes, doth recom- who persists mend it earnestly to the care of friends every where, to discourage, as much as in them lies, a practice so repugnant to our Christian profession; and to deal with all such as shall persevere in a conduct so reproachful to Christianity, and to disown them, if they desist not therefrom. 1761.

We think it seasonable at this time to renew our exhortation, that friends every where be especially careful to keep their hands clear of Friends urged to be clear of giving encouragement in any shape to the slave-trade, it being evi-the slave-trade in any dently destructive of the natural rights of mankind; who are all ransomed by one Saviour, and visited by one divine light, in order to salvation; a traffic calculated to enrich and aggrandize some upon the misery of others, in its nature abhorrent to every just and tender sentiment, and contrary to the whole tenour of the Gospel. 1763. P. E.

It appears that the practice of holding negroes in oppressive and unnatural bondage, hath been so successfully discouraged by friends in and to continue their some of the colonies, as to be considerably lessened. We cannot but efforts to discourage slaveapprove of these salutary endeavours, and earnestly intreat they may be continued, that, through the favour of Divine Providence, a traffic so unmerciful, and unjust in its nature, to a part of our own species made equally with ourselves for immortality, may come to be considered by all in its proper light, and be utterly abolished, as a reproach to the Christian profession. 1772. P. E.

Our testimony against the inhuman practice of slave-keeping gains ground amongst our brethren in the American colonies, and hath had some happy influence on the minds of considerate people of other denominations, in opposition to that flagrant injustice to our fellow-creatures; for whom our Saviour shed his precious blood, as well as for others, and to whom he dispenseth a measure of his grace in common with the rest of mankind. 1774. P. E.

and to endeavour to put a stop to the traffic in negroes.

The Christian religion being designed to regulate and refine the natural affections of man, and to exalt benevolence into that charity which promotes peace on earth, and good-will towards all ranks and classes of mankind the world over; under the influence thereof, our minds have been renewedly affected in sympathy with the poor enslaved Africans; whom avarice hath taught some men, laying claim to the character of Christians, to consider as the refuse of the human race, and not entitled to the common privileges of mankind. The contempt in which they are held, and the remoteness of their sufferings from the notice of disinterested observers, have occasioned few advocates to plead their cause. The consideration of their case being brought weightily before the last yearly meeting, friends were engaged to recommend endeavours for putting a stop to a traffic so disgraceful to humanity, and so repugnant to the precepts of the Gospel. 1784. P. E.

As the slave-trade, whereby such multitudes of the human race are violently subjected to a state so abject and deplorable, is extensively carried on by persons resident in these kingdoms, we earnestly exhort all in profession with us, not to defile themselves by having any concern whatever in this unrighteous traffic; from which, if persisted in, very distressing consequences to this nation and its dependencies, may be justly apprehended. 1785. P. E.

We desire that friends may continue united in a fervent concern, that the reproach of a traffic so iniquitous as the slave-trade may be done away from the Christian name, and the day spoken of by the Lord's prophet be happily hastened: "For from the rising of the sun, even unto the going down of the same, my name shall be great among the Gentiles, and in every place incense shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering." 1790. P. E.

10 As a Christian society we have found it our duty to promote the abolition of the slave-trade; it remains our steady concern to discourage so iniquitous a traffic; and, at the present juncture, we think it particularly incumbent on every individual deeply to ponder his own particular share in the testimony, which we have so long believed it our duty to bear, and to be careful not to stifle the smallest conviction of duty; more especially that the prospect of gain may not lead any to countenance a trade, of which the immediate and unavoidable consequence is the miseries of men. 1791. P. E.

We lament the slow progress in this country of the cause of our fellow-men, the oppressed black people, but we do not despair of its success: and we desire friends may never suffer the cause to cool on their minds, through the delay which the opposition of interested men hath occasioned, in this work of justice and mercy; but rather be animated to consider, that the longer the opposition remains, the more necessity there is, on the side of righteousness and benevolence, for steadiness, perseverance, and continued breathing of spirit to the God and Father of all, who formed of one blood all the families of the earth. 1793. P. E.

A feeling hath been witnessed amongst us at this time, which directs the mind in pity towards the deplorable state of those men, who pro- Christian interest recommote, procure, and execute the tearing away of the Africans from their mended on behalf of the parent-soil: and seeing we believe that a just and dreadful retribution slave-trader. awaits the unrepenting and obdurate oppressor, at that awful tribunal where sophistry will not prevail to exculpate, let us, amidst our sympathy for the sufferers, give place in our minds to a true concern for the traders in negroes-men equally interested with us in the rewards of futurity; and let us seek for and cherish that disposition of mind, which can pray for these enemies of humanity, and fervently breathe for their restoration to soundness of judgment, and purity of principle.

It hath been often observed that the desire of acquiring wealth is an incitement to every evil; and having, in this instance, a proof to what great lengths it will carry those who give it place in their hearts, let us guard against the beginnings of so great temptation. 1795. P. E.

13 The slavetrade a reproach to Christian professors: The dismal subject of the slave-trade, the source of accumulating misery to Africa, of accumulating guilt to Britain, and of continued reproach to the holy religion which, in common with our countrymen, we profess, has claimed our sympathy in this meeting: and we desire our friends may be individually prompt to entertain for our fellow-men, the oppressed Africans, the sensations of pity, which on various occasions may arise. Where, friends, shall we find a juster cause of regret, than to see a nation professing Christianity, pouring forth from her harbours numerous equipments, not designed to improve and exalt, but to degrade, enslave, and consign to misery, those very nations, to which, in recompense for ages of injury and insult, she owes the benefits of brotherly kindness and Christian example! 1805. P. E.

14 announcement of its restriction: Now, beloved brethren, a subject, a deeply interesting subject, hath intervened among our deliberations on the state of our society; and its long-felt importance induces us to suffer it here also to interrupt the current of our Christian counsel. No longer since than the last year we excited your attention afresh to the sufferings of the Africans, and spoke of the continuance of the cruel slave-trade as of an accumulation of misery and of guilt. How then do we now rejoice in having to proclaim that this torrent of iniquity is arrested in its progress; that an important restriction of the trade has taken place; that the annual enslaving of thousands is prevented; and that the prospect again opens, with increased brightness, of a termination to the wrongs of Africa. 1806. P. E.

15 and of its abolition. We are inclined to express our thankfulness for an event which concerns not us only, but incalculable multitudes of our fellow-creatures, our fellow-possessors of the faculty of reason, our fellow-objects of the redemption which comes by Christ. We scarcely need name the abolition of the slave-trade. We view it as one of the most important acts of public, national righteousness, which ever dignified the councils of any government; and our minds have been directed in secret prayer to the Almighty Parent of the universe, that he may be pleased to regard this kingdom for good; and direct its future councils to such further acts of justice and mercy as may promote his glory, in the harmony of his rational creation. 1807. P. E.

This meeting has been deeply affected on hearing that the slave-trade, notwithstanding its abolition by our legislature, and by various foreign powers, still exists, with the horrors consequent upon it, to a lamentable extent; and although the way does not immediately open for much to be done by us, on behalf of the objects of this nefarious and cruel traffic. we earnestly commend them to your continued remembrance and com-1820. The cruelties and horrors of the slave-trade have, at this time, deeply interested our feelings. We have heard with sorrow that this Address to the inhabitrade, with all its attendant evils and miseries, is still pursued, by tants of Euthe subjects of several foreign powers, to a very great extent. As a testimony of our belief that it is a disgrace to any people professing the Christian name, we have been engaged to issue an address to the inhabitants of Europe on the iniquity of the traffic. We recommend the unhappy victims of it to your continued pity and commiseration, and we desire that the minds of friends may be frequently exercised in secret before the Lord, not only on their behalf, but for those who, by pursuing this odious traffic, are doing violence to all law, both moral and divine, and are increasing their guilt to an alarming extent in the sight of a merciful but righteous God. 1822. 20 Africa and her offspring commended to sympathy. The slave-trade, with its inseparable horrors, and the gradual but total abolition of slavery, continue to be objects of deep interest in our view, and although we have not found it to be our duty, as a religious body, to be frequently appearing by any public act, as advocates of humanity and justice, we would again commend injured Africa and her offspring to the commiseration of every one amongst us. 1824. P. E.

It has been very acceptable to find that our brethren on the other side of the Atlantic are in various places alive to the enormities of slavery, and diligent in their endeavours to expose the iniquity of the internal slave-trade, carried on in the southern and south-western states of the The desolating and widely extended effects of this dreadful traffic, whether we turn our attention to Africa, to America and the West India islands, or to other parts of the globe, are indeed enormous and mournfully distressing. Much remains to be done before this foul disgrace is removed from the Christian name; but we are comforted in believing that, not only in this country but elsewhere, the cause of the oppressed is gaining ground; and as its advocates continue to labour with zeal and perseverance in the spirit of the Gospel, we entertain no doubt that they will have fresh cause to rejoice; and that, ultimately, slavery with the vices resulting from it, will be unknown amongst the subjects of those governments where the pure and just precepts of Christianity are professed. 1827. P. E.

22 Petition against slavery; The important and affecting subject of the continuance of slavery in the British colonies, has again occupied our attention. A deep conviction of the extent and enormity of the evil, and of its utter inconsistency with the purity and righteousness of the Christian religion, has led this meeting, with great unanimity, to direct that a petition be presented to the legislature, to convey our feelings on the subject. And we desire that friends every where may embrace such opportunities as occur, in their intercourse with others, to promote a just and correct view of the rights of the enslaved. 1828. P. E.

This meeting has felt deep regret and sorrow in reflecting upon the continuance of slavery, and all the evils connected with it. And under and for its immediate a full conviction of the iniquity of such a system, it desires the meet- and total aboing for sufferings to embrace the earliest opportunity which it may judge suitable, to petition the legislature for the immediate and total abolition of slavery within the British dominions.

In former Epistles we have often had occasion to express ourselves in language of commiseration, and even in terms of discouragement, on Prospect of the abolition the long-continued oppression of the slaves in the colonies of the British empire. In the course of the last two years, our fellow-countrymen, of various religious denominations, have co-operated with increased zeal in advocating the cause of the oppressed. The righteousness of the law of Christ has been pleaded in these nations as an unanswerable argument for the total extinction of slavery. Within the same period of time, a variety of concurrent events have marked the hand of an overruling Providence; and this cause of humanity and justice has made its way to an unparalleled extent. It is with reverent thanksgiving to our Almighty Father in heaven, that we now look forward to the termination of this cruel and disgraceful system as an event not far distant. The government of the country has, in effect, recognized the grand principle, that man should hold no property in the person of his fellow-man; and the House of Commons are engaged in legislating upon this deeply-interesting question. We humbly commend these proceedings to the blessing of the Most High. please Him, to whom the cause of the poor and afflicted is precious, to influence our rulers to the enactment of such just and equal laws as shall place the enslaved negroes in full possession of those rights and liberties to which they are entitled equally with ourselves. 1833. Advice against excess in drinking; As temperance and moderation are virtues proceeding from true religion, and are of great benefit and advantage, we beseech all to be careful of their conduct and behaviour, abstaining from every "appear-"ance of evil;" and as an excess in drinking has been too prevalent among many of the inhabitants of these nations, we recommend to all friends a watchful care over themselves, attended with a religious and prudent zeal against a practice so dishonourable and pernicious. 1751. Brethren, we caution you against resorting to places of public diversions, unnecessarily frequenting taverns and alchouses, and mixing yourselves in such company and conversation, as have a manifest tendency to corrupt your hearts, and draw them aside from that steady and religious concern, and reverent awe, which dwell on the minds of true Christians. We also especially warn you to beware of the too frequent use of spirituous liquors, and intemperance of every kind; but let your behaviour and conduct in all respects be such, that your moderation may be known to all men. 1754. P. E.

As to the frequenting of public-houses, we desire that all under our name may be cautious of remaining in them, after the purpose of business, or of refreshment, is accomplished: but to make them a resort for any other purpose—may it never need to be named among a people who profess the practice of Christian sobriety. 1797. Advised, that our ancient testimony against tithes, which we have borne from the beginning, and for which many have deeply suffered, some not only the spoiling of their goods, but imprisonment even unto death, be carefully and punctually upheld and countenanced, in the power of God; and that all those who oppose, slight, or neglect that testimony, be looked upon as unfaithful to the ancient testimony of truth, and dealt with according to the Gospel order established among us. 1675.

It is our desire, for the sake of our Lord Jesus Christ and his holy testimony, that all friends be faithful to him in their testimony against tithes of all sorts; knowing that, since they were ended by Christ, they were imposed by and originally sprang from that antichristian root, popish usurpation in church and state: and that friends would tenderly consider, that where any decline their testimony, or are negligent in this weighty case, they do thereby increase the weight and burden of sufferings upon them that are faithful, and strengthen the hands of their adversaries. 1690. P. E.

Our testimony against tithes and forced maintenance in this Gospel day, being received from Christ our head and high priest, is not of our own making or imposing, nor from the tradition of men; but what we have from Him, by whose divine power we were raised up to be a people, and by which we have been preserved to this day; knowing that his ministry and Gospel are free, according to his own express command, "Freely ye have received, freely give." 1701. P. E.

We think it necessary to put you in mind, that the zeal of our friends who have abode faithful in their testimony against paying tithes, steeple-house rates, and priests' maintenance, has greatly tended to the opening of the eyes of many, not only in this, but also in other countries.

We received last year an account from New England, where our friends formerly underwent grievous sufferings, that a law is made, exempting them from paying either to the maintenance of the established ministers or to the repairing of their worship-houses; and it is our belief, that if all friends here had been faithful in their testimony against tithes, the time of our deliverance from that oppression, under which this nation yet groans, would have been nearer at hand. 1733. P. E.

We earnestly intreat the faithful among you to take all suitable opportunities of endeavouring to demonstrate, to such as are weak and unfaithful, the importance of our testimony against receiving or paying tithes; the natural tendency whereof is to obtain that liberty, which the purest ages of Christianity enjoyed; that is, a liberty for any person moved by the Holy Spirit of God, to preach the doctrine of the glorious Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ freely; and of which they were not deprived, till great corruptions of doctrine and practice were found amongst the professors of Christianity, and the civil powers were prevailed upon to meddle with the consciences of the people, which of right are to be subject to God only.

We cannot therefore but bless the Lord, from an experimental witnessing of the comfort and spiritual advantage which arise from such a liberty, that he was pleased to raise up our worthy elders, and to give them a testimony against that antichristian yoke; making them willing, in this and other nations, to suffer for that testimony, thereby showing to the world what the love of Christ is able to do; for we believe nothing short of that love could have enabled them to suffer the spoiling of their goods, and the long imprisonment of their bodies, even unto death, as some of them did, for their conscientious refusal to pay tithes. 1735. And as we have been convinced of the inconsistency of tithes with the nature of the Gospel dispensation, it is our necessary duty to act agreeably to such convictions; and if sufferings for our testimony shall be the consequence of our obedience thereto, it will become us, after the example of the primitive Christians, cheerfully to submit, and to take joyfully the spoiling of our goods; that so we may preserve a conscience void of offence toward God, and at the same time, by our Christian meekness and innocent deportment, give reasonable evidence of our sincerity to men. 1737. P. E.

As the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ was at first freely promulgated by himself, and his immediate followers, the nature of it being unalterable, it behoveth that the ministers thereof, in all succeeding times, be like-minded; not acting "by constraint, but will-"ingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind." When we call to mind the grievous sufferings which our ancients underwent, in this and other nations, for their testimony against a man-made ministry and hireling preachers; and their great concern to revive and publish the doctrine of the Gospel, as it was declared by Christ himself when on earth; our hearts are grieved when we find any of their offspring or any under our name, declining their testimony against the antichristian yoke of tithes. We therefore tenderly exhort all who profess the truth, to watchfulness and zeal, that this branch of our Christian testimony be not laid waste by connivance, or private agreement withpriests or impropriators; but that all abide patient under that testimony which the Lord hath called us to bear; not doubting but that the gradual progress of real Christianity will at length operate to the removal of a yoke so directly contrary to the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free. "Stand fast," says the apostle, "in the liberty "wherewith Christ hath made us free; and be not entangled again with "the yoke of bondage." 2 1738. P. E.

Dear friends, let us ever keep in remembrance, that it is under the immediate teaching and influence of the Holy Spirit, that all acceptable worship is performed, and all true Gospel ministry supplied; that this pure and powerful influence, in vessels sanctified and prepared by the divine hand, is the essential qualification to that work; that, as the gift is divine, the service is freely and faithfully to be discharged, without any view to reward from man: and therefore, should we voluntarily either by open or collusive means, contribute to the maintenance of such as preach for hire, we should be guilty of inconsistency in practice, by supporting, as ministers of Christ, those whom we do not believe to be sent by him, and upholding them in a conduct contrary to his command, which is, "Freely ye have received, freely give." And this practical opposition to his Gospel law, we cannot but look upon as denying Him before men, and therefore in us antichristian. 1758. P. E.

It seems incumbent upon us to repeat our exhortation to faithfulness, in supporting our testimony against the antichristian yoke of tithes; and we intreat that all who suffer, either upon that account, or for any other demands inconsistent with the principles of truth, may demonstrate, by their whole conduct and conversation, that they really suffer for conscience sake; and keep close to the guidance of that good Spirit, which will preserve in meekness and quiet resignation, under every trial. For if resentment should arise against those whom you may look upon as the instruments of your sufferings, it will deprive you of the reward of faithfulness, give just occasion of offence, and bring dishonour to the cause of truth. Cavilling, or casting reflections upon any, because of our sufferings, doth not become the servants of Christ, whose holy example and footsteps we ought in all things faithfully to follow. 1759. P. E.

and qualify such as it pleases Him, without respect to worldly rank, or human acquirements; and all his truly devoted servants, whatever may be their gifts and stations in the church, are brethren; and hold them under Him, the only Head, and the universal, and all-sufficient Teacher. 1798. P.E.

- We retain an unabated concern that friends may be strengthened to support, on principle, our testimony against a ministry supported by pecuniary means and not depending on the fresh opening of the Spirit of Christ in the heart. We believe also, that this testimony to the purity and freedom of genuine Gospel ministry, strongly evinces that the formation of our society was not an effort of human wisdom: neither is there any thing more calculated to sap our foundation, and render us a degenerate church, than a general departure from this principle. 1809. P. E.
- We have uniformly entertained the belief, on the authority of Holy 12 Scripture, that when, in the fulness of time, according to the all-wise purposes of God, our blessed Lord and Saviour appeared personally upon earth, he introduced a dispensation pure and spiritual in its character. He taught by his own holy example and divine precepts that the ministry of the Gospel is to be without pecuniary remuneration. As the gift is free, the exercise of it is to be free also: the office is to be filled by those only who are called of God by the power of the Holy Spirit; who, in their preaching, as well as in their circumspect lives and conversation, are giving proof of this call. The forced maintenance of the ministers of religion is, in our view, a violation of those great privileges, which God, in his wisdom and goodness, bestowed upon the human race, when he sent his Son to redeem the world, and, by the power of the Holy Spirit, to lead and guide mankind into all truth.

Our blessed Lord put an end to that priesthood, and to all those ceremonial usages connected therewith, which were before divinely ordained under the law of Moses. The present system of tithes was not in any way instituted by Him, our Holy Head, and High Priest, the great Christian Law-giver. It had no existence in the purest and TESTIMONY earliest ages of his church, but was gradually introduced, as superstition and apostacy spread over professing Christendom, and was subsequently enforced by legal authority. And it further appears to us, that in thus enforcing as due "to God and Holy Church," a tithe upon the produce of the earth, and upon the increase of the herds of the field, an attempt was made to uphold and perpetuate a divine institution, appointed only for a time, but which was abrogated by the coming in the flesh of the Lord Jesus Christ. The vesting of power by the laws of the land in the king, assisted by his council, whereby articles of belief have been framed for the adoption of his subjects, and under which the support of the teachers of these articles is enforced, is, in our judgment, a procedure at variance with the whole scope and design of the Gospel; and as it violates the rights of private judgment, so it interferes with that responsibility by which man is bound to his Creator.

In accordance with what has been already stated, we of course conscientiously object also to all demands made upon us in lieu of tithes. We likewise object to what are termed easter-dues, demands originally made by the priests of the church of Rome, but continued in the protestant church of England, for services which we cannot receive. We also object to mortuaries, sums applied for and still enforced in some places, as due to the incumbent of a parish on the death of the head of a family. Neither do we find, in the example or precepts of our blessed Lord and his apostles, any authority for these claims, or others of a kindred nature, which all had their origin in times of the darkness and corruption of the Christian church. And we further consider, that to be compelled to unite in the support of buildings, where a mode of religious worship is observed in which we cannot conscientiously unite, and in paying for appurtenances attached to that mode of worship from which we alike dissent, is subversive of that freedom which the Gospel of Christ has conferred upon all.

Seeing that we have as a religious society invariably made, on this subject, an open confession before men, we earnestly desire that we may all steadfastly adhere to the original grounds of our testimony; not allow ourselves to be led away by any feelings of a party spirit, or suffer any motives of an inferior character to take the place of those which are purely Christian. May none amongst us shrink from the faithful and upright support of our Christian belief, but through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, seek after that meek disposition, in which our society has uniformly thought it right to maintain this testimony, and which we desire may ever characterize us as a body. becomes us all, when thus conscientiously refusing a compliance with the law of the land, to do it in that peaceable spirit of which our Lord has left us so blessed an example. And it is our firm conviction, that in proportion as the heavenly precepts, and the blessed example of the Son of God, who is given of the Father to be Lord of all, spread and prevail, and effectually rule in the hearts and consciences of men,-in proportion as the pure doctrines of the Gospel gain the ascendancy. it will be seen, that to uphold any church establishment by compulsory laws, which oppress the consciences of sincere believers in the Lord Jesus, is at variance with his holy law, and is calculated to retard the universal spreading of his reign. 1832.

We have reason to believe that friends, in every part of the country, continue to be faithfully attached to our ancient testimony against tithes and other ecclesiastical demands. It is our firm conviction, that one of the purposes for which the Lord saw meet to raise us up as a people, was that we might become faithful witnesses against the corruptions which had found their way into his visible church; yet we would affectionately remind you, that to maintain a controversy with error does not necessarily establish us in the truth; that it is possible not to be conformed to the world, in many things, and, at the same time, not to be transformed by the renewing of our mind. We therefore earnestly intreat our beloved friends, while steadfastly adhering to all our Christian testimonies, not to rest satisfied with any thing short of that conversion of heart, that daily dependence upon God, and that entire obedience to his law, which constitute the very life of godliness. 1833. P. E.

As this meeting doth not enjoin or advise any friends, in sufferings for our Christian testimonies, to take a course at law for remedy, neither can we impose upon them, not to use law in any case; but a freedom is left to the sufferers, to use such means as consist with Legal prothe unity of friends, and their own peace and satisfaction in the truth, redress. and bearing a faithful testimony in righteousness. Advised, that friends do not judge or reflect one upon another in those cases, a freedom being left upon urgent occasions, to take such a course for relief and ease to the oppressed, as may not be prejudicial to the testimony of truth. But any friend apprehending a necessity to endeavour for relief by the law of the land, to stop the destroyers, is advised to consult about his case with his monthly or quarterly meeting, or at least with some judicious friends, before he makes any procedure at law: and friends who suffer, are advised not to let out their minds into too much expectation of outward relief in point of law, but that they patiently and principally depend on the Lord, and his power, to plead their cause. 1675.

That friends be careful of entangling themselves in law, because of some small irregularity in the proceeding; but if the law be materially transgressed, and the severity of it exceeded by the persecutor, that friends use their freedom, upon serious and good advice among themselves, so as the testimony of truth may be kept clear over all. 1676.

It is advised, that all friends have a care that they neither openly nor secretly consent to the taking away of their tithes, nor to the pay-

Case of executors to friends.

It is the sense of this meeting, that executors who have a testimony for truth, have a testimony against the paying of the tithes pretended to be due from the testator being a friend, and ought to bear his testimony against payment thereof.

18 Against compromise,

With respect to a proposal about taking a farm, and agreeing to pay so much the more to be exempt from tithes; it is left to the several monthly and quarterly meetings to advise friends to be careful that nothing be done that tends to weaken our testimony against tithes by any, and that such be admonished as they see cause.

Advised, that our ancient Christian testimony against tithes be not avoided or shunned by any indirect ways or courses, with landlords, or otherwise: and that friends be careful to keep a true record of the value of what is taken from them on that account, in the field or otherwise, whether it exceed the demand or not, with the respective date of each suffering, and the time when any suit is commenced.

This meeting taking notice that in many places advantages are taken of friends, by making stoppages upon them in the way of trade, or by debtors, or otherwise; or by kindred or neighbours laying down the money for tithes, or church-rates so called; it is recommended, as the sense and advice of this meeting, to the several quarterly and monthly meetings, to stir up friends in their respective meetings to zeal and faithfulness in this respect; that they may not connive at such payments, stoppages, or discountings on such accounts; but deal plainly and earnestly with their relations or neighbours who shall so pay, or others who shall so stop or discount; and not discharge the debt from their books, but keep the debt still in demand; and be as careful as they can for the future, to keep such persons, as much as in them lies, out of a capacity of stopping upon them: that they may thereby discourage all such ways of proceeding, which tend to weaken or lessen REGULATIONS their testimony. And such stoppages are not to be brought in as sufferings, inasmuch as the debt is not thereby discharged; for if it were, the stoppage would be allowed, and the testimony suffered to fall.

ADVICES.

This meeting declares it is its sense and judgment, that no friend in truth can either pay or receive impropriate tithes, being inconsistent with our Christian testimony. 1703.

Impropriate

Notwithstanding the judgment and advice frequently given by this meeting against the payment of tithes, and more particularly in Friends not to pay or rethe year 1703, against the paying or the receiving of tithes; some persons who go under our name, do yet continue not only to pay them, but some few also having estates in impropriate tithes (which Character of are the same in nature, ground, and root, with the tithes paid to the tithes. priests) do not forbear as yet to receive them; to the great dishonour of our holy profession; though others have conscientiously given up and released them: this meeting thereupon doth now again signify, that for any amongst us to pay or receive tithes (which were a part of the ceremonial law belonging to the Levitical priesthood, abrogated and taken away by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and his death on the cross) doth directly oppose and tend to overthrow the ancient Christian testimony of truth against tithes, which hath been borne by friends from the beginning of our day, not only by word and doctrine, but by deep sufferings, and sealed even with the blood of some of our dear and faithful brethren, who have cheerfully laid down their lives by long and hard imprisonments, in confirmation of that their conscientious testimony.

In the sense hereof, this meeting doth earnestly recommend to the Course of several monthly meetings of friends, if they should find any under our those who name that do either pay or receive tithes, that they use their best and paying or receiving tithes. utmost endeavours, in the spirit and order of the Gospel, and in the exercise of great tenderness and brotherly kindness, to inform, admonish, and convince all such, without respect of persons; in order to Seizures without warrant.

Whereas it appears, that the method of taking the priests' demands without warrant or due form of law, prevails more in some places than heretofore, friends are therefore intreated to be as much upon their guard as possible, against the introduction of any practices that may tend to encourage unfaithfulness or collusion: a disposition altogether unbecoming the nobility of truth, and inconsistent with the uprightness it requires. 1750. W.E.

23 Mixed rates.

As it appears by some accounts, that in some places the officers, in making their rates, viz. the poors'-rate which is by act of parliament, and the church-rate or sess, so called, which is mostly by ecclesiastical law, mix them together, and sometimes [demands] for the priest; it is therefore recommended, that friends be careful to examine into the said rates, or the parish-books, that they may not be imposed on, it being contrary to law; and such rates may be refused, and if warrants are granted upon such rates, they being altogether illegal may be set aside.

24 Returns.

· From the accounts brought to this meeting, it appears that in divers places it has been the practice to receive the overplus in money, of the distraints made from friends on account of tithes, church-rates, so called, REGULATIONS and other ecclesiastical demands: it is the advice of this meeting, that friends should decline, as much as may be, to receive such overplus when offered, in a different species from that which was distrained.

ADVICES.

We earnestly exhort and beseech quarterly meetings, carefully to inspect and consider the state of their monthly meetings; and when care to be exercised by weakness and remissness are manifestly apparent therein, that they quarterly meetings. appoint committees, as occasions may require, to assist them in extending such admonition and help as may be found necessary; in order that this important branch of our testimony, against the receiving and paying of tithes, as well as every other branch thereof, may be more generally, becomingly, and consistently supported; and that friends may be clear, in the discharge of their duty to God and to each other, in the great day of account. 1772. W. E.

25

This meeting having weightily considered the deficiencies, which from year to year have been complained of, in the support of our Christian testimony against tithes, is apprehensive that they may be occasioned in degree by some misconstruction of the yearly meeting minute of 1706, as though it did not enjoin monthly meetings to proceed to the disownment of such of their members as persist in rejecting the admonition of their brethren: wherefore this meeting thinks it expedient to declare, that no such exemption from the invariable issue of our dealings with irreclaimable delinquents, is considered by this meeting to be allowed by the said minute.

29 Mode of reporting sufferings.

It is desired that when sufferings are sent up in order for redress of any particular case, the same be written down, as to the loss sustained, goods distrained, severe and illegal treatment or usage by justices or other persons, plainly, pertinently, and distinctly, as to matter of fact only, without any reflection upon the magistrates and persons by whom friends have suffered, or against whom any complaint is made; and that sufferings sent up to be recorded here, be first read in the quarterly meeting, and therein signed. 1681.

30 Account to be rendered respecting friends in prison.

That an account be yearly sent up of all such friends as are in prison, or prisoners, that it may be known who are detained in prison, and who are discharged since the preceding yearly meeting, and when discharged; also to signify the time of their commitment, by whom prosecuted, and for what cause; and that distinct accounts be brought up of all such friends as have died in prison, as prisoners for their testimony to the truth, since the foregoing yearly meeting, with their names, ages, dwelling-places, education, time of convincement, and the places of their travel and service, time of sufferings, and death. 1681.

31 Difficult cases to be sent to meeting for sufferings.

This meeting, on considering the clause in the minute of 1681, No. 29, under this head, which enjoins that "sufferings sent up to be recorded quarterly "here, be first read in the quarterly meeting, and therein signed," concludes that quarterly meetings be left at liberty either to have the said accounts read in the quarterly meetings, or to refer them to a committee to be read and examined thereby: the committee so appointed is to make a report to the quarterly meeting, and the indorsement prepared agreeably to the last preceding minute, which is in all cases to be read in the quarterly meeting, recorded there, and signed by the clerk on its behalf.

TRADE.

GENERAL COUNSEL.

Let friends and brethren in their respective meetings watch over one another in the love of God and care of the Gospel; particularly admonish that none trade beyond their ability nor stretch beyond their compass; and that they use few words in their dealings, and keep their word in all things, lest they bring through their forwardness dishonour to the precious truth of God. 1675.

As it hath pleased God to bring forth a day of liberty and freedom to serve Him, let every one have a care so to use this liberty, as that the name of God may be honoured by it; and not an occasion taken by any because of the present freedom, to launch forth into trading and worldly business beyond what they can manage honourably and with reputation; and so that they may keep their words with all men, and that their yea may prove yea indeed, and their nay may be nay indeed. 1688. P. E.

It is advised, and earnestly desired, that the payment of just debts be not delayed by any professing truth beyond the time promised and agreed upon; nor occasion given of complaint to those they deal with, by their backwardness of payment where no time is limited; nor any to overcharge themselves with too much trading and commerce, beyond their capacities to discharge with a good conscience towards all men; and that all friends concerned be very careful not to contract extravagant debts, endangering the wronging of others and their families; which some have done, to the grieving the hearts of the upright; nor to break their promises, contracts, or agreements, in their buying or selling, or in any other lawful affairs, to the injuring themselves and others, occasioning strife and contention, and reproach to truth and friends. And it is advised, that all friends that are entering into trade, or that are in trade, and have not stock sufficient of their own to answer the trade they aim at, be very cautious of running themselves into debt, without advising with some of their ancient and experienced friends among whom they live; and more especially such trading as hath its dependence upon sea-adventures. 1692. P. E.

It is our earnest desire that friends be very careful to avoid all pursuit after the things of this world, by such ways and means as depend too much on hazardous enterprises; but rather labour to content themselves with such a plain way and manner of living, as is most agreeable to the self-denying principles of truth which we profess; and which is most conducive to that tranquillity of mind that is requisite to a religious conduct. 1724. P. E.—1801.

We find it our duty to remind our respective members, of the remarkable uprightness and honesty of our friends in the beginning, in their commerce and converse. How exact were they in performing their words and promises, without evasive excuses and insincere dealings! how careful not to involve themselves in business which they understood not, nor had stock of their own to manage! how circumspect not to contract greater debts than they were able to pay in due time!—conduct which brought great credit and reputation to our religious society. But with sorrow we observe, that, contrary to their example, and the repeated advices formerly given by this meeting against an inordinate pursuit after riches, too many have launched into trades and business above their stocks and capacities; by which unjustifiable proceedings, and high living, they have involved themselves and families in trouble and ruin, and brought considerable loss upon others, to the great reproach of our holy profession. 1732. P. E.

to clash with our testimony. O then may we be willing to pause, and give time for those passions to subside, which would hurry us to the accomplishment of the desired purpose, ere the still voice of wisdom be distinctly heard, to guide us in the way in which we should go! 1795. P. E.

We do not condemn industry; which we believe to be not only praise-worthy, but indispensable. It is the desire of great things, and the engrossment of the time and attention, from which we desire that all our dear friends may be redeemed. We doubtless owe duties to ourselves and to our families; but we owe them also to society; and do we not owe even our ownselves to our all-wise, all-protecting, and provident Creator? 1797. P. E.

We do not tax all who embark in large concerns in trade, with an undue desire after riches; but we much fear that the effect, which their schemes are likely to have upon themselves and their connexions, as affecting their condition, both religious and civil, is not duly regarded. The love of money is said in Scripture to be "the root of all evil;" and we believe it may be shown, that honest industry and moderation of desire are 'roots' of incalculable benefit to the humble Christian. feel for many of our friends in limited circumstances, in this day of increased, and possibly increasing expense; but we would caution such, and particularly those who are setting out in life, against imitating the manner of living of those whose means are more abundant. We wish, friends, to call you, not to penuriousness but to economy; and we particularly desire that all such as have families of children, even if in more affluent circumstances, would inure them to early industry, and not to habits of depending too much on the services of 1805. P. E. domestics.

9 We believe that many who begin the world with moderate views, meeting at first with success in trade, go on extending their commercial concerns until they become involved therein to a degree prohibited by the precepts of Christ, and incompatible with their own safety. Thus situated, some may be tempted to adopt a line of conduct, dishonourable in itself, and injurious to others. That contentment which characterizes the pious Christian, is a treasure which we covet for all our members; and we especially desire that those who are setting out in life may so circumscribe their expectations, and limit their domestic establishments, as not to bring upon themselves expenses which could only be supported by an imprudent extension of their trade. Care in this respect will enable them to allot more of their time to the service of their fellow-men, and to the promotion of the Lord's cause. 1815. P. E.

GENERAL COUNSEL.

We believe that, if friends are careful to attend to the limitations of Truth in their trade, they will generally be preserved from great trouble. It is the duty of all, frequently to inspect the state of their affairs; and if reverses should occur, to ascertain and know for themselves, that they are fully justified, as honest, upright men, in going on with their business. Such an examination would be greatly facilitated by all being very careful to keep clear accounts; that, whether they may be taken off by death, or it may be needful to exhibit those accounts to others, the same may appear perspicuous and intelligible.

And we would affectionately encourage friends, who find themselves in embarrassed, or even in doubtful circumstances, not to hesitate, not to be ashamed, to disclose their affairs to men of upright character, in whom they can confide. Such a timely procedure would, we believe, often save the reputation of individuals, call forth the respect and compassion of their creditors, and prevent the keen sufferings of tender wives and innocent children, and such reproach as, in some instances, has been brought upon our high profession.

And may you, dear friends, who are favoured with outward prosperity, so live, that when riches increase, you set not your hearts upon them. Be very careful how you venture to increase your ways of accumulating wealth; but walk as ensamples to those around you, evincing that you are redeemed from the inordinate pursuit of lawful things. You will then be more prepared to enter with kindness into the situation of others, when they may consult you; you will be more qualified, in a brotherly way to advise your brethren, to take such measures as may prevent those sufferings to which we have alluded. 1819.

Speculations of any kind which may seem to hold out the prospect of a rapid accumulation of wealth, greatly endanger tranquillity of mind. They often involve in perplexities, which disqualify us for exercising a patient dependence upon Him from whom cometh our strength. They not unfrequently lead into acts unbecoming the character of upright men, and in some cases their effects are deplorably felt by innocent sufferers. They often arise from the love of money, and from that eager pursuit after riches, which is inconsistent with the character of a people, who believe in the necessity of being redeemed from the spirit of this world.

We are aware that many of our dear friends may, at the present time, in seeking for a fair means of gaining a livelihood, and in the regular conducting of their outward concerns, be subjected to peculiar difficulties. In the competition of trade, they may be tempted to do that which endangers their peace of mind. We would tenderly counsel all these, whilst they cherish a disposition to honest industry, to let their wants be few; to keep to habits of moderation and economy, but at the same time abhorring covetousness; and, above all, so to live and so to act, that they may be able to place a humble reliance on the blessing and care of the Almighty; and to follow the exhortation of the apostle; "In every thing by prayer and supplication, with thanks-"giving, let your requests be made known unto God." And we desire that a Christian example in others, who are not subjected to the same difficulties, may strengthen these good resolutions. 1824. P. E.

He that is concerned to support the character of a follower of Christ,—and who amongst us would disclaim this character?—ought to be earnest in his endeavour that accessions of wealth do no disqualify him for the discharge of any duty. Those who, whilst honestly and diligently endeavouring to provide for their families, have to encounter many difficulties, have a strong claim on the sympathy of their friends: yet they need not fear, as they continue to place their whole trust in our Heavenly Father, but that he will care for them in such a way as he sees meet. But if any, whether of the more affluent, or of those who cannot be ranked in this class, are deviating from safe and regular methods of business, if they are carried away by uncertain and hazardous, though plausible schemes for getting rich, if they yield to a desire rapidly to enlarge their possessions—such are in imminent danger. They cannot justly expect the blessing of the Most High on such pursuits: their spiritual eye becomes dim; and they do not perceive with clearness that light which would enable them to perfect holiness in the fear of God. 1825. P. E.

GENERAL

It becomes those who are attached to the cause of truth, who love our principles, and are desirous of promoting the best interests of our society, to remember that they are not exempt from danger. Dear friends of this description, and especially you who are young, accept a word of caution offered to you in Christian love. If you attend not to the witness of God in your own hearts, and seek not to be delivered from the spirit of this world, you may, contrary to any apprehensions that you now entertain, be introduced into future trouble. You may obstruct your own usefulness in the church, mar the designs of Infinite Wisdom concerning you, and when it is too late, have bitterly to regret the want of timely withstanding the first temptations of the enemy.

And we would tenderly invite those who may have acquired a competency of outward substance, to watch the proper period at which they may withdraw from the cares of business, and when disengaged from the regular concerns of trade to beware how they employ their property in investments which may involve them anew in care and anxiety. We affectionately desire that neither these nor other cares may disqualify them from acting the part of faithful stewards in the employment of their time, their talents, and their substance, or from being concerned above all things, through watchfulness unto prayer, to have their lamps trimmed, and oil in their vessels; that when the solemn close of life shall come, they may, through redeeming love and mercy, be prepared to enter into the joy of their Lord. 1826.

REGULATIONS AND SPECIAL
ADVICES.
On failing in the payment of just debts.

We recommend to friends in their respective quarterly and monthly meetings, to have a watchful eye over all their members; and where they observe any deficient in discharging their contracts and just debts in due time, so as to give reasonable suspicion of weakness or negligence, that friends do earnestly advise them to a suitable care and necessary inspection into their circumstances, in order that they may be helped; and if any proceed contrary to such advice, and by their failure bring open scandal and reproach on the society, that then friends justifiably may and ought to testify against such offenders. Nevertheless it is not intended to prevent monthly meetings from exercising the dicipline in cases in which no advice may have been given prior to insolvency. 1732. P. E.—1816.

It is earnestly recommended, that friends frequently inspect the state of their affairs, and when any find themselves unable, or have not more than sufficient, to pay their just debts, that they immediately disclose their circumstances to some judicious friends, or principal creditors, and take their advice how to act, and be particularly careful not to pay one creditor in preference to another. It is also recommended to all persons concerned in trade to keep their accounts in such a clear and accurate manner, that in case of failure, their creditors may see how the deficiency has happened. Those friends, who may be appointed by monthly meetings to visit those REGULATIONS who have failed, should always enquire of their assignees or trustees how they have acted in the above respects, and report to the meeting. 1782.

If through adverse accidents any should fail in paying their just debts, and should, after a composition with their creditors, be so far blessed and prospered in their affairs, as to be capable of paying their charged.

Debtors to pay although legally discharged. deficiencies, it is the earnest desire and advice of this meeting, that they do not omit the same. 1727. P. E.

It is the sense and judgment of this meeting, if any fall short of paying their just debts, and a composition be made with their creditors to accept of a part instead of the whole, that notwithstanding the parties may look upon themselves legally discharged of any obligation to pay the remainder, yet the principle of universal righteousness we profess, enjoins full satisfaction to be made, if ever the debtors are of ability. And in order that such may the better retrieve their circumstances, we exhort them to submit to a manner of living in every respect the most conducive to this purpose. 1759. P. E.

17

Our sympathy is much excited for those, who, after fair prospects, have, from a sudden depreciation of property, been subjected to many difficulties. We wish kindly to encourage such of these as have it still within their power, to a timely contraction of their domestic And we desire that their trials may be lightened by beholding in their offspring a disposition to industry and economy, and a willingness that their expectations should not exceed those limits which become a Christian character: this we believe would ultimately tend to their greatest good. Before we quit this subject, we would remind our friends of the former advice of this meeting, that where any have injured others in their property, the greatest frugality should be observed by themselves and their families; and although they may have a legal discharge from their creditors, both equity and our Christian 19 Contributions not to be received from debtors until their debts are paid.

It is the judgment of this meeting, that monthly or other meetings ought not to receive collections or bequests for the use of the poor, or other services of the society, of persons who have fallen short in the payment of their just debts, though legally discharged by their creditors; for until such persons have paid the deficiency, what they possess cannot in equity be considered as their own. And monthly meetings are desired to exercise due caution against too early admitting such individuals to take an active part in the discipline. 1782.—1833.

20 Fictitious paper-credit.

We warn all against a most pernicious practice, too much prevailing amongst the trading part of mankind, which hath often issued in the utter ruin of those concerned therein, viz. that of raising and circulating a fictitious kind of paper-credit (by what are called accommodation bills), with indorsements and acceptances, to give an appearance of value without an intrinsic reality: a practice highly unbecoming that uprightness which ought to appear in every member of our religious society, and of which practice we therefore think it our incumbent duty to declare our disapprobation, and disunity therewith, as absolutely inconsistent with the truth we make profession of. 1771. P. E.

21

On considering the subject of fictitious paper-credit, as set forth in the last preceding minute, we are of the judgment, that the said minute. conjoined with the first paragraph of No. 33, under the head "MONTHLY MEETINGS," constitutes a full authority to deal with, and if necessary to disown, any who may be found delinquents in this respect, and we are concerned to stimulate overseers, friends generally, and monthly meetings, to a vigilant and early attention to the subject. 1817.— 1833.

Among the evils of later times has been the practice of individuals trading beyond their capital, and that of carrying on their business by REGULATIONS means of a fictitious credit; practices very dangerous in their effects, and utterly inconsistent with Christian moderation and contentment. 1826.

We therefore earnestly desire friends to keep strictly on their guard, that none, through any specious pretences of rendering acts of friendship to others with safety to themselves, may risk their own peace and reputation, and the security of their families: in order hereunto, we recommend this salutary advice of the wise man to their especial notice and regard: "Be not thou "one of them that strike hands, or of them that are sureties for debts. "If thou hast nothing to pay, why should he take away thy bed from " under thee?" 1 1771. P. E.

It is advised, that when friends accept the office of trustee or assignee, they be active in collecting the effects of the estate, and Assignees and trustees punctual in making a speedy distribution.

We intreat friends frequently to inspect the state of their affairs, and not to delay the performance of this duty, either from an apprehension that things are going on well, or from a fear to know how their accounts really stand. It is a practice which can be injurious to no one; but it has very frequently been seen, that had it been timely and regularly resorted to, it would in all probability have prevented grievous Those who hold the property of others, and this may be said to be the case more or less with most who are engaged in trade, are not warranted, on the principles of justice, in neglecting to inform themselves from time to time of the real situation of their affairs.

This would be greatly facilitated by their early adopting, and regularly pursuing, a clear and methodical system of keeping their accounts, in regard both to trade and domestic expenses.

> We know that the experience and sufferings of the past year in this nation, have furnished many useful lessons to those who have escaped the troubles of which others have partaken; and we desire that these lessons may not be without their practical good effect. They should teach us not to trust in uncertain riches; and they should be a warning to parents to be careful how they enlarge their domestic establishments, and not to hold out to their children expectations of ease and abundance, nor to train them up in habits of delicacy and indulgence. O! that both parents and their offspring might fix their hopes of happiness on that which is substantial and eternal, and endeavour to be good stewards of the temporal blessings bestowed upon them.—Such we believe to be the concern of many of our dear friends.

TRUST PROPERTY.

Advised, that all and every of your meeting-houses, and mansion-houses where meetings are, or may be held, be entered upon record as the law directs: (vid. 1. W. & M. chap. 18. sec. 19) having seen both the service and safety thereof, and the hurt and danger that may come by the omission. 1691. P. E.

Registering meeting-houses.

It is recommended, that whenever any freehold, copyhold, or leasehold property shall be newly acquired for meeting-houses or burial grounds, or for the benefit of quarterly, monthly, preparative, or other meetings, or for any other charitable purpose under the care of friends, the trusts be declared in the deed of conveyance, and that one or other of the following forms be employed, according to the tenure of the property.

Forms of conveyance.

On any such new acquisition, whether by purchase or gift, a deed indented, sealed, and delivered, by the conveying party in the presence of two credible witnesses, and enrolled in Chancery, within six calendar months after such execution, must constitute, or form part of, the conveyance. If these formalities are not complied with, the conveyance will be void.

Note.—It is a common mistake to suppose that the formalities here mentioned, and which are required by the act 9 Geo. II. c. 36, are only necessary on voluntary gifts and not on purchases for charitable purposes. Their omission having been a frequent cause of defect in titles to charity lands, the legislature at length, by 9 Geo. IV. c. 85, interfered to remedy it in all actual purchases for charitable purposes previously made. But as this enactment is only retrospective, the formalities are necessary on all acquisitions, subsequent to the 9 Geo. IV. c. 85.

As the 9 Geo. II. c. 36 annuls conveyances for charitable purposes which reserve any benefit to the grantor, it is doubtful whether a rent reserved by a lease is of this description. Friends will do well to avoid the doubt, by taking leases, whether original or renewed, to a third person, and then obtaining an assignment from him; the assignment and not the lease, being the deed to be executed and enrolled, as above described.

Forms of conveyance.

Whenever an appointment of new trustees of any real or personal property belonging to, or under the direction or care of, a quarterly, monthly, preparative, or other meeting, may become desirable, either from reduction of the existing trustees who are solvent members of our society, and resident within the united kingdom, to two, or from other circumstances, it is recommended that such appointment be speedily made, and the trust property legally transferred accordingly. Of course, this recommendation is not to interfere with any special provision for appointing trustees, made at the original creation of the trust.

3 Change of trustees.

In transfers to new trustees, forms similar to the foregoing may, in general, be used. But in these cases, the two following cautions should be attended to. First, that where there has been any previous declaration of trust, especial care be taken not in any way to alter the trust. In these cases the forms must only be followed as far as the circumstances of the case will properly admit. Secondly, that where the title to the trust property is imperfect, either from want of enrolment, or from the form of a previous declaration of trust, it may be expedient to keep the declaration of trust distinct from the conveyance to the new trustees where this is practicable.

The formalities of enrolment and attestation, pointed out in No. 2, are not considered necessary on transfers to new trustees.

Custody of deeds.

Care is to be particularly taken that all title-deeds and writings relating to meeting-houses, burial-grounds and trust property of any kind, held for the use of any part of the society, as well as all deeds and records relative to donations and legacies, be deposited in a place of security, free from damp, and from danger by fire; and that the custody of them be entrusted to two or more friends appointed for the purpose. It is suggested, that where practicable or convenient, the title-deeds of such property, situate within the limits of any one quarterly meeting, be deposited (under the direction of the said meeting) in the most suitable, and as far as practicable, central place, combined with security; that it may be more generally known where they are to be met with.

7 Record of trusts. Monthly meetings are to take care that a correct account of the nature of all trusts, with the names of the trustees of such real or personal property as they are entrusted with, or entitled to, be recorded in a book kept for that purpose; in which should be inserted the place of deposit of the title-deeds of such property. In all cases of legacies or donations, copies of the wills, or of the clauses of the wills, with the date of probate, and of deeds of gift, are, as far as practicable, to be procured, and carefully recorded in the said book.

8 Accounts. WAR.

It hath been a weighty concern on this meeting, that our ancient and honourable testimony against being concerned in bearing arms, or fighting, may be maintained; it being a doctrine and testimony agreeable to the nature and design of the Christian religion, and to the universal love and grace of God. This testimony, we desire may be strictly and carefully maintained, by a godly care and concern in all to stand clear therein; so shall we strengthen and comfort one another. 1730. P. E.

GENERAL COUNSEL.

And as it hath pleased the Lord, by the breaking forth of the glorious light of his Gospel, and the shedding abroad of his Holy Spirit, to gather us to be a people to his praise, and to unite us in love, not only one unto another, but to the whole creation of God, by subjecting us to the government of his Son our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace; it behoveth us to hold forth the ensign of the Lamb of God, and by our patience and peaceable behaviour to show, that we walk in obedience to the example and precepts of our Lord and Master, who hath commanded us to love our enemies, and to do good even to them that hate us. Wherefore we intreat all who profess themselves members of our society, to be faithful to that ancient testimony, borne by us ever since we were a people, against bearing arms and fighting; that by a conduct agreeable to our profession, we may demonstrate ourselves to be real followers of the Messiah, the peaceable Saviour, of the increase of whose govrenment and peace, there shall be no end. 1744. P. E.

We have endeavoured, in the last two years, to caution our brethren in profession, against suffering the commotions of the times to seduce them from the path of blameless simplicity, in which it becomes all true followers of Christ to walk. And, though we desire not to repeat similar advice, we think it incumbent on us now to bid you beware of being induced, either inadvertently or for gain, in any manner to give countenance to the destroying practice of war. Many are the ways by which the unwary and the covetous may be caught. But, brethren, look beyond the surface. Behold the depth of misery into which war plunges mankind. Then, putting your trust in Him who gives understanding to the simple, and provides for the sparrows, ye may avoid the pollution which is theirs, who join hands with this desolating evil. 1795. P. E.

We feel not inclined, though war yet continues to desolate the earth, to repeat our advices on that head, or to resume the subject further than to remark how thankful we ought to be, in that we are still permitted to meet together, as we have done at this time, in brotherly fellowship and mutual condescension; whilst the world around us is tossed with the tempest of discord. O friends, may we consider it as an incitement to suffer every thing which tends to contention, to be eradicated from our hearts; and, under the influence of the spirit of Christ, to cultivate with unwearied assiduity and patience, all those dispositions which make for peace; things whereby we may edify one another; yea, things by which we may evince to our fellow-men at large, that we are really redeemed from the spirit of contests, and truly the disciples of a merciful Redeemer, whose holy, pure, and undefiled religion is a system of universal love! 1797. P. E.

Our general scruple to bear arms is well known; and truly we are satisfied that our testimony in this respect is a testimony for Messiah, of whose reign it is the glory, that "the wolf and the lamb shall feed together."

Most, if not all, people admit the transcendent excellency of peace. All who adopt the petition, "Thy kingdom come," pray for its universal establishment. Some people then must begin to fulfil the evangelical promise, and cease to learn war any more. Now, friends, seeing these things cannot be controverted, how do we long that your whole conversation be as becometh the Gospel; and that while any of us are professing to scruple war, they may not in some parts of their conduct be inconsistent with that profession! awful thing to stand forth to the nation as the advocates of inviolable peace; and our testimony loses its efficacy in proportion to the want of consistency in any. And we think we are at this time peculiarly called to let our light shine with clearness, on account of the lenity shown us by government, and the readiness of magistrates to afford us all legal relief under suffering. And we can serve our country in no way more availingly, nor more acceptably to Him who holds its prosperity at his disposal, than by contributing, all that in us lies, to increase the number of meek, humble, and self-denying Christians. 1804. P. E.

It having been represented to this meeting, that some professing to be of our society have of late slighted and neglected our ancient and Christian testimony to such a degree, as to be concerned in privateering, or as owners of ships going with letters of marque; which is a flagrant and lamentable departure from our peaceable principle (which hath always been to confide in the protection and providence of Almighty God, and not in weapons of war,) and a practice that may be attended with injustice, barbarity, and bloodshed:

This meeting having taken this sorrowful and afflicting case, and breach of our ancient testimony, into its serious consideration, has thought it its incumbent duty to bear its testimony against such practices; and it is the unanimous sense of this meeting, that all monthly meetings ought speedily to deal with all persons found in the practice of such things, in the spirit of truth and love, in order to bring them to a sense of their error, and to reclaim them from it; which if they cannot do, then to testify against them, and let them know we have no unity or fellowship with them. 1744. W. E.

- 8 It having been weightily under the consideration of this meeting to discourage all under our profession from that great inconsistency of being concerned in privateers, letters of marque, or ships armed in a warlike manner, we think it necessary earnestly to recommend to monthly meetings, to keep a watchful eye over their members, in this important branch of our Christian testimony; and where any inclination toward such practices appears, that timely admonition and suitable counsel be given, in the spirit of love and meekness. 1757. P. E.

And, dear friends, as it hath pleased the Almighty to reveal unto mankind his Son Jesus Christ, the peaceable Saviour, let it be our steady wars the subconcern to demonstrate to the world that we are his followers, by bring- ject of convering forth the fruits of the Spirit, "love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." And as we are called out of wars and fightings, so let them be, as seldom as possible, the subjects of our conversation: but let a holy care rest upon us, to abide in that power which gives dominion over the hopes and fears that arise from the concerns of an unstable world; and tend, as they are admitted into the mind, to lessen its trust on that rock which is immovable. Thus, like faithful Abraham, may we hope for preservation, and be qualified to approach the throne of mercy in intercession for others, at a time when the tokens of Divine displeasure are manifest. Let us keep in mind that declaration of our Lord: "My kingdom is not of this world;" for they whose kingdom is of this world, will only strive for the things thereof. Therefore, we beseech you, mind your calling, that it may be evident you are not seeking a city here, but one to come, which hath everlasting "foundations, whose builder and maker is God." 1757. P. 12 Rates or assessments for military purposes.

It is our sense and judgment that we cannot, consistently with our wellknown principles, actively pay the rate or assessment, which by virtue of any militia act, may be imposed in lieu of personal service; or any rates or assessments made for advancing the hire or enlisting-money of volunteers; or the money to be raised and given to militia-men. And as overseers are sometimes directed by militia acts, to make the said rates and assessments, and to collect and levy the same, such friends as shall be in that office are advised, with meekness and prudence, to inform the deputy lieutenants and acting justices within their districts, that they cannot be active in or concerning such rates. And friends are desired to be careful to guard against paying the said rates mixed with some other rate.

And we think it expedient that friends should be tenderly advised to avoid giving occasion of reproach, by any unjustifiable endeavours to evade the law; and that, in all cases wherein they allege a conscientious scruple for not actively paying what may be demanded of them, they manifest, by a patient and Christian conduct under such sufferings as may attend in consequence thereof, that their scruples are real and 1762.—1801. sincere.

ADVICES.

We desire afresh to press upon all our members, the necessity of a peaceful and innocent demeanour amongst men; and especially, let all be careful not to seek or accept profit by any concern in the preparations so extensively making for war; for how reproachfully inconsistent would it be, to refuse an active compliance with warlike measures; and, at the same time, not to hesitate to enrich ourselves by the commerce and other circumstances dependent on war! 1798. We are inclined also, dear friends, to draw your attention to the root of our testimony against war. It is no other than Christian love, and that Consistency, righteousness which produces peace, quietness, and perpetual assurance, especially in those who as its natural fruit. This draws the mind away from those passions and desires, in which are laid the foundations of contest. Let us then frequently examine our hearts, yea, let us prove our own selves, and see how far the seed of contention withers, and a resignation to suffer is cherished And since, as we have mentioned, some of our young men have suffered, and more may probably suffer imprisonment, we are deeply desirous that they may walk consistently with their testimony in every respect; showing by their conduct that they truly follow a Master who was holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners. 1809. 19 On the return of the blessing of peace.

Deeply impressed with gratitude to Almighty God, that the sword is again stayed in this quarter of the globe, and that the spirit of contention which has so long prevailed, has been succeeded by marks of Christian forbearance and charity, we desire to express our thankfulness for the prospect of peace. The judgments of the Lord have indeed been in the earth; and many have learned righteousness. the number of these increase; may the peaceable spirit of the Gospel, the surest pledge of permanent tranquillity, spread and prevail! of this island have cause to be doubly thankful: we have been preserved from witnessing the effusion of blood, and the ravages of war, which have spread over the greatest part of Europe; and we are now permitted, in common with other nations, to rejoice thus far in their cessation.

In what way, therefore, beloved friends, shall we evince our sense of these unmerited favours? It is well known that we regard it as a Christian testimony, to refrain from uniting in those public demonstrations of joy, which often prevail on such occasions. We are convinced

WILLS, EXECUTORS, AND ADMINISTRATORS.

- I Friends advised to make their wills;
- Knowing how quickly many are removed by death, it is weightily recommended that care be taken in each monthly meeting, that friends who have estates to dispose of, by will or otherwise, be advised to make their wills in time of health, and strength of judgment, and to dispose of their substance as in justice and wisdom may be to their satisfaction; to prevent the inconveniences, loss, and trouble that may fall upon their relations and friends, through their dying intestate. Making such wills in due time can shorten no man's days, but the omission or delay thereof has proved very injurious to many. 1691.—1695. P. E.—1703. P. E.
- and appoint guardians.
- Recommended, that friends who have young children, do in their wills appoint faithful friends to be guardians to them, till they come to the age of twenty-one years. 1706.
- 3 Care in accepting trusts, &c.
- Advised, that friends take care that none do unadvisedly bring themselves, or others, into sufferings, by undertaking trusts or executorships, when they cannot legally and consistently discharge the trust. 1713.
- Advice to executors and trustees.
- Executors and trustees, concerned in wills and settlements, are advised to take especial care that they faithfully discharge their respective trusts, according to the intent of the donors and testators; and that all charitable gifts, legacies, bequests, and settlements of estates, by will or deed, intended and given for the use of the poor, the aged, the impotent, or putting poor friends' children to education or apprenticeships, may not be appropriated or converted to other uses than such as the donors and testators have directed and enjoined by legal settlement, will, or testament. 1715.

As in cases of administration to the estate or effects of deceased persons, a bond is required in the ecclesiastical courts, where the same the form of is granted; which bond contains several titles and designations of the administraarchbishops or bishops, which it is inconsistent with our religious principles to acknowledge, such as 'The most' or 'right reverend father in God'-' by divine providence, lord,' &c. and as some friends have scrupled to sign such bonds on that account, and have been permitted to strike out the exceptionable parts; it is therefore recommended to friends in such cases, to offer a bond in the underwritten form; or at least to endeavour to obtain consent to strike out such parts as are inconsistent with our principles. 1773.

Form of a Bond.

Know all men by these presents, that we are become bound unto , archbishop [or bishop as the case may be] of , in the sum of pounds of good and lawful money of Great Britain, to be paid to the said archbishop [or bishop] or his certain attorney, executors, administrators, or assigns: for which payment, well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, and each of us, for the whole, our heirs, our executors, and administrators, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our scals, dated the day of the month, called in the year of our Lord, one thousand hundred and

[Here to follow the condition of the Bond.]

Advised, that friends in making their wills have a strict regard to justice and equity, and be not actuated by caprice and prejudice, to the injury of those who may have a reasonable expectation from their kindred and near connexion; nor (although occasion may have been given or taken,) carry any resentment to the grave, remembering we all stand in need of mercy and forgiveness: also that none postpone making their wills to a sick-bed, an improper season to settle our outward affairs, in the painful struggles of nature, even if we should be favoured with a clear understanding; which ought not to be diverted from a solemn consideration of the approaching awful period of life.

Advice to testators. Advice to testators and executors.

Friends are earnestly recommended to employ persons skilful in law, and of good repute, to make their wills; as great inconvenience and loss, and sometimes the ruin of families, have happened through the unskilfulness of some who have taken upon them to make wills. And all friends who may become executors or administrators, are advised to make a full, clear, and proper inventory of the estate and effects of the deceased as soon as possible after the interment, as many difficulties and disputes have arisen for want of it, where it has been deferred; and seeing also that in the affirmation made at proving a will, there is a promise to make such inventory. 1782.—1801.

YOUTH.

WE earnestly beseech our friends, and especially the youth, to avoid all such conversation as may tend to draw out their minds into the foolish ish and wickand wicked pastimes with which this age aboundeth, particularly balls, gaming-places, horse-races, and play-houses, those nurseries of debauchery and wickedness, the burden and grief of the sober part of other societies, as well as of our own; things wholly unbecoming a people under the Christian profession, contrary to the tenour of the doctrine of the Gospel, and the examples of the best of men in the earliest ages of the church. For, as "evil communications corrupt good manners," so it is the duty of men professing religion, who live in this world in order to obtain a better, not only to shake their hands from holding of bribes, and stop their ears from hearing of blood, but also to shut their eyes from seeing evil. 1739. P. E.

And dearly beloved youth, in a humble sense of the continued visitations of the Father's love, and an experience of their blessed effects, we intreat you by the mercies of God, receive its holy impressions, submit to its discipline. This will preserve you from the deplorable effect of Satan's transformations, inspire you with holy resolutions, and enable you to maintain them in all godly conversation, and purity of life and faith; adorning the doctrine of the Gospel by a blameless demeanour. True peace will then flow as a river in your own minds, and the fruits of the tree of righteousness be brought forth, to your inexpressible consolation in Christ, and the revival of Sion; so that by and through you, she may yet appear beautiful to the sincerehearted. 1751. W. E.

General counsel and exhortation.

3 General counsel and exhortation. O that our youth might be prevailed upon to humble themselves, endeavouring, through the divine assistance, to form their minds according to the plain and simple truths of the Gospel contained in the Holy Scriptures, which we recommend as a proper means of preserving them from the contagion of profane and irreligious books and writings, tending to alienate and divert men from the love of virtue, and the practice of true Christian morality.

Dearly beloved young friends, in much affection and tenderness we exhort you, above all things, to give diligent heed and attention to the voice of the Spirit of Christ speaking in the secret of your own consciences, reproving for evil, and speaking peace when you do well: For this, as it is closely and reverently regarded, will not only season your minds with a holy fear and dread of offending the great Majesty of heaven and the whole earth, and thereby be a means of preserving you from the vices, vanities, and allurements of this world; but will also influence you to seek after, and pray earnestly for, that wisdom which is from above. Happy are the youth who thus give up their names to serve the living God with full purpose of heart! How inexpressible are the blessings which those who are thus early devoted to serve the Lord, bring upon themselves! And how do they cause the hearts of their parents and friends to overflow with joy and thanksgiving to the Author of all our mercies; and the church of God to magnify his name, for the continuance of his goodness to his people, from one generation to another! Whilst the ungodly and disobedient, and such as, contrary to the tender intreaties and admonitions of their parents, the counsel of their friends, and the dictates of the Spirit of Truth in their own hearts, give the reins to their unruly passions, and indulge themselves in rioting, wantonness, and excess, often wound their parents with grief and affliction, become themselves a reproach to their Christian profession, and render their own lives short and miserable, attended with such reflections as these: "How have "I hated instruction, and my heart despised reproof; and have not "obeyed the voice of my teachers, nor inclined mine ear to them that "instructed me!"1 O that all such may return unto the Lord, whilst the General counday of his gracious visitation is extended unto them, who delighteth not hortation. in the death of a sinner, but willeth the salvation of all! 1751. P. E.

And, dear young friends, we fervently and affectionately intreat you, keep your hearts with all diligence. Guard against every act of unfaithfulness to the divine witness, and especially beware of closing in with the first temptations thereunto. Keep within the bounds of known duty, and the tender restrictions of truth. In this state of vigilance and humble care; preservation, peace, and safety will accompany your steps. Your minds, being circumscribed within the bounds of truth and righteousness, will be properly exercised in your respective duties, in the sight of God and man, and employed usefully in your several vocations, abhorring idleness, for of idleness springs folly; vice ensues; dishonour, wretchedness, and ruin are its fruits, which bring affliction on families, and undeserved reproach on our holy profession. Keep close therefore to the heavenly principle in yourselves. This will preserve your feet from evil. Shun all those who would lead you into the broad way, as your most dangerous enemies. Deviate not from the strait and narrow path which leads to life, into the pernicious amusements, and ensnaring vanities of a licentious age. Be strong, and quit yourselves like men, in the much neglected cause of morality and religion. 1771. P. E.

We beseech you, dear young people, who are sensible of the visitation from on high, and have tasted the power of Divine love, suffer nothing to draw you from it. "See that ye refuse not Him that "speaketh; for if they escaped not who refused him that spake on earth, "much more shall not we escape, if we turn away from Him that "speaketh from Heaven."2 This inward speaker is the Spirit of your Esteem his reproofs above the world's caresses, and prize his cross before all its enjoyments; for these will soon terminate in disappointment and sorrow, but that will lead to enduring substance. The way to the crown is strait to flesh and blood, and there is no other by which it can be obtained. Be neither afraid nor ashamed of it. Enter it in the days of your youth, and whether you reach to old age or not, as you steadily persevere therein, you will have cause to rejoice in that peace which passeth the understanding of the carnal mind. Great is the advantage you possess above those in more advanced years, who have long suffered themselves to be ensnared into negligence and delays, and who being again mercifully awakened to behold their danger, deeply deplore the loss they have sustained, and the difficulty they find in their return, from the many entanglements and inconveniences which their former remissness hath subjected them to. Improve the precious opportunity put into your hands. "Seek ye the Lord while "he may be found: call ye upon him while he is near." 1774. P. E.

Against vain sports and places of amusement.

Frequent and earnest have been the advices of former yearly meetings, that all under our name may avoid the attendance of vain sports and places of amusement; which divert the mind from serious reflection, and incline it to wantonness and vanity. Understanding that diversions of this kind are spreading, and play-houses increasing in various places, we are concerned to renew a caution on this subject; being clearly convinced of the pernicious effects of these evil practices, the inventions of degenerate men, tending to stifle the convictions of the divine witness in the conscience, and set men at ease in a state of alienation from God. 1785. P. E.

General counsel and exhortation.

And beloved youth, in an especial manner guard against the first sacrifices of duty to inclination. If ye curb inordinate desires in their infancy, your victory over future temptations will be the more easy; and, through faith in Him that hath loved us, and hath overcome, ye will in time be more than conquerors; but if ye shrink from the conflict, or resign the victory to the tempter, ye will be despoiled of the armour designed to preserve you in future assaults; and, it may be, unable to resist, in your further progress through life, temptations which in the fresh General counmorning of your day ye would have held in abhorrence. 1795. P. E.

And, O that we could awaken some of you, dear youth, who have been educated in a liberty which we deplore on your account, because we believe that the Gospel of Christ doth not allow it—that we could awaken you to serious reflection! If your rest should, for a season, be disturbed by the sense of sin, of the danger of continuing in it, and of the future judgment which is it's portion, you have no cause for utter dismay. Help is laid on One that is mighty. The sense of our transgressions leads to prayer for his secret, but almighty help; and as you are careful to close in with the inward intimations of his will, which are in fact the offers of his mercy, he will give you in due season "the oil of joy for mourning," and "the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness."1

To you, dear youth, who are rising up to manhood, we would extend a tender, yet an earnest invitation. We are interested in your happiness, the church will have need of your help, and there is nothing that we desire more for you, than to see you advancing, in ranks of righteousness, to the Christian warfare. And your qualification will lie in humility and meekness, seeing it is the meek whom the Lord teacheth his way.2 But, dear young men, in this very meeting we have been made to lament, because so many of you evidently prefer the gratifications of nature which is corrupt, and which tends to corruption, to the cross of Christ which corrects its hurtful propensities, and to "the " grace of God that bringeth salvation." Many of you have a degree of love to our holy cause. Why then will you pursue a line of conduct which tends to lay it waste? Do not despise the counsel of experience. Many have tried the path which some of you tread, and have found it lead to distress; and happy are those whose course is interrupted, and who do not persist in their progress, before it lead to final distress.

But though we thus speak, there are also many of our beloved youth, who are rising to the state of maturity, of whom we are persuaded "better things, and things that accompany salvation." Dear young friends, of whatever rank, sex, or station, it is cordial to behold you, it is cordial to salute you in the fellowship of the Gospel, and to bid you God speed. Hold on your way, turn not aside to the right hand or to the left. You may have tribulation, but be of good cheer: your holy Leader hath overcome the world. Thus, when some of those who now address you shall be beheld no more in this scene of conflict, but if they continue faithful will partake of the joy of their Lord, and of your Lord, you may stand in their places with holy firmness, be a blessing to succeeding generations, and "show forth the praises of Him who hath "called you out of darkness into his marvellous light." 1807. P. E.

And you, tender youth, yet in that most critical time of life, in which men often receive the bias which forms them into servants of their God, or warps them away from his fear, let us again press you to ponder the path of your feet. The earlier you are devoted to his service, the better servants you will be. And He is served in little things, and not in those only which appear great, and highly beneficial to others. But what attainment is greater than to be able in a pure heart to say, "Thy will be done?" and this, by the Spirit of Him who taught his immediate followers after this manner to pray, may be attained even in childhood. It will be a most precious morning sacrifice to the Lord, who hath given you life; who stands ready, as you faithfully serve him, to store it with blessings; and who can finally crown it with a peaceful immortality. 1809. P. E.

And, dear youth in general, especially you who have left, or are about to leave, the protection of a parent, and to enter into the busy scenes of life: some of you, probably, in populous towns, far different from the retirement of your paternal abodes, we beseech you to guard against the new temptations which may now assail you. Oppose the first incitement to any liberty inconsistent with your principles, and be willing to seek the society of experienced friends in the places where you may be situated, and to receive their admonition with meekness and attention. Never forget that the season of early youth is a season of peculiar danger; and if you grow up under this sense, you will from time to time be led to cry for preservation to Him, who has said, (and his words are Amen for ever,) "him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out"1 1812. P. E.

In considering this subject, [the reading of the Scriptures,] our younger friends have been brought to our remembrance with warm and the Scriptures; and on tender solicitude. We hope that many of you, dear youth, are no religious restrangers to this practice, and to some we trust it has already been blessed. Hesitate not, we beseech all of this class, to allot a portion of each day to read and meditate upon the sacred volume in private: steadily direct your minds to Him who alone can open and apply the Scriptures to our spiritual benefit. In these seasons of retirement, enter into a close examination of the state of your own hearts; and, as you may be enabled, secretly pray to the Almighty for preservation from the temptations with which you are encompassed. Your advancement in a life of humility, dedication, and dependence upon divine aid, is a subject of our most tender concern. That you might adorn our holy profession, by walking watchfully before the Lord, and upholding our various testimonies, was the care of some of our dear friends, of whose decease we have been at this time informed. They were concerned in early life to evince their love to the truth; they served the Lord in uprightness and fear in their generation, and, in their closing moments, were permitted to feel a humble trust that, through the mediation of our Redeemer, they should become heirs of a kingdom that shall never have an end. Let their example encourage you to offer all your natural powers, and every intellectual attainment, to the service of the same Lord, and patiently to persevere in a course of unremitting obedience to the Divine will. 1815. P. E.

13 General counsel.

Dear young friends, our hearts are warmed with love to you. We desire that it may be your frequent concern to seek for an establishment on the only sure foundation, and to wait in humble watchfulness for the teachings of the Heavenly Instructor. If conflicts of mind should attend you, and prove painful and humiliating in their nature, this is no cause for dismay. Those who steadily pursue the path of a true disciple, will, through the goodness of the Lord, at times be permitted indubitably to feel that they are the objects of his paternal regard. They will from their own experience know an increase of true faith in the power and perceptible support of the Holy Spirit. Ascribing this to the free gift of God in Christ Jesus our Lord, they will become firmly persuaded that the tendering power of Redeeming Love, though undervalued by too many, is above all things precious. We are consoled in the belief, that the feet of many of our beloved young friends have been turned into this path. And it is our earnest desire, that neither the fear of man, the offence of the cross, an aversion to the simplicity of the truth, nor the activity of their own wills, may interrupt their progress; but that they may, through the unfoldings of divine counsel, come to know an establishment in that faith which giveth the victory. 1817. P. E.

And, dear young friends, earnest have been our desires that you may all not only be professors with us, but by obedience to the Spirit of Christ, become real possessors of the truth as it is in Jesus. We are persuaded, that in the eyes of many amongst you, the truth has indeed appeared lovely: why then is there not a full surrender to its power and to its convictions? The Lord loveth an early sacrifice. His numberless blessings call for your gratitude, and your allegiance. And mournful indeed will be the reflection, should your days be lengthened to advanced age, that you have slighted the mercies of a gracious Creator, that you have preferred the love of the world and its fading pleasures, and that there can be no peaceful retrospect on devotedness to his cause.

To our young friends, who have taken some steps in the right way, we would tenderly offer a few remarks. The youthful mind, in its love for the cause of religion, is readily led into action. Here is a fresh call for watchfulness. A benevolent desire to promote the Lord's Counsel as to work in the earth, and to serve their fellow-men, may have imper- engaging in works of pubceptibly led some from a close and frequent examination of the state of lence. their own hearts. In mixing in public companies, and in witnessing the success of the efforts that are used to promote the common good, our own minds may be gratified, but our quick perception of spiritual instruction may be weakened. Far be it from this meeting to discourage its members from sharing in those excellent labours, in which we can, consistently with our religious principles, unite. In the universal dispersion of the sacred volume, and in the moral and religious instruction of the poor of this and of other countries, we feel a very lively interest. We rejoice in the progress of these good works; but our earnest concern for all is, that each may seek to know and to abide in his proper station: that they whose field of usefulness is principally within the limits of our On usefulness own society, may be faithful to their call, and diligent in their Master's society. service. And may you, whose labours are more extended, be especially careful, that your exertions for the good of others are adorned and enforced by humility, and by that consistency with our principles, which can only be maintained by watchfulness and prayer: that it may be manifest to all, that the love of Christ operating in the heart leads you to seek, not the praise of men, but the glory of God. 1818. P. E.

We affectionately recommend to young men in the country, who may be unable to procure employment, as well as to their parents, Caution as to that they patiently wait for some proper opening, rather than venture leaving their, on so dangerous a risk as that of coming to this great metropolis without ployment; any definite prospect of protection or employment. It is peculiarly desirable also, that before young persons remove from their homes, they, or their parents, should make a point of consulting experienced friends in their own monthly meetings. These might correspond with other friends in the places to which such removal is intended, and thus, hasty movements, and the evils consequent upon them might be prevented.

We would affectionately advise the parents of our young men, not and advice as to seek high things for their children; and young men themselves, to rest of occupation.

contented with that station in life in which Divine Providence may have placed them. There can be no real dignity in any station, without a religious life and conversation; and those who are the faithful followers of Christ, however low in their outward situation, will not fail to obtain the respect, as well as the love, of those by whom they are surrounded. We wish especially to advert to manual employment, as suited to afford to many young persons a salutary and desirable occupation. Were there more true humility amongst us, and more willingness contentedly to occupy our proper stations, we believe that the painful difficulties to which we have now alluded, would be very much avoided. 1821.

Young persons encouraged tenderly to counsel their associates.

We recommend to such of our young friends as know and approve what is excellent, and may have been strengthened in some small degree to practise it, not to shrink from modestly yet faithfully counselling their associates in early life, when they may be deviating from the path of duty. A tender caution may be received with peculiar advantage, when those to whom it is given know that their counsellors are still alike subject to the same temptations to which they are exposed; and when, as may sometimes happen, the relative as well as the social tie may call for the extension of a hand of help. 1827. P. E.

Advice against publications of an infidel tendency.

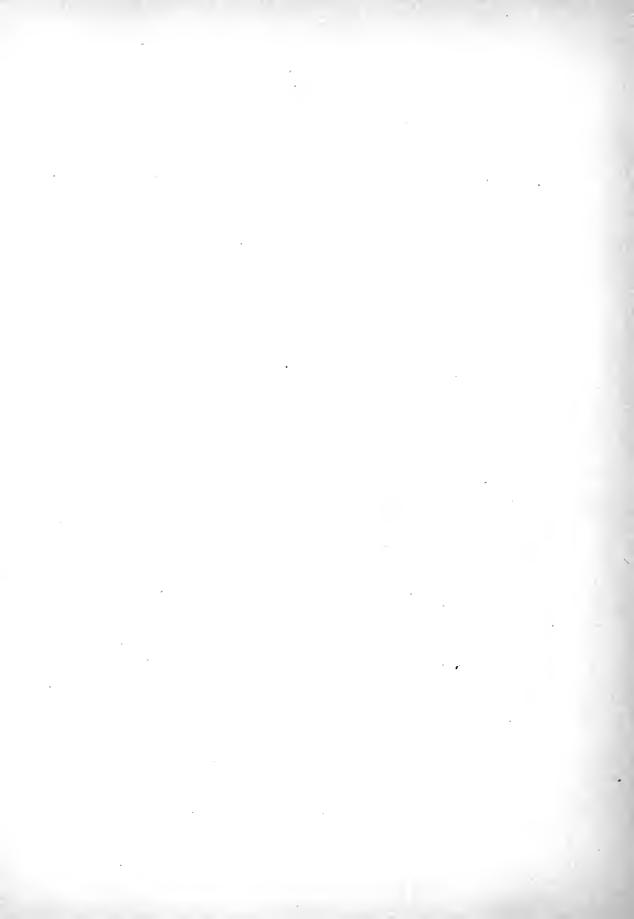

Dear young friends, we tenderly exhort you all to cherish the belief, to seek to be established in the conviction, that your heavenly Father, as you look in faith unto him, will assist you by his good Spirit to overcome every thing that is wrong, and to live acceptably in his sight. Be very careful then, we beseech you, not to read publications which openly, or indirectly, inculcate a disbelief in the benefits procured to us by the sufferings and death of Christ, in the divinity of Him our Lord and Saviour, or in the perceptible guidance of his Spirit. On the contrary, in silent retirement before the Lord, seek after the contriting influence of his love, in sincere desire that in his own time, it may please him, that you also may richly partake of that consolation and strength which are the portion of his faithful, dependent children. And, as we can rejoice in the persuasion that many of you have yielded to the visitations of Divine love, we wish to encourage these to hold on in the path of dedication, to continue to love the Lord, and to desire to know and to do his will.

May these, may all our dear friends, be impressed with the continued necessity of watchfulness unto prayer, and of being clothed with humility, as with a garment. The faithful disciple will guard against relying too much on former experience: he will find that an increase of years produces an increasing conviction that we are entirely dependent upon God for fresh supplies of strength; but he will be animated to persevere, from the consoling hope that if faith and patience continue, Christian virtues will increase; humility, meekness, and liveliness of spirit will be prevalent in advanced life; and a final admission will be granted into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. 1820. P. E.

General counsel.

Finally, friends, collectedly and individually, farewell! May all our meetings be held with weight, as in the immediate presence of the heavenly President. May the aged among us be examples of every Christian virtue; and evince, by the calmness of their evening, that their day has been blest. May the middle-aged not faint in their allotted stations; but, together with their elder and younger brethren, firmly support, yea exalt, the several testimonies which we are called to maintain. And O! may the beloved youth, the tender objects of our care, and of our hope, bend early and cheerfully under the forming power of truth: that thus, each standing in his allotment, the harmony of the building may be preserved, and we may truly grow up into a holy temple for the Lord. 1799. P. E.
